The Old Ledger Dies.
Information for Germany.
The Senate's Holiday.
90 Per Cent Fire Traps.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE OLD Philadelphia Public Ledger is dead, after ninety eight years of life, all dignified, some of it interesting.

It had interesting and able owners at various times, including George W. Childs, Adolph S. Ochs, of the New York Times, and Cyrus H. K. Curtis. Even able men find it difficult successfully to manage newspapers in more than one place.

W. R. Hearst, who manages successfully some 26 newspapers, in twenty cities, and a dozen magazines, seems to possess a trade secret.

THE HITLER government decides to rule the German Evangelical Protestant Church somewhat less vigorously. Bishop Mueller, head man in the German Lutheran Church, announces that pastors may have more liberty of speech, but must be careful not to meddle with "matters of high state policy."

PERHAPS RELIGIOUS tolerance will spread farther, especially if business continues bad and German exports continue to drop.

German statesmen puzzled by the drop in exports might learn something by reading the history of Portugal and Spain after the Jews were driven out, and the history of Holland's rise to leadership in world commerce after the Dutch authorities welcomed the Jews.

THE SENATE will take today off, making this a five-day week. The idea is to let Senators, pages and other attaches attend the opening of the local baseball season.

This indicates that Senators do not consider conditions absolutely desperate.

NEW YORK CITY has 67,000 tenement houses in which 2,000,000 people live, because there is no other place for them to live. Of the 2,000,000, ninety per cent live in firetraps, according to official report. There is, however, a silver lining to this cloud, from one point of view. When tenement houses burn down, and tenants burn up, the landlord gets his insurance.

If the law forbade insurance on firetraps, as it should do, the owners would be on the spot night and day to prevent fire. And there would be less arson.

IN ARIZONA an ancient Indian cave explored by the Hohokam Society of Tucson yields arrows, prayer boxes, textiles, blankets decorated with rain symbols, and the skeleton of an Indian chief, with a turban around the skull, all 1,000 years old.

All were taken to the Arizona State Museum except the skeleton. The Yavapai Indians would not permit that, and, extremely interesting, the one man who objected violently, rousing the Indians to intense excitement, demanding that the skeleton be reburied, according to ancient Indian customs, was not some ancient blanket Indian, but the well-dressed, quite modern, Baptist missionary, a converted Yavapai.

All his conversion seems to have dropped off, the missionary going straight back to his ancestors of 1,000 years when he saw that real skeleton.

BIG FORTUNES are created ingeniously, financial difficulties can be overcome by ingenuity.

Number one. A big utilities company was buying up many little concerns and government learns that an engineer "wrote up" the values of the little companies by more than eighty eight million dollars.

With competition out of the way there would be no trouble getting back those extra millions from the consumers.

ONE OF THE little "write ups" in the enterprise, amounting to $191,000, is alleged to have been arranged to oblige a New York state senator whose official job was supposed to be protecting the public from public utilities extortion.

You have to "take care" of gentlemen holding those important places. The public doesn't know it, but the owners of corporations do know it.

NUMBER TWO. An important bank that has since rolled over and died was in difficulties. To continue running and taking deposits from business people, although it was bankrupt, it was necessary for the bank to show that it had money and securities.

According to indictments handed down by a Cleveland grand jury the head of the bank, now indicted, said to a big railroad concern, recently blown up like a child's balloon:

"You have ten million dollars in government bonds. Please sell us those bonds for a little while, then please deposit the ten millions that you get theoretically in our bank to make it look rich."

The thing was done.

THE BANK EXAMINERS found the bank with ten million dollars in government bonds and ten millions in cash, all fictitious ownership.

Will anything be done about that, which represents one of ten thousand schemes by which "one financial hand is made to wash the other?" Possibly, but probably not.

JOHN DILLINGER held up a police station, frightened a policeman into submission, walked off with a new supply of deadly weapons, and three bullet-proof vests, and is supposed to be in Chicago. Chicago banks are actually putting on extra guards to protect their treasures from one lone bandit. Such is the power of adver-

INSANE WARD CONDITIONS FLAYED AS 'FRIGHTFUL'

Free Sufferers From Political Bungling, Experts Plead

Scathing condemnation of Pittsburgh's municipally operated hospitals was voiced today by Mayor McNair's voluntary investigating committee of physicians, hospital heads, social workers and civic leaders.

Their findings included:

New Department of Hospitals urged, free from political interference.

Overcrowding in insane wards at Mayview described as "frightful."

Wasteful methods held prevalent at Mayview, Leech Farm and Municipal Hospital.

"Appalling inadequacy" of medical staff at Mayview, with only one physician for 175 patients in Mayview General Hospital.

Tuberculosis patients at Mayview housed in 27-year-old "temporary shacks."

Abandonment of farm at Mayview urged unless it can be made more useful to institution.

Engineers at Municipal Hospital paid twice as much as is expended for medical care of patients.

The committee particularly scored present arrangements at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview where overcrowding in the insane wards was denounced as "frightful."

WASTE CHARGED

Wasteful methods of management were reported not only at Mayview but at Leech Farm and Municipal Hospital. The report suggested:

"The superintendents of all three institutions should be adequately protected from political interference in employing and dismissing workers, and should have final authority in these matters."

An immediate increase was asked in the number of physicians, nurses and attendants at Mayview. The inadequacy of the present staff was said to be "appalling."

As an emergency measure, the city should arrange with other general hospitals for the use of ward beds for acute medical and

Throng of 150,000 Sees Cherry Blooms

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP.)—The capital's Japanese cherry blossoms were refreshed today by a mild rain after having displayed their pale beauty to 150,000 Sunday visitors.

All day long, highways, trains and airplanes were jammed with thousands. Park police estimated 25,000 automobiles, most of them from out of town, crept around the basin between 8 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Desperado Slain By Prison Guard

BATON ROUGE, La., April 16.—(AP.)—Jimmy Bear, notorious convict desperado, was shot and killed today at the State Penitentiary.

Bear was one of 12 convicts who broke from the penal farm in a riot last September. He was shot down today by a guard when he attempted to jump a wire fence and get away, Penitentiary Manager R. L. Himes announced.

Alfonso's Cousin Under Knife at 93

CANNES, France, April 16.—(AP.)—Surgeons have operated upon Count Caserta, 93-year-old cousin of former King Alfonso XIII of Spain, to relieve an abcessed leg. The count, head of the one royal family of Bourbon of Sicily, had been believed to be dying two weeks ago, but made a remarkable rally.

Charges Beating

MRS. RICHARD BENNETT

BENNETT BEAT HER, WIFE SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Richard Bennett, wife of the veteran actor, brought the reports of domestic trouble in the Bennett family to a head today with charges her husband had beaten her.

She asked Bennett's arrest in a warrant charging battery. Her attorney, Milton Cohen, said she was "very badly hurt." Persons present when Mrs. Bennett appeared Saturday before a police court judge to swear out the complaint said she bore a cut over one eye, and appeared to have been struck on the nose.

The warrant was not served on the stage and screen star, however, for police found that the Bennett residence is outside the Beverly Hills city limits. Bennett was reported to have left for New York where he said he would appear in a play.

In making the announcement of his New York engagement last week, Bennett said that during his absence his wife was going to live with her parents, at Los Gatos. He denied they were separating permanently.

Mt. Lebanon Man Leaps Into River

Leaving his automobile on the trolley tracks of the Sewickley Bridge today, a man believed to be Irvine N. King, of 220 Le Moyne avenue, Mt. Lebanon, leaped 60 feet into the swollen Ohio River, police reported.

A salesman for the Colonial Steel Company, Monaca, King had been treated for two months for a nervous breakdown, police said they learned.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce Settles Out of Court

NEW YORK, April 16.—(Universal.)—Peggy Hopkins had a piece of "Broadway luck" today—with reverse English.

The much-married actress settled a suit out of court for cash—$400, to be exact. But the suit was against her, filed in city court by the Conlew Discount Corporation.

Dorothy Jordan Mother of Girl

HONOLULU, April 16.—(Universal.)—It's a girl in the Merian C. Cooper family. Mrs. Cooper, the former Dorothy Jordan, screen actress, came to Hawaii six weeks ago to await arrival of the stork. The new Miss Cooper weighs 7 pounds.

Story of Drinking Wins Girl Broker Divorce

Jane Zacharias Bair, the young broker, deserted the matrimony market today, with the help of Judge Ralph H. Smith.

The court granted Mrs. Bair a divorce from John C. Bair, Jr., to whom she was married in March, 1932, after a romance which flourished while they were promoting intercollegiate balls.

Mrs. Bair, who lives in the Schenley Apartments, had complained that her husband drank excessively, and humiliated her in front of friends.

Once, she testified, he was driving so fast that she warned him both might be killed. To which she quoted him as replying:

"That is what I want to do."

Another time, in the William Penn Hotel's night club, he created a scene by ordering her to leave, finally bumping her against an elevator shaft, she testified.

The Bair maid told of suggesting to Mrs. Bair that she go home to her mother. But Mrs. Bair replied:

"I don't want her to know."

'Stool Pigeon' Use by Police Scored

CLOSED BANK RELIEF ASSURED

POLICE 'SPY' USE SCORED IN COURT

'Stool Pigeon' Attack Follows Boast of 'Agent' for Sleuths

Use of "stool pigeons" by detectives brought sharp criticism today from Magistrate J. W. McGowan, in Central Police Court, and Inspector of City Detectives Louis Leff.

Their condemnation of the practice followed the assertion of a youth to Magistrate McGowan that he acted as "agent" for City Detectives George Puff and Nuncie Marino.

The youth, Jack Reno, 20, of 708 Homewood avenue, held with a companion on a loitering charge, testified:

"I am agent for City Detectives Puff and Marino. I can't talk here. I want to see them."

Magistrate McGowan declared:

"An agent is a stool pigeon. You had better cut that out."

Reno and George Kimberland, 22, of Saranac avenue, were arrested early today in front of a business place at 205 Market street. Officers asserted Kimberland had a pair of pliers and a screw driver.

Kimberland, according to his testimony, admitted that at Reno's inducement he had planned to burglarize the Market street address. Testifying, he said:

"But I guess I was just bait. He suggested the robbery, then turns out to be a stool pigeon."

Puff denied to Magistrate McGowan that he had used Reno as an agent. He said that he had given the youth boxing lessons and that recently Reno had aided in the recovery of some stolen articles, but that the aid was unsolicited.

Bitterly scoring the use of "stool pigeons," Inspector Leff declared:

"I don't want any stool pigeons working with the men in my department. If the detectives are not capable of solving the cases to which they are assigned we don't want anyone doing the work for them."

4 Back on Payroll After 'Political' Row

Four food and meat inspectors, dismissed by City Health Director Ray P. Moyer, were reinstated today by order of the Civil Service Commission pending review of their appeal. The four, William P. Kane, Albert Schleiden, Joseph W. Farrell and Edward L. Workmaster, complained they were fired for political reasons.

Fred Drumm, of the Sixteenth Ward, named by Dr. Moyer to succeed one of the four, was temporarily dismissed today pending the outcome.

Lord Baden-Powell Walks With Sticks

LIVERPOOL, England, April 16.—(AP.)—Lord Baden-Powell, 77, founder of the Boy Scout movement, whose life was almost despaired of early this year, was able to walk today with the aid of two sticks when he returned from a Mediterranean cruise.

Lady Baden-Powell said:

'He is still a very sick man."

Girl Saves Dog As Home Burns

As Alice Bryson, 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Winifred Bryson, fled from their burning home at 53 Oakwood road, early yesterday, she snatched up her pet dog, "Pal," and carried him to safety. A pet canary was not as fortunate, dying in the flames.

Damage was estimated at $6,000.

Brothers, Pal Shackled As Trial in Holdup Killings Opens

By DAVID P. SENTNER.
International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., April 16.—Without benefit of the presence of their pretty girl comrade, the Millen brothers, Murton and Irving and their pal, Abe Faber, today went on trial for murder.

Norma Brighton Millen, 19-year-old bride of Murton, stayed in the County Jail to await her own turn in the Norfolk County Superior Court.

As the three alleged killers of two policemen during the holdup of the Needham Trust Company left the county jail, Norma wept and shouted "Good luck" through her cell bars.

Norma will be tried immediately after the Millen-Faber trial on a charge of accessory after the fact in connection with the robbery.

SHACKLED TOGETHER

The defendants, whom the prosecutor charges made a "science" out of crime, were guarded by a heavy detail of police.

The three youths, shackled together, were brought into the steel prisoner's cage in the center of the courtroom.

DRIVES 6 MILES IN LOVE SUICIDE

After shooting himself with a pistol, Harry Troup, Jr., 22, of Coal Hollow, drove six miles to his home and killed himself with a rifle yesterday, following a quarrel with Miss Mildred Streets, 18, of Sutersville, his sweetheart.

The youth had fired six shots at Mildred but missed her, she told police.

Then he fired a seventh shot from his pistol into his forehead, according to witnesses. Wounded, he climbed into his car, drove from her home to his, where he procured his rifle and shot himself to death.

Mildred said they had quarrelled Saturday night. He returned Sunday afternoon to plead forgiveness but she said she told him:

"It's no use. You mistrust me, so we could never get along together."

Bishop Hayes Guest For Ceremony Here

Bishop Ralph L. Hayes, of Helena, Mont., was visiting in Pittsburgh today. Tomorrow night, at 7:30, he will confirm a class at his old church, St. Catherine's, in Beechview. The bishop was invited to the confirmation by Bishop Hugh C. Boyle.

This is Bishop Hayes' second visit to Pittsburgh since he was elevated last September. Last week he was in Washington attending a meeting at Catholic University.

Sound Policy Demands Passage of McLeod Bill

MILLIONS of betrayed depositors in closed banks throughout the country will be little impressed with the cheap parliamentary trick by which the House Democratic leadership has avoided a vote on the merits of the McLeod bank liquidation bill.

Thus action toward paying off depositors in full in closed banks belonging to the Federal Reserve System has been delayed and jeopardized.

The House Banking and Currency Committee prematurely reported out the measure with the definite intent of involving it IN THE SLOW PROCESSES OF RED TAPE.

The committee did this when it appeared certain that a petition to force quick consideration would get a sufficient number of signatories.

As a result of this discreditable parliamentary maneuver, consideration of the bill by the House has been put off for at least a month and perhaps for the whole session unless new corrective action is taken.

A RESOLUTION has already been introduced to give the important reflationary bill legislative right of way. The opponents of the legislation, however, are making every effort to have the resolution killed in the rules committee.

There is not the slightest doubt or question Representative McLeod's original draft should be brought before the House and passed by Congress without delay. The bill is one of the most valuable measures which has appeared before this Democratic Congress. It is morally and practically sound and its effect toward the prompt restoration of prosperity would be electrical.

It would immediately free $1,815,000,000 in frozen and inert deposits.

Such funds, wisely redistributed to thrifty people of the nation who accumulated them, would turn over many times a year in the normal course of business, and would contribute in a determining manner to the RISE IN THE GROSS VOLUME OF TRADE and the RE-EMPLOYMENT OF IDLE LABOR.

BY THE terms of Representative McLeod's plan, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would merely ADVANCE the necessary cash.

The government agency would secure the loan by taking over the assets of the closed banks, and would be further protected against ultimate loss by the double liability of bank stockholders.

Thus, the government's contribution would be primarily in the form of TIME.

It would make the dormant deposits in closed banks available as purchasing power NOW instead of months or years later.

Moreover, being in a position in which it can afford to wait, it would not frantically seek to liquidate at any price the frozen assets of banks.

It would be permitted to wait the terms of the bill as long as ten years for FAVORABLE MARKETS IN WHICH TO SELL SUCH ASSETS.

THE EFFECT of such postponement would be not only to enhance the prospective realizable value of such assets, but also TO GIVE RELIEF TO DEBTORS OF BANKS, who would be destroyed financially by quick and ruthless insistence that they pay up immediately.

The McLeod bill would reduce interest charges on such obligations to closed banks to 4 per cent.

The easing up on debtors would relax the whole economic situation in the United States.

The definite announcement that such assets will not be thrown on the market for forced liquidation WOULD IMPROVE THE TONE OF THE FINANCES OF THE WHOLE COUNTRY.

Senseless and cruel deflation would be reversed.

IN ADDITION to these economic benefits, the government would keep faith with bank depositors who remained loyal to those institutions in response to government appeals to them not to hoard funds.

For the weakness of closed national and state banks belonging to the Federal Reserve System, THE GOVERNMENT, AS SUPERVISOR OF BANKS, IS PARTLY TO BLAME.

Since the reopening of banks, the government accepted the principle of responsibility to depositors through introducing a system of deposit insurance. Thus a recurrence of the hardships experi-

BALLOT NEAR ON AMENDED M'LEOD BILL

House Leaders Bow To Take Action on Partial Payoff

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 16—Sponsors of the McLeod bill to pay off depositors in closed banks were confident today that bank depositors' relief would be forced before Congress adjourns.

Confronted by threats of a revolt, House leaders today indicated that they will permit a vote on the amended McLeod bill for a partial payoff of depositors in closed banks. Speaker Rainey said:

"I should not be surprised to see the House vote on the amended bill. The bill would pass the House."

The amended bill which was reported out by the House Banking Committee to defeat the effect of a petition signed by 145 members to discharge the committee, is unsatisfactory to some of the sponsors of the original McLeod bill.

PROVISIONS LISTED

It provides for complete reimbursement of frozen deposits up to $2,500 and permits Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans up to 85 per cent of closed bank assets to free other additional deposits.

The original McLead bill provided for 100 per cent payment of deposits in national and Federal Reserve banks which closed during the depression at a time when government officials were urging people to keep their money in banks and the Comptroller of the Currency publicly modified regulations as to the value of as

DOG HERO SAVED FROM DEATH

TOPEKA, Kan., April 16.—(AP.)—With cocked ears and wagging tail, Pal O'Cragsman heard today he wasn't to be chloroformed but could spend the rest of his natural days burying bones—if burying bones is not beneath the dignity of a national champion airedale once cited for heroism—or doing whatever a dog prefers to do in his leisure.

The threat of death that hung over the dog since his mistress, Mrs. Rolla J. Parker, died leaving instructions the dog be chloroformed after her death, was removed today when administrators of the estate instructed that Pal O'Cragsman be kept from harm and a good home found for him.

"Tickled to death," over the administrators' decision was Dr. Charles W. Bower, veterinarian who has had Pal in custody and to whom Mrs. Parker had given her execution order. She had feared her pet might not be given a good home.

One of Mrs. Parker's relatives who has expressed a desire to give Pal a home is I. G. Pratt, of Towanda, Pa.

ROOSEVELT CLAMPS LID DOWN ON SILVER LEGISLATION

OPPOSES ACTION AT PRESENT SESSION

Longer Trial Sought For Monetary Policy By President

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—President Roosevelt today clamped down the lid on enactment of important silver or other monetary legislation in the present session of Congress.

The President's views were made known in detail today by Congressional leaders who conferred with him over the week-end.

The President's view coincides with that expressed to a Congressional Committee by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau when he said the present monetary policy is working well and asked for a further trial from six months to a year.

FAVORS SILVER

Speaker Rainey, who has become a leader in the fight for silver legislation said:

"The President is just as much for silver as I am.

"He questions the advisability of going ahead just now. He prefers to let his silver purchase plan continue.

"The world silver agreement is working. The United States, Mexico, Spain, Peru and Canada, silver-producing nations, have agreed to purchase newly-mined silver.

"There are 60 nations which don't produce silver, and the effort will be made to induce them to use more silver and eliminate use of brass and copper coins."

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC

Rainey said the President was "not enthusiastic" about the Dies bill, which passed the House and is pending in the Senate, but Senators who were at the White House Saturday understood the President was willing for the original Dies bill to pass.

Under this bill, surplus American farm products would be exchanged for silver, and the Treasury would accept the silver.

The President is opposed to the Goldsborough bill providing for a so-called monetary authority composed of a board of seven directors charged with handling the nation's money policy.

Mrs. Philip Faber, mother of Abe, smiled at him from a nearby seat.

Abe did not return the smile.

Judge Brown began by denying the motion of counsel for the defendants for a trial without a jury. He ruled:

"A jury will be chosen."

The court barred photographs at the trial without specific approval of the court and said publication of photographs secretly taken would be considered contempt of court.

Joseph Millen, father of the brother defendants, took his place beside counsel.

BROTHERS GRIN

A number of technical counsel motions were made by defense counsel and denied by Judge Brown.

Irving said something to Murton. They both grinned.

A motion of George S. Harvey, counsel for the Millen brothers, to have the trial removed from Norfolk County to a federal court in Boston, because of "embittered community feeling preventing a fair trial," was denied by Judge Brown.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 16.—(INS.)—William White, 40, Negro, today was in jail facing a murder charge in the death of Floyd Cadman, shot during an altercation at a fete of the Miners' Brotherhood at Edenborn.

The victim, despite wounds which proved fatal, is said to have wrestled with White until other celebrators separated them. An argument between two women guests at the party was given as the cause of the fight.

HUNT GIRL LURE IN MURDER

International News Service.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., April 16.—With two fingerprints taken from liquor glasses and the dainty print of a girl's shoe in the sand as their principal clues, police today hunted a young woman and two men wanted for the murder of Arthur Todd, wealthy 70-year-old recluse, whose body was found on the rocky beach of his Bell Island estate near here.

Believed to have been drugged, robbed of $10,000 and then pushed off the sea wall, Todd was thought to have been lured to the cliff by a young woman whose footprints were found in the sand. Beside them were the prints of the aged man's heavier shoes. Both prints led from the beach to the cliff, where police believe the girl's accomplices attached Todd and hurled him to his death. His empty wallet was found nearby.

The girl and her two companions were said to have been guests of Todd at a midnight party last Thursday, when he is believed to have been slain.

The 70-year-old recluse was said to have told a friend recently he would like to marry a girl in her 'teens.

MURRAY GUARDS BAN TAX SALES

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 16.—(AP.)—Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray and his national guardsmen today apparently had won another victory as three more counties called off advertised sales of tax delinquent property.

The fiery Democratic Governor, who had ordered the arrest of any official attempting a delinquent tax sale on the ground "protection for the homes of the people in stressful times like these is a vital policy transcending any temporary loss in taxes," anticipated there would be no sales in two other counties to which he had sent troops and from which there has been no report. These two were Cotton and Craig.

Treasurers of Garfield, Blaine and Bryan counties cancelled sales today. Six other counties—Major, Washington, Beaver, Stephens, Choctaw and McCurtain—already had called off sales.

tising. There is no doubt that Dillinger enjoys the notoriety.

But when the time comes, as it will, for some fighting detective to get the drop on Dillinger, or for him to face the hangman or electrician holding the death chair switch, publicity will lose its charm and the real Dillinger will appear, as did the real "desperate gangster" Touhy, of Chicago, supposed to be afraid of nothing. When he entered the prison door to stay ninety-nine years, his head fell forward on his chest, and tears streamed down his cheek as he said:

"This is terrible."

THE PRINCE OF WALES, an excellent salesman, hard worker for the British government, went to Glasgow to see a giant Cunard steamship under construction there and was hoisted up two hundred feet in a "riveter's cage." A steel cable, hauling up the cage, might have broken, had the Prince weighed two or three hundred thousand pounds more than he does weigh. His courage is displayed on many newspaper front pages.

WORKERS GO UP in such cages all over the world constantly and they go down into mines in worse cages for a few shillings, or for two or three dollars a day. Nobody mentions their courage.

Nevertheless, the Prince deserves credit. He might have been sitting at the trente et quarante table at Monte Carlo, instead of sitting in the riveter's cage.

CLASH TO MARK STEEL MEET

A battle between the younger and older elements of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers impended today as the vanguard of delegates reached Pittsburgh for the opening tomorrow of the annual convention in the Elk's Club, Seventh street and Duquesne way.

More than 200 delegates said to represent 30,000 steel workers are expected.

The battle expected to lend zest to the sessions will involve the breaking away or keeping in line with the traditional policies of the organization. The task of keeping the organization in line will fall upon the shoulders of M. F. Tighe, national president. He will be opposed it is expected by W. J. Long, of Weirton, leader in the Weirton Steel Company strike a year ago.

U. S. Gets Counsel For Weirton Case

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(INS.)—A bill providing for employment by the government of Frank Nebeker, a former assistant attorney general, in prosecuting the Weirton steel case was among 10 signed early today by President Roosevelt.

Another bill among the 10 made available necessary funds for carrying out the Norris-Rankin resolution providing for a Federal Power Commission investigation of light and power rates throughout the country.

BACK M'CARRAN BILL TO END AIR MAIL MUDDLE

Plan to Take Service Out of Politics Holds Spot

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Solid strength centered behind the McCarran bill in a drive to end the muddled air mail legislation situation in Congress and restore the service to private operators.

The measure, sponsored by Senator McCarran (Dem.), of Nevada, to "take the air mail out of politics," holds the spotlight of attention. Plans were laid to push it for speedy action in both Senate and House.

With repercussions still sounding over expose of the secret interviewing of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh by Carl Ristine, Special Assistant Attorney General, demands were made to end further controversy and get down to business.

LINDBERGH INQUIRY

Whether the Lindbergh interrogation would be aired publicly before the Senate Air Mail Investigating Committee Tuesday is undecided.

As this new controversy simmered, McCarran, a member of the committee, announced his intention of getting his bill to a vote.

It would place the air mail service under a special aviation commission of five members. Contracts would be let, not by the Postmaster General, but by the commission. Air mail would be carried on a fixed pound-per-mile basis.

McCarran said:

"My bill is designed as a common sense measure to take the air mail out of politics.

"It would end the chaos in the air mail situation. It would put the air mail back into competent private operation. It would mean a square deal for the aviation industry."

PUBLIC SUPPORT

McCarran said he had received several hundred telegrams and letters indorsing his measure. In principle it has the support of Col. Lindbergh, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, noted war ace, and Clarence Chamberlin, transocean flier.

Chairman Black, of the Senate Air Mail Committee, is agreeable to the fundamental principles of the measure as are a majority of the committee members. Independent Democrats are strongly behind it.

The bill has been introduced in the House by Representative Wood (Dem.), of Georgia. It has incorporated in it many of the major features of the Kelly bill which has a strong backing.

Farley Directs Mail Speedup, Furlough End

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP.)—Curtailed mail deliveries and payless furloughs for postal workers will end May 1, because better business has raised postal revenues.

Postmaster General Farley yesterday revoked the provisions of an order of March 2 that took away the furlough privileges and slashed the number of mail deliveries.

He gave as the reason:

"Improved business conditions throughout the country have resulted in a substantial increase in postal revenues during the months of February and March and offer prospects of continued increases."

AUTO WORKERS BACK LABOR BOARD

Union Action Heralds Peace for Entire Industry

DETROIT, April 16.—(AP.)—Organized labor threw its support to the National Automobile Labor Board today, bringing a new promise of genuine peace to the motor car industry.

At a meeting of labor leaders in Pontiac yesterday a plea was made to workers to exercise patience while the labor board studies its problems. The leaders, from seven Michigan cities, from Ohio and from Wisconsin, urged the board to act with all possible speed, out of consideration of the thousands of workers who are now awaiting board decisions.

URGES PATIENCE

William Collins, chief organizer of the American Federation of Labor in the automobile industry, sounded the keynote of patience. It was echoed in a telegram from William Green in which the president of the federation asked workers to "keep their feet on the ground while the board is working out its problems."

A resolution was adopted expressing confidence in the board, in Richard L. Byrd, labor's representative on the board, and in President Green.

DECISION IMPORTANT

Importance was attached in industrial circles to the sentiment of the meeting because of persistent reports of serious unrest in labor ranks as the motor industry pushes forward to the highest production in several years. The unrest was evident recently in the open criticism of the Labor Board, the chief peace making body, and in reports that labor was fearful of what might follow the spring spurt in production.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 16.—(AP.)—Although official reports were lacking, discussion was general throughout the Alabama mining fields that ore and lime quarry miners of the district would not report for work today in sympathy with the walkout of mine employes.

CHARGE CANNON 'HIDDEN FUND'

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP.)—Evidence that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., offered to have a contribution "concealed" during his 1928 campaign against the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith was given today in the trial of the southern Methodist churchman.

Earlier, Justice Peyton Gordon in District of Columbia Supreme Court overruled a defense objection to mention of Bishop Cannon's prohibition views. The defense insisted that might prejudice the jury.

A letter purporting to have been written by Cannon to William C. Gregg, of Hackensack, N. J., said if he wished to have a $500 contribution "concelaed" "it can be utilized in the literary fund of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South."

The letter pointed out that contributions made directly to anti-Smith organization had to be reported to the clerk of the House of Representatives.

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—(AP.)—Karl Dane, who earned $1,500 a week when he was a star in silent pictures, may be buried in a pauper's grave.

Surrounded by seven-year-old photographs and press clippings of the days when he was famous, Dane shot himself through the head Saturday night.

Born Rasmus Karl Thekelsen Gottlieb 47 years ago in Copenhagen, Denmark, he came to this country as an automobile mechanic and reached the height of his film fame just as talking pictures were coming in.

He was best known for his acting of the part of "Slim," the gawky, raw-boned private who rolled his big eyes and provided the comic relief in the "Big Parade."

The actor's strong Danish accent barred him from the talking films, and their advent precipitated him on a rapid decline into obscurity.

2 BILLION FUND ROOSEVELT AIM

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—President Roosevelt will ask Congress for emergency appropriations exceeding $2,000,000,000, House leaders said today after the President had outlined a legislative program for the remainder of the session in week-end conferences.

The total, which was indicated in the President's budget message at the beginning of the session, may reach $2,200,000,000.

While allocation was not made clear to Congressional leaders, they understood that at least $350,000,000 would be provided for CCC camps, $250,000,000 for the cattle program, and several hundred millions for public works and emergency relief activities.

An allotment of $400,000,000 is to be made for highways, and $60,000,000 to begin work on the new "treaty navy" program provided in the Vinson bill.

DR. WIRT WINS APOLOGY

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP.)—In a speech to the House, Representative Bulwinkle (Dem.), of North Carolina, today retracted and apologized for his previous statement that Dr. William A. Wirt, author of the "brain truster revolution" allegations, had been confined to jail during the war because of pro-German activities.

Meanwhile, Robert W. Bruere, a guest at the Virginia dinner at which Wirt has testified he obtained his views as to what he termed the "revolution," told reporters the Indiana educator's account of the party was "fantastic" and "unfair."

Bulwinkle is chairman of the special House committee that is investigating Wirt's statements. Tomorrow it will hear six persons who attended the dinner last September 1.

NRA COAL MEN DISAGREE ON W. VA. WAGES

Federal Conference Continues With No Time on Decision

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP.)—NRA experts considering the Northern West Virginia coal wage differential dispute were reported in disagreement today as they failed to complete their report on the case.

Those considering the dispute were still in conference today and no information was forthcoming as to when a decision would be due. A report, embodying a recommendation for a decision, had been scheduled to be ready for Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson this morning.

Those considering the appeal of the Northern West Virginia operators from Johnson's code amendment eliminating the 24-cent wage differential the area had enjoyed over Western Pennsylvania include Kenneth M. Simpson, divisional administrator; Wayne P. Ellis, deputy administrator; Dr. Leon Henderson, statistician, and F. E. Berquist, coal statistician.

Gen. Johnson was still away from Washington today but was reported in close touch with the situation by telephone.

The Northern West Virginia operators' committee remained in Washington waiting for a decision, but had obtained no new information as to when it would be due. Some of the operators were still hopeful that there would be action before the end of the day.

MAYVIEW SEEN AS 'APPALLING'

surgical cases, the committee urged.

There is now but one physician to every 175 patients in Mayview General Hospital, according to the report.

OVERCROWDED WARDS

Overcrowding of the insane wards is linked with an almost entire lack of recreation and exercise considered highly important in the treatment of psychopathic cases. The report read:

"If the operation of the farm at Mayview cannot be made more effective and useful to the institution than at present it should be abandoned."

The tuberculosis camp at Mayview was denounced in scathing terms by the committee members. They said:

"Housed in shacks, erected as temporary structures 27 years ago but still in use, it cannot be too bitterly condemned."

The committee urged the expansion of the city's facilities at Leech Farm to care for all tuberculous patients at Mayview.

The committee praised Welfare Director Southard Hay for taking steps to improve the food at Mayview and eliminate fire hazards.

SICKENING FOOD

Even though the menus have been changed, it is reported unofficially that one member of the committee sampled the patients' fare at Mayview and became exceedingly sick as a result. Poor handling of the food in storage and lack of proper preparation was discovered, according to one source.

At the Municipal Hospital, the committee discovered that it costs approximately twice as much to pay engineers at the power plant as it does to pay physicians for care of patients. Costly mechanical forces were found at the other institutions.

Director Hay has announced his opposition to the plan for a new Department of Hospitals. As an alternative, he has suggested that Leech Farm be taken over by the Welfare Department while the Municipal Hospital remains in the Health Department.

GOOD WORKERS PRAISED

Workers at the hospitals who have done their best under "discouraging handicaps" were praised by the committee.

The group included Dr. Alexander H. Colwell, chairman; Dr. I. D. Metzger, Dr. William O. Sherman, Dr. B. Z. Cashman, Dr. Ellis M. Frost, Dr. Susan Offutt, Dr. Charles A. Ley, Miss Jessie J. Turnbull, Sister M. Rose, Sister M. Laurentine, Miss Isabel P. Kennedy, Miss Rachel Beatty, Abraham Oseroff, Mark H. Eichenlaub, Mrs. J. O. Miller, Henry G. Yearick, and Mrs. Frank A. Bond.

Priest Urges U. S. Bank In Closing Radio Talk

DETROIT, April 16.—(AP.)—Assailing the Federal Reserve Banking System as within the control of international bankers, the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin yesterday termed it the "fountain head of malicious advice to presidential ears" and charged that it "stands between us and national recovery."

The address, the last of a series of 27 begun by Father Coughlin last fall, was broadcast over an independent radio hookup.

Father Coughlin assailed what he termed the "regimentation of industry and agriculture," which he said was desired only by Communists and the international bankers," and said that the Federal Reserve Banking System, "established to prevent depressions," had "run to cover like a cowardly slut when our financial system collapsed in March, 1933."

The militant priest recommended the establishment of a National Bank of the United States, with branches in every city "owned by the people of the United States," to be the depositary of every national bank in the country to establish adequate credit and currency. He also recommended the repeal of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913 preliminary to the establishment of such a bank.

In such a bank, he said, no individual should be permitted to own more than 50 per cent of the stock and earnings after a 6 per cent return to stockholders, should go into the Treasury of the United States.

Whether he would resume his addresses next fall, Father Coughlin said, had not yet been determined.

Exchange Bill to Curb Market Specialists

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Senator Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, today said he expected the sub-committee to incorporate in the stock market bill a provision barring specialists from trading in stocks for which they are acting as specialists.

The sub-committee planned to end consideration of the stock market measure today and to report it to the full committee tomorrow or Wednesday.

Margin requirements on present contracts would extend until June 30, 1936, according to another sub-committee decision. Previously under an amendment by Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, the period had ended on January 31, 1939.

Meanwhile presidential advisers today made a spirited drive to restore "teeth" to the stock market bill.

Prof. Raymond Moley, editor of Today and erstwhile dean of the advisers, came here to organize the effort. His presence was deemed necessary because of antagonism of committee members to Thomas G. Corcoran and Ben Cohen, youthful attorneys, who drafted much of the original bill.

YOUNG WOMAN ON WAY TO BE MARRIED

6 Dead and 15 Injured In Collision of Bus, Truck and Trailer

Two residents of Duquesne were among victims of the crash of a bus near Elyria, O., yesterday in which six were killed and 15 injured.

Samuel Novak, 20, of 1083 East Olive street, a graduate of the Duquesne High School, class of 1933, was killed. According to relatives, he was on his way to Battle Creek, Mich., where he expected to obtain work.

Miss Anna Schreba, 19, of 36 Milford avenue, Duquesne, was taken to an Elyria hospital, where her condition was regarded as serious. She was on her way to Detroit, where she was to become the bride of Ely Stepanovic.

For two weeks she had been living at the home of Benjamin Novak, a brother of the dead man, and had accompanied him to the bus station in company with John Novak, father of the dead youth.

Grand Jury to Probe Bus Crash Killing 6

ELYRIA, O., April 16.—(AP.)—A special session of the Lorain County grand jury will convene Thursday to investigate the truck-bus crash, which resulted in the death of six persons here early yesterday, Prosecutor Frank E Stevens announced today.

The prosecutor's announcement came after charges of manslaughter had been preferred against William Daniels, the bus driver, and Andrew Schaffer, truck driver. Early arraignment of the drivers before Justice J. J. Petro was indicated.

The crumpled chassis of a night bus told the tragic story of the crash, in which one woman was perhaps fatally hurt and 14 other persons received minor injuries.

SIX MEN KILLED

The men who died when a Pittsburgh - to - Chicago passenger bus collided with a truck and trailer outfit in the dark hours of early morning yesterday on United State route 20 east of here were:

SERBON, GEORGE, 45, of Youngstown.

KELLOG, EARL, 35, of Lansing, Mich.

NOVAK, SAMUEL, of Duquesne, Pa.

STALNAKER, FLOYD, of Akron, Ohio.

VASILOVICH, CHRISTO, 40, of Massillon, O.

FRYDRYCH, MICHAEL, 29, of New York City.

All were passengers on the bus.

TWO CRASHES

From the stories related to Ward and Prosecutor Stevens by the surviving passengers, drivers of the bus and the truck, it appeared that the bus first struck a parked truck and then crashed into the speeding truck and trailer, but the driver of a truck parked at the scene declared he had not stopped prior to the accident.

The injured, besides Mrs. Kaser, included William Daniels, 32, of Pittsburgh, driver of the bus, and E. O. Kirkpatrick, of Columbus, O., driver of the eastbound truck, neither of whom was seriously hurt.

All the bus passengers except Mrs. Brown were dozing or sleeping when the westbound bus was catapulted against the eastbound truck and trailer, driven by Kirkpatrick.

Daniels declared a parked truck loomed suddenly ahead, and that it had no tail light burning. He swung the wheel, the right windows of the bus were splintered by the high tail gate of the parked truck, and then the passenger-laden car reeled into the path of the eastbound truck.

ATTACK ON GIRL STIRS CAMPUS

International News Service.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., April 16.—Threats were rife in Colorado Springs today as police sought two Negroes who beat Georgia Charles Lindley, 22, beautiful and popular daughter of a wealthy Longview, Tex., oil family, into insensibility and slugged her escort, James L. O'Brien.

Miss Lindley was in a hospital, her body a mass of bruises. Inspector I. B. Bruce, of the Colorado Springs Police Department, said she had been struck 15 or 20 times in the eyes with the sharp heel of her slipper.

O'Brien was released from the hospital after physicians took 11 stitches in his head.

When word of the attack on the young couple reached the campus of Colorado College, which both attended, students paraded through downtown streets, firing revolvers and threatening violence. One suspect, George Williams, was arrested.

The two were returning from a dance early Sunday morning when attacked.

DOCTOR FIGHTS WIFE'S WILL.

One thousand dollars a month is not enough to meet the needs of Dr. R. J. McCready, his counsel argued today before Visiting Judge J. W. Dawson in Orphans' Court, renewing the attack on the will of Mrs. Matilda Craig McCready, the doctor's late wife.

R. T. M. McCready, brother of the doctor, and his counsel also contended that when Dr. McCready signed a pre-nuptial agreement 10 years ago, the amount of the estate had been withheld from him.

When Mrs. McCready, a Sewickley socialit, died a year ago, she bequeathed most of her $1,050,000 estate to charity, leaving a $12,000 annuity to her husband.

JESSEL EAGER TO WED NORMA

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 16.—

"I want to marry her as soon as she steps off the train."

George Jessel, comedian of the stage, screen and radio, was referring to Norma Talmadge, on her way East after her Mexican divorce from Joseph M. Schenck, motion picture producer.

Robert Milford, George's manager, said:

"This romance was one of love at first sight. Do you know when and where? It was nine years ago when Georgie was in 'The Jazz Singer.'

"Norma came to see the show. For four nights in a row she sat out in front with Eugene O'Brien, her leading man.

"One night O'Brien came back stage and said Miss Talmadge wanted to meet Georgie. I got worried:

"I went to Miss Talmadge. I wanted to tell her the thing was impossible. They were both married.

"I talked to her for more than two hours. Afterward I came back to Jessel and told him she was the only girl for him—and that still goes—after nine years."

STAR WITNESS IN MURDER VANISHES

Sweetheart of Suspect In Bradway Brown Slaying Sought

Universal Service.

MT. HOLLY, N. J., April 16.—As a machine gun patrol was assigned last night to guard the jail in which two prisoners are held in connection with the Bradway Brown murder, detectives announced that a girl, one of their star witnesses in the case, is missing.

She is the sweetheart of Edward Adamski, 28, of Philadelphia, who is said to have admitted Brown was shot when he surprised Adamski and a companion, Adam Szewozak, 24, as they were looting the Brown home in Palmyra, N. J., 15 months ago.

Sheriff Winan, of Burlington County, termed Adamski the "Dillinger of the East, or worse." He assigned three machine gun armed sentinels to pace the floor outside the prisoner's cell.

The sheriff added:

"No one is going to escape from this jail with a wooden pistol."

Also in the jail is Solomon Lutz, a barber, who was seized in New York City Friday. Lutz is reported to have told police he rented his automobile to Adamski and Szewozak the night of the killing.

The girl now missing was said to have supplied the clue by which police traced the car to Lutz. She was arrested three months ago when loot from several robberies was found in her Philadelphia apartment. After being lodged in jail for two weeks, she was released, with instructions to keep in touch with police headquarters.

When Philadelphia detectives went to her address to look for her last night, they found no trace of her.

SNAKE DANCER DIES AT 123

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Belle Rhynes, who attributed her long life to the fact that she had smoked a pipe since she was 11 years old, is dead.

Funeral services for the 123-year-old woman were held today.

Mrs. Rhynes, who died yesterday, had lived in this country since her eleventh year. She saw the United States involved in four major conflicts — the Mexican, Civil, Spanish-American and World wars. She was an infant at her birthplace in Ireland during the War of 1812.

When she was 121 years old, Mrs. Rhynes scoffed at being called old. She said then:

"I am as happy as a little pig in the sunshine and they talk about me being old! Why, Uncle John Shell was 130 and he started to get some wood to cook with when he fell dead in the yard."

During her early years Mrs. Rhynes was a circus snake dancer and charmer.

Crippled Girl Sings Of Triumph, Goes To White House

FAIRMONT, W. Va., April 16.—(AP.)—Nan Johnson, 18-year old cripple, who will sing Tuesday afternoon at the White House for President Roosevelt, yesterday morning sang her song of triumph over human travail.

At the First Presbyterian Church Nan's clear soprano voice rose to the notes of victory in the sacred song "Cast Thy Burden to the Lord." Her small body, warped from her waist down by the ravages of infantile paralysis, was staunch and erect.

Last night, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. George E. Johnson of Morgantown, the girl left by train for Washington, in response to the President's invitation.

Red Exile Uncovered By 'Stavisky Raid,' Plans New Revolt

BARBIZON, France, April 16.—(AP.)—Leon Trotzky, fearing an attack on his life by White Russians, fled today from his newly uncovered hiding place in Barbizon.

Neighbors said the Communist leader, an exile from Soviet Russia, and his wife left the secluded villa here where they had been in hiding for three months shortly after daybreak in a black automobile. Their destination was not revealed.

The Surete Generale started a hunt for the fugitive Soviet exile as soon as his disappearance became known.

GUARDED BY BARBED WIRE

His flight, after suspicious rural policemen had blundered into his forest refuge, was so sudden that the officials who had authorized his stay in the neighborhood were not aware of his departure.

The villa had a deserted air behind its barbed wire fence, but the house was still occupied by part of Trotzky's retinue. These persons, however, refused to talk on the telephone.

Trotzky toiling behind heavy locks and barbed wire with two guns in easy reach and police dogs menacing passersby, was discovered yesterday when gendarmes, expecting to find spies, counterfeiters, Stavisky gangsters or gun smugglers, raided his villa on the edge of the forest of Fontainebleau.

FEARS WHITE RUSSIANS

Trotzky said he hid himself behind the high wire fence with its two locked gates because of renewed threats on his life. He suspects White Russians. As a result of the threats, Trotzky was granted secret permission by France to come here four months ago, unknown to local authorities.

The former head of the Red Army of Russia told the authorities he was preparing a new party along Communistic lines. He calls it the "Fourth International," whose guiding principle is permanent revolution.

MARY AND DOUG QUARREL AGAIN

By WILLIAM PARKER

International News Service.

PARIS, April 17.—"Tell Douglas I want a teammate—not a wild horse of the mesa."

Because Mary Pickford, according to a close friend of Douglas Fairbanks, couched an ultimatum to the acrobatic American film star in words similar to those quoted, the Fairbanks-Pickford reconciliation negotiations, International News Service learned today, have struck a snag.

Miss Pickford, it was declared, made it a prerequisite to reconciliation that Douglas settle down and quit roaming all over the world. Fairbanks, according to the close friend, answered the ultimatum thus:

"If I stopped roaming I would not be Douglas Fairbanks. I would be a dead man."

CITY TO ENROLL PARROT OWNERS

All owners of parrots must immediately notify the City Health Department and furnish information about the birds, according to Director Ray P. Moyer.

Mayor McNair has signed the parrot ordinance designed to prevent spread of parrot fever. As a result the Health Department has prepared to destroy all birds of the psittacine family which have arrived in Pittsburgh since January 1, 1932, or which have been in contact with birds in pet shops.

Information required from owners by letter or telephone is name, address, variety and number of birds, and when and where purchased.

HOLLYWOOD, April 16.—(Universal.)—David Selznick, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer producer, accompanied by George Cukor, director, and Howard Estabrook, writer, will leave tomorrow for England to complete the cast for "David Copperfield," the Dickens masterpiece soon to go into production.

INSULL DENIES HE 'RAN AWAY' FROM U. S.

Ex-Utilities Magnate Says He 'Retired;' Tells of Career

S. S. EXILONA, AT SEA, April 16.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull declared today he did not "run away" when he left Chicago nearly two years ago for foreign parts. He declared:

"I had retired from all business connections. There was no talk of criminal action when I left. I departed as any other ordinary person would do."

The former utility magnate denied that his wife would join him at Catania, Sicily, tomorrow and return with him to the United States, where the aged Chicagoan faces criminal trial.

Sitting in the saloon of this American vessel, en route back to "face the music" in American courts which have laid fraud charges against him, he smoked his inevitable cigar, expounded a bit of philosophy, and discussed his business career.

TELLS MISTAKE

With only a few exceptions he did not, however, touch upon his present situation, so recently turned from fugitive to virtual prisoner of the United States authorities. He said:

"One of the greatest mistakes I made in my career was failure to anticipate the extent of the after-effects of the war on American business."

When a fellow passenger remarked that it looked like rougher weather in store for the night, Insull retorted:

"Why anticipate trouble? It is better to concentrate on enjoying the good things we have today."

Yesterday afternoon Insull obligingly posed for the photographers whom he had upbraided Saturday when the latter tried to snap his picture. He flared:

"My mug is my property."

'CORNERS' CIGARS

Insull is permitted to send and receive radio messages freely, providing that they are not for the purpose of creating legal complications at the Exilona's ports of call.

Already he has been in contact with the shore, receiving several radiograms Saturday night.

The Exilonia last night was well past Greece and steaming toward Sicily in the Mediterranean. The sea was sufficiently rough to give the ship a slight roll.

Insull bought up the ship's remaining stock of cigars yesterday, consisting of four 5-centers, and told fellow passengers he had cornered the supply.

The passengers, however, perceiving that Insull was a heavy smoker, had previously raided the stock and enjoyed a quiet laugh at his expense.

'AL' SAYS NILA CAN'T QUIT HIM

CHICAGO, April 16.—(AP.)—Nila Cram Cook's former cabin boy husband described their romance as the "oddest, strangest in history."

Arriving here early today from New York, Albert N. Hutchins expressed surprise that his wife sought an annulment of their marriage.

He said:

"But an annulment can't be granted after two people have lived together as we did. To get a divorce, Nila would need grounds, which I do not intend to give, and anyway that would take six months at least.

"No, I'm afraid Nila will have to stay married to me whether she likes it or not."

Mrs. Hutchins said in New York, in announcing her plans for an annulment in California, that her husband was "lost" out of his "romantic element and setting at sea."

Girl's Hiccough Attack Subsides

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 16.—(AP.)—The hiccoughs which have racked Dorothy Floyd, 18, for three months, have subsided.

Physicians were as puzzled by the sudden cessation of the attack as by the cause of the malady. The young woman still suffers periodic convulsions and has a throaty cough. She has been bedfast since January 14.

Twin Girls, 11, in Grip Of 'Stone' Disease

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—(AP.)—The dread ossification malady—which lays hold of its victims by gradually turning their muscles to stone-like hardness—was said by physicians today to have struck little Katherine and Margaret Maguire, 11-year-old twin sisters.

Already the girls have developed a marked rigidity in their neck and shoulder muscles, and their arms are stiffening.

No cure has been developed for the malady which is caused by improper deposits of calcium by the blood stream. Medical men explain that if it reaches a vital spot, the victim dies.

Peter Maguire, father of the girls, however, insists his daughters are not victims of the disease. Despite diagnosis of physicians, he maintains their trouble is arthritis.

When physicians examined Katherine Maguire in 1931—at the time she first showed symptoms of muscle stiffness—they, too, were inclined to the belief she suffered from arthritis. But knowing arthritis did not strike victims so young, they probed further.

A few days ago, Margaret showed signs of the same trouble. Hospital physicians and the family doctor agreed on the belief she also is a victim of the disease.

MAN HIT BY CAR AND DUG FROM TRAP ON RAILS

Two brothers were struck by a Carnegie street car in McCartney street, near the Greenwald stop early today.

One of them was thrown clear of the tracks, but the other was imprisoned under the car.

He was Albert Rieder, 27, of 1201 McCartney street. For half an hour rescuers worked furiously in an attempt to liberate the imprisoned man while his mother and sister stood by sobbing hysterically.

They had been brought to the scene by passers-by who had taken the other brother, Charles Rieder, 19, to his home nearby.

When the trolley crew failed to release the imprisoned man by lifting the car with jacks, policemen were summoned and aided in the rescue work. They went to work with shovels and at length succeeded in digging enough clearance to free Rieder.

Rieder was rushed to South Side Hospital, where it was said that his condition was fair. The younger brother, Charles, was treated at the hospital later for a sprained back, but was able to go home again.

The two Rieders, employed at the plant of the Seven Baker Brothers, in Independence street, were walking home from work when the accident occurred.

Following the rescue of the elder Rieder from under the car, his mother, Mrs. Anna Rieder, and his sister, Mrs. Louis Finger, were quieted and taken to the Rieder home.

PITT CAMPAIGN MEET CALLED

Joseph C. Trees, chairman of the Corporations Committee in the campaign for $1,650,000 for the Cathedral of Learning of the University of Pittsburgh, said today that his group would meet in the Cathedral building in Oakland Wednesday to check progress since inception of its work.

Acting as aides to Trees in this phase of the campaign which will be concluded by the end of May are Frank R. Phillips and Roy C. McKenna, vice chairmen. Dean E. A. Holbrook of the University is acting as aide to Trees also.

Homer D. Williams, president of the Pittsburgh Steel Company, general manager of the campaign, emphasized today the need for completing the tall building in which University activities will be centered. He pointed out that by raising $1,650,000 at this time the University would gain the advantage of CWA grants totaling $734,000, and would be able to make the building immediately effective. At present only six floors are available for classes, lectures and laboratories.

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

MAN, 50, LINKED IN GIRL SLAYING

SHREVEPORT, La., April 16.—(AP.)—Police sought a "pleasing" man of about 50 years of age today for the slaying of Mae Griffin, 15.

The girl's body was found in a woods near an exclusive section of West Shreveport, her throat slashed and her flowered yellow dress partly torn away. Dr. Willis Butler, Coroner, said there was evidence that the girl had been attacked criminally. He said she had been dead two or three days.

Mrs. Maggie Peters, widowed mother of the girl, told officers that after much persuasion she had consented to let her daughter accompany a "Mr. Jackson" to the latter's home, where it was understood the girl would serve as "a companion to his ill wife." The man had explained that he worked nights.

RUNAWAY BOY LIVES IN DESK

CHICAGO, April 16.—(AP.)—For three weeks a rolltop desk has been 12-year-old Walter Olson's home.

Walter stood in front of a downtown restaurant yesterday, his nose pressed against the plate glass. A policeman asked him where he lived, and he explained.

He ran away from a children's home three weeks ago, when he heard his father had been released from prison. His parents had moved, and unable to trace them found an abandoned desk in a back corridor where he slept each night.

Police fed Walter, returned him to the home, and started an investigation.

Twenty-three municipal workers of West Homestead, due to receive their pay today, will have to wait a while longer, it was said at the Municipal Building. They have been without pay six weeks. At the next meeting of Council, May 7, Council will take steps to obtain the money in some other manner.

6 about Cigarettes

As to the cigarette paper on Chesterfields

THIS reel of cigarette paper is sufficient to make 42,000 Chesterfield Cigarettes. It is of the finest manufacture.

In texture, in burning quality, in purity, it is as good as money can buy.

Cut open a Chesterfield cigarette. Remove the tobacco and hold the paper up to the light. If you know about paper, you will at once note the uniform texture—no holes, no light and dark places. Note also its dead white color.

If the paper is made right—that is, uniform—the cigarette will burn more evenly. If the paper is made right—there will be no taste to it and there will be no odor from the burning paper.

Other manufacturers use good cigarette paper; but there is no better paper made than that used on Chesterfields. You can count on that!

PALMER HOLDS BANK PAYOFF NECESSARY

This is the second of two arguments made by A. Mitchell Palmer, former Attorney General of the United States, in support of the McLeod bill before the sub-committee of the Banking and Currency Committee of the House of Representatives.

By A. MITCHELL PALMER

my previous statement I devoted myself entirely to an attempt to show what I called the moral obligation of the government to pay off the depositors in the closed banks.

I repeat, there does exist the strongest kind of moral obligation on the part of the government to take care of these depositors.

In the history of banking in the last 15 or 20 years, the system of examination and supervision which was contemplated by the original National Bank Act grew into a system of absolute control of the investments and the policies of national banks.

The additional thing I want to call your attention to is this, and it does seem to me it fails irrevocably this moral obligation of the government to take care of these unfortunate persons whose deposits lie in the closed banks throughout the country.

ACTION LAWFUL

After the government, properly and lawfully, I will confess, had insisted that all of the national banks should have these secondary reserves and had put them into the market so that a large part of their community's money was invested in New York Stock Exchange securities when the emergency came as the inevitable will always happen, and values melted away as the winter's snow melts before the sun of spring, until there was little or nothing left, what did the government do about these investments which it had required these banks to make?

It told the national banks that they could not tell the truth about their bond investments, to their customers and to the public, and it permitted, nay, it directed the national banks to carry their bonds at cost regardless of the market, and it required only that bonds which were in default should be carried with the necessary depreciation.

All of these bonds which were paying interest, possibly were carried at figures in the bank's books tremendously higher than their actual value in the market.

STATEMENTS REQUIRED

Now, the law requires that the banks shall at certain periods make public statements of their condition, sworn to by the cashier and attested by three directors. Under control of the comptroller's office these statements of conditions went out to the public, and they were not statements of conditions, they were mere reprints of book entries.

The original purpose of the act in requiring such public statements to be given to the people was that the public might know whether their banks were sound or not. All this amounted to was that the government was telling the people these banks are sound. It was done, possibly with an entirely patriotic purpose to regain the confidence of the people in the banks of the country, and with the knowledge on the part of the comptroller's office that if the bank directors and officers printed the truth about these investments probably two-thirds of the banks of the country would appear to have their capital impaired, a condition which they did not at that time want to appear.

COURSE NOT CENSURED

Now, I do not criticize that course. It may have been wise in the circumstances, it may have been the proper thing for them to do, to bolster up the banking situation, but having done it, and the prices not having come back, the government cannot possibly evade its responsibility in the premises.

The government, when it permitted the banks and directed the banks to carry their bonds in their published statements at false prices, took the chances in the matter; they took the chance that if the bonds came back to book values, then the statement would not be criticized, and if they had a loss ensuing certainly the directing power is the responsible power.

It does seem to me that thought completely answers the allegation that there is no responsibility on the part of the government with respect to these losses.

Who knows how many millions of dollars are now lying in closed banks inaccessible to their owners because the persons who put them there relied upon the statement of condition published by the bank in the local papers? Nobody can compute it, but those statements and the result of it was and the purpose was to get the people to were published for some purpose, bring their money to the bank.

OBLIGATION CITED

Now, I say to you gentlemen, whether it amounted to a guarantee or not, is not important, but that course of action on the part of the government amounted to an obligation, which it would be unpardonable and immoral for the government to attempt now to escape.

There is a difference between a forced sale value and reasonable value. There is a difference between market value and prospective market value.

What this bill proposes, as I take it, is that we will take advantage in the depositors interest of the prospective market value in the hope that the recovery program now pushed on so many fronts will succeed.

My friend the comptroller and the other gentlemen in their statements spoke of the valuations made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's examiners, but those valuations were made on the theory of bankruptcy rather than recovery and their appraisements were extremely low.

SHOULD 'HOLD BAG'

I would say if it be true that the government has this obligation it ought to hold the bag for a long period of time, and the best feature of the McLeod bill is that it gives the Reconstruction Finance Corporation 10 years in which to liquidate itself out.

Mr. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, has loaned money on the basis of the value of assets which were appraised at prices in the trough, and on the theory they will be out in three or five years, and I think both of those principles are wrong.

The depositors are entitled to their deposits whether the government takes a licking in that process or not.

If you will give a receivership like the Reconstruction Finance Corporation 10 years in which to turn those over, with instructions that they shall take the benefit of as much of that time as necessary to recover the prices in proportion to the amount paid out to depositors, you will have a very slight problem if we come back into normal times.

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

We urge immediate Congressional action on the bill introduced by Representative McLeod.

D. A. R. LEADER URGES DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP.)—"Adequate national preparedness on land, sea and air" was advocated today by Mrs. Russell William Magna, president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in opening the forty-third Continental Congress of the organization.

She also urged "national security against crime, subversive forces, intrigue and exploitation."

Asserting the D. A. R. must remain aloof from patriotic "superorganizations," she contended it must accomplish its patriotic ends by education, not criticism.

BANK GUARANTY BILL SOUGHT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Charges that proposed postponement of the full bank deposit guaranty plan for one year is a move to destroy the whole guaranty system were made in the House Banking Committee today.

The committee began consideration of the bill, which was passed by the Senate and requested by President Roosevelt, with Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, explaining the request. Representative Goldsborough (Dem.), of Maryland, said to Crowley:

"You may not know it, but any one with any legislative experience knows that it is a move to destroy deposit insurance."

Representative Busby (Dem.), of Mississippi, denounced the plan as "a colossal fraud" and joined Goldsborough in opposition to the bill.

He suffered a broken back when the plane crashed as he prepared to land following a stunt exhibition.

sets in an effort to keep banks open.

The revised McLeod bill is now before the House Rules Committee, which has the power to give it preferred status and to bring it to a vote. Rainey declared:

"I do not see much objection to the amended bill."

The Speaker said that the McLeod bill was not mentioned at last night's conference between the President and House leaders.

SEEK CONFERENCE

With one-third of the House and a large number of senators already on record for the McLeod bill, it promised to become a storm center until some agreement is reached with the administration.

Backers of the measure declined to accept President Roosevelt's jocular references to reimbursement of persons who lost money in banks many years ago or in private business as an answer to their contentions.

A conference will be sought with the President to explain in detail the bill and the reasons which prompted 145 House members to speedily sign a petition to bring it to the floor.

The McLeod bill, sponsors argue, provides for reimbursement only for banks now closed. Hundreds of thousands of depositors, they claim, left their money in banks solely because government officials urged them to do so in their campaign against hoarding.

CITES OBLIGATION

Other depositors, asserted Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, author of the bill, left their money in banks because the bank statements appeared favorable. And the bank statements, he maintained, were false because the government permitted banks to carry assets at far more than their worth in their effort to prevent wholesale bank failures. McLeod asserted:

"There is a definite moral obligation on the part of the government because of these factors, as well as others."

PRESS FOR RULING

Opponents of the measure, however, insist that since there was no guarantee of deposit system in operation and banks were private institutions, there is neither moral nor legal obligation on the part of the government.

The government loss—if any—would not be more than on many Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans, the McLeod bill supporters contend. The government would liquidate the assets over a 10-year period. It also would receive the double assessments paid by bank stockholders.

Release of upwards of two thousand million dollars of funds, McLeod says, would provide a powerful stimulus to business.

McLeod's application for a rule to consider the bill will be made to the Rules Committee. If the committee fails to act this week, McLeod plans to inaugurate another petition to bring it to the floor.

enced by depositors in closed banks has been averted.

Accordingly considerations of good business and of humane policy combine to urge the passage of the McLeod bill.

The issue at stake is too vital to permit of comtemptibly shoddy political maneuvers.

Congress should adopt the bank liquidation bill—and should do so PROMPTLY.

There is no decent justification for delay.

REPORTER BAN ASKED IN HOUSE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Representative Tom Blanton, Texas Democrat, today began a movement to bar representatives of Hearst newspapers and the Associated Press from the press gallery today—but dropped it after provoking debate.

Blanton rising to a question of privilege, offered a resolution banning the newspaper men for printing names of members signing a petition to discharge committees.

Blanton's ire was first aroused by the printing of names of signers of the petition to discharge the Banking Committee from consideration of the McLeod bank pay-off bill.

KAPPEL MARINE ETCHINGS ON DISPLAY

By PENELOPE REDD

An exhibition of some 30 marine etchings by Philip Kappel is on view at the Wunderly Galleries through April 30.

Miss Redd

Mr. Kappel, although but 33 years old, is represented in many famous print collections, including that of the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris; the Congressional Library and also the U. S. National Museum in Washington; the art museums in Atlanta, Cleveland, Hartford, and the Corcoran Gallery in Washington.

KNOWS WAYS OF SHIPS

Pertinent to Kappel's choice of subjects is the fact that the Peabody Museum in Salem, rich in marine lore, has also acquired his prints.

The evidence would indicate that Mr. Kappel really does know the sea and the ways of ships. His earliest etchings seem to have been concentrated around the coast of Maine and of Massachusetts. To an ignorant landlubber, the "Maine" in which pine trees frame a neat little boat gliding by and "Lifting Fog, Maine Coast," are among the most luminous in the show.

RECORDS VOYAGES

"The Tusitala," a portrait of James E. Farrell's boat, has been approved by James Barker, the ship's captain, who taught Mr. Kappel the rudiments of navigation. This boat is the only square-rigger sailing under the American flag today. The strongly-bitten lines to represent the power of the sea and and the modeling of the hull and rigging will satisfy those only concerned with the picture as an etching.

Other prints record Mr. Kappel's voyages to the West Indies, to South America, and to the Orient. Although, his subject is specialized, his technical skill will compel admiration and his genuine enthusiasm will be communicated to the observer. Inlanders will enjoy the breath of the sea in Philip Kappel's plates.

ART EXHIBIT OPENS HERE

An exibit of 55 bronzes by Malvina Hoffman, American sculptress, opened today at Carnegie Institute and will continue through May 13.

The bronzes are small replicas of the figures Miss Hoffman made for the Field Museum, Chicago.

Miss Hoffman, who spent five years in traveling through remote places of the world modelling members of various races, held an exhibition of sculpture at Carnegie Institute here in 1929.

The Institute owns her "Head of Pavlowa" done in wax and presented by Mrs. William Reed Thompson.

Miss Hoffman also modelled the bust of Henry Clay Frick which stands in the foyer of the Frick Building.

LARGER ARMY ADVOCATED BY CONGRESSMAN

Universal Service

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Revealing the United States Army has dwindled in numbers until it now ranks but seventeenth in the world in size, Representative Clark W. Thompson (Dem.), of Texas today will introduce legislation in Congress providing for an increase of 50,000 men.

The United States Army now totals but 118,000 men and 12,000 officers.

Representative Thompson's bill would increase it to 165,000 men and 14,063 officers.

The increase, vital for national defense, will not cost the taxpayers an added dollar, Thompson declared. It provides the added recruits shall be secured from volunteers now on various federal employment relief rolls. Officers would be secured from the Reserve Corps.

Pointing out the existing force is inadequate to "insure domestic tranquility and provide for common defense," as stipulated in the Constitution, the Texas Congressman asserted the United States Army now ranks below that of Greece.

WARNING CITED

Thompson indorsed the warning of Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, that the Army is now "below the danger line." He asserted the major provisions of his proposed enactment embody recommendations advanced by MacArthur himself.

Of the reduced status of the nation's military forces, as compared with the vast area to be defended, Thompson said:

"Our total army (including the trained reserves) is smaller than that of Greece.

"Our entire combat force could be comfortably seated in the Yankee Stadium."

McKeesport Squad Opens Vice Cleanup

Three week-end raids were made by the new vice squad appointed by Police Chief John L. Whalen to "clean up" McKeesport's vice spots.

Facing Police Court hearings today were Mrs. Marie Dragula, 36, of 1201 Main street, and Mrs. Dorothy Keraffic, 40, of 411 Sheridan street, both accused of violating the liquor laws. Four men and four women were arrested in an alleged disorderly house in Penney avenue.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

Senate Row Mere Slapstick for Taxpayers

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The two weeks' riot staged in the Senate on the tax bill was really only a harmless little game of whacking the taxpayer with barrel slats. The sting will not be commensurate with the noise.

Judging from the headlines, you would think next year's taxes are going to be something terrific. First, the Senate soaked the rich with extreme estates and surtaxes and then lambasted everyone with a general 10 per cent increase for good measure.

Administration Manipulator Pat Harrison has welts on his body from the beatings he has taken, but there is a strange, worried look in his eye. He knows what will happen.

He will take the Senate bill into a little room, where he will meet the administration leaders from the House. They will sit down and write a tax bill which will be just as far away from the Senate's wishes as the administration dares to go.

Preliminary arrangements for that conclusion already have been made quietly on the inside.

PLAY

The Senate Liberals started the game.

The administration was not asking for more taxes, but the Liberals always want more. They come from rural sections where few people pay income taxes. Ordinarily they would not have had a chance to overthrow the administration, but President Roosevelt's veto message on the veterans' pay restorations played right into their hands.

Mr. Roosevelt said Congress had endangered the budget by giving the veterans and government employes $228,000,000 more than the budget allowed. He probably did not really mean that, but it was a good argument for his veto.

The Liberals took him at his word and began proposing every kind of tax they could think of, knowing he could not object. Some of them were sincere, but many just wanted to get on record as soaking the rich because they are running for re-election this year.

PROSPECTS

What will happen in the end is that the 10 per cent flat general increase will be dropped gently out of the window by the conference committee.

The strong Senate estates and surtax rates will be moderated, if not completely abandoned.

In the end, the rich will suffer, but not as much as the Senate Liberals wanted them to suffer.

As for the average taxpayer, the new bill probably will mean a reduction in the end, instead of an increase. For all married men whose incomes are less than $11,500, the bill will provide reduction. The rates will be the same as existing rates, but new deductions are going to be allowed for earned income. They will affect everyone who does not make a living clipping coupons.

For incomes above $11,500, and for coupon clippers, the ultimate bill probably will provide a moderate increase.

FIGURES

That Mr. Roosevelt's $228,000,000 veto estimate was much too high is now quite evident.

The difference between him and Congress on the World War veterans' restorations probably will amount to no more than $30,000,000 a year. He agreed to the restoration of everything Congress wanted, except the presumptive cases. He even promised to put 75 per cent of those back on the rolls temporarily by executive order. His concessions were not included in his original budget, but he agreed to make them, so it is fair to say that Congress exceeded his expectations on World War veterans by no more than $30,000,000 a year.

A more definite estimate can be made on the employes' pay restorations. This fiscal year, they will cost $26,000,000 more than the budget; next year, $63,000,000 more.

Any way you figure the totals, they fall far below $228,000,000.

REFORM?

As matters now stand, Mr. Roosevelt appears to have broken up about half of the veterans' rackets, perhaps more.

Certain non-partisans in closest touch with veterans' affairs say the total of government expense for veterans now will be about $250,000,000 a year less than when Mr. Roosevelt started to economize. That is about one-fourth of the former cost.

The reforms have eliminated those who got on the rolls through their own misconduct, fraud or mistake, as well as those who enlisted after actual fighting was over. Hospitalization allowances have been cut. Whatever improper cases there were among the presumptive are now back on the rolls, as well as those able-bodied, working citizens with minor scars who are getting an allowance for disabilities which do not exist.

THE BANKHEAD BOYS
JASPER
ALABAMA
CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM B.
SENATOR JOHN H.
THE BANKHEAD BOYS, OF JASPER, ARE NOW PERFORMING THEIR FAMOUS BROTHER ACT ON CAPITOL HILL. JOHN H. IS IN THE SENATE AND WILLIAM B. IS IN THE HOUSE. IT IS AN IDEAL ARRANGEMENT FOR IT MAKES SURE GETTING ALL BANKHEAD MEASURES INTRODUCED IN BOTH THE HOUSE AND THE SENATE. THEIR LATEST OFFERING IS THE BANKHEAD COTTON BILL DESIGNED TO TAX SURPLUS BALES OF THAT STAPLE.
Malone—Washington-'34.

NOTES

You never saw a more sheepish looking crowd than the congressmen at the station to greet Mr. Roosevelt. They looked as if they had just been caught in the jam jar and knew they were going to get a lecture. All those ill health stories circulated during Mr. Roosevelt's absence were false. He did not feel well the first few days on the Nourmahal, but recuperated fast thereafter. The ill health rumors came from Wall Street. Apparently they were originated by persons desiring to influence the stock market. A certain senator was planning to make a speech about Huey Long one day not long ago. Huey went to him before the Senate met and had a little conference. The senator did not make the speech. Huey's magic words in the conference are supposed to have been:

"I would advise you not to make that speech because I have one in my mind about you which is a humdinger, and if you don't make yours, I won't make mine."

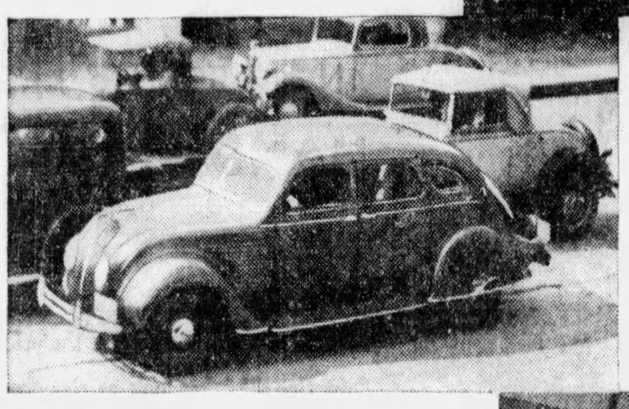
WANTED: 6 MOTORISTS FOR A NEW ADVENTURE

THE BIGGEST THRILL SINCE YOUR FIRST FLIGHT... We invite six motorists to share this new travel adventure. Why six? Because this is the first time that six people have been able to ride in one car in absolute comfort.

Step through wide doors . . . relax in deep seats cradled in chromium . . . three in front and three in back and still room to spare. You glide away without sound or quiver. "It's the closest thing to flying on wheels." You've heard that before, perhaps. Never mind. You'll find that for once a car lives up to all of its promises.



BRING YOUR NEWSPAPER AND BE PREPARED TO RELAX... For once . . . a real change has been made in basic design. De Soto has put the engine where it had never been before . . . but where proper distribution of weight says it ought to be, De Soto puts you where you have never been before . . . cradled between the wheels where the ride is smoothest. Bring your newspaper. Read it in comfort at any speed . . . over all kinds of roads . . . good, bad and indifferent.

This car is even built differently. Frame and body are one all-steel unit . . . not two separate parts. This makes it 40 times more rigid (and therefore safer) than any car you have ever traveled in before.

MAY WE PUT THIS CAR AT YOUR DISPOSAL?... We ask for six motorists. Of course we mean six at a time. We're prepared to ride sixty . . . six hundred . . . six thousand. And never mind whether you're thinking of buying a new car just now or not. We just want to bring you up to date.

We want you to see how much is accomplished when engineers forget tradition and build a car the way it ought to be built for smoothest riding, greatest speed, most efficient use of power. There's no obligation and your time is our time.

Thousands of Applications for Memberships Arrive: Wing-Pins to Be Mailed in Few Days

By LAWRENCE SHAW, National Director

Greetings, junior birdmen! Already thousands and thousands of boys and girls throughout the country have joined our new nationwide organization for air-minded enthusiasts and each of the 17 newspapers, carrying this daily Junior Birdmen column and sponsoring a Junior Birdmen wing, have received bag loads of applications for membership. Boys and girls of all ages are seeking this opportunity to become one of the first members and enjoy the activities of the organization right from the start.

If you haven't sent your membership application in as yet, now is the time to do so! The coupon at the bottom of this page is your application blank. Clip it out, fill it in, enclose a 10-cent piece and address your envelope to the Junior Birdmen of America, care of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and we will do the rest

Membership Wings On Their Way

The fact that you have not as yet received your membership materials means nothing! No one has as yet. As a matter of fact, the Junior Birdmen pins are now winging their way across the country by fast plane from the huge emblem factory which is turning out the first order of one-half million Group "A" gold wings, and one-half million Group "B" silver wings.

The membership cards, leaflets explaining how to organize your own flight squadron, membership letters and other material are already on hand and just as soon as those wings arrive at the airport they will be rushed to the local Junior Birdmen office and memberships will be placed in the mails immediately. So just have a little patience and watch for the mailman the latter part of the week. He is sure to have the good news for you by then.

Yesterday, in our first Junior Birdmen column, I cautioned every boy and girl, when applying for membership, to be sure to state his or her correct age so that each member may be placed in the proper age group. The boys and girls 15 years of age and under will be sent silver wings and silver membership cards. The boys and girls 16 years of age and over will be sent gold wings and gold membership cards.

Now, let me show you just what may happen should you for any reason enter yourself in the wrong age group, along around next month, when our various model-plane meets and general contest begin—such as a funny-bone contest, slogan contest, aviation puzzle contest, etc.,—you will be entering these activities in pursuit of the many handsome prizes that we will offer. In each event, two groups of awards will be made, one for the group "A" members, one for the group "B" members. Both groups of awards will be alike, thus giving the younger of the junior birdmen an equal opportunity to win in competition with the older boys and girls.

Should you at any time become a winner in any model meet or any contest conducted through our daily column, your correct age will be checked through your school and the proper records obtained, where possible, from your official birth records. Should it be found that you misrepresented your age, your prize will be forfeited since you are not a member of the age group for which you applied. And of course you cannot be a winner in the proper age group to which you should belong because you did not enter the model meet or contest as a member of that group.

In addition, any boy or girl who does not enter the club in his or her proper age group will be penalized by having his membership voided for a period of 30 days.

Local Interest In Columns

For the beginning, while our Junior Birdmen membership is being organized, this column is emanating from the offices of your national director as it entails the general organizing of the nationwide wings. However, in a week or so your own local wing commander, from time to time, will be writing this column and publishing news of your own wing. This will include news of the activities of members, local aviation items of particular interest, minutes of the more important flight squadron meetings, and other personal news such as questions and answers that you may send to him.

This column also will contain photographs of new members, probably about two each day. When sending in for your membership it might be well to include a picture of yourself, if you have one. But be sure that it is a good, clear picture such as can be used for newspaper reproduction. And be sure, too, that you write your name and address on the back of it. Photographs of members will not be returned unless the member so requests, and then postage must be included.

Of course when we start organizing our flight squadron—and remember that any member may organize a Junior flight squadron in his or her city, town or neighborhood—we will also include group photographs of these units as well as those of the commanders and captains whose meritorious work deserves this honor. However, your local wing commanders are so busy getting ready to send out memberships when the drone of that plane above the local airports tells him that the "wings are in," that it will not be possible to start work on the building of these flight squadron units immediately.

When you get your wings and membership cards, an enclosed leaflet will also give you the details for organizing your unit so that you can start right in making plans and when the word "go" is given, you can be one of the first to have a flight squadron of your own.

Features and Activities In Preparation

Many features are already in preparation for your daily column and the first will begin next week. It will be a dictionary of aviation words, terms and phrases, more technically known in aeronautics as a nomenclature. This will be, by far, the most complete set of definitions, pertaining to junior aviation and aeronautics, ever published and will run in a series.

Although the exact date has not as yet been set, the first set of 10 definitions will appear some time the latter part of next week and an additional 10 will be published about three times a week thereafter until the entire series is completed. There will probably be about 50 sets in all.

And right now you should start preparing your scrap book of aviation material. Perhaps you will want to save the entire junior birdmen column each day. That really is the best idea. Then you can add to your scrap book any pictures and news stories about aviation you wish, or perhaps you may just cut out of our column the various features which you think most deserve being saved, such as the aviation dictionary, photos of interesting insignias on the U. S. Army planes which will also begin soon, and others.

This is up to you. But each member, boy and girl, group "A" and group "B," should have a scrap book. You will find it invaluable when we start publishing articles on model building, a beginners' course in junior aeronautics, articles on aerodynamics, the control of aircraft, navigation, etc., by famous fliers and pilots.

Happy Landings!

If you are not yet a member of the Junior Birdmen, join now so that you will be able to participate in our first contest to be announced shortly. If you have already sent in your application —then just listen for that mailman's whistle. He will be having good news for you in a few days.

GATTY PRAISES BIRDMEN PLAN

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Harold Gatty, who flew around the world with Wiley Post, today heartily indorsed the Junior Birdmen movement sponsored by the Hearst newspapers. He said:

"It is an excellent idea and the movement has my sincerest best wishes for success.

"It should appeal to every red-blooded boy and girl in America. Here, for the first time, is a community effort to learn about aviation from all angles.

"There has been a great need for information about aviation questions which arise in the minds of the nation's youth.

"Not only will the Junior Birdmen be participating in an intensely patriotic work, but they will be receiving instruction in information which will prove invaluable to them."

12 HERE TO GET 'WINCHELL ORCHIDS'

Twelve Pittsburgh district residents who have quietly devoted their lives to doing exceptional services for their communities will receive "Winchell orchids" as a token of their neighbors' appreciation.

In conjunction with National Flower Week, local members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association will send orchids to the 12 persons nominated through the Sun-Telegraph between April 17 and 22.

"Winchell orchids" are named for Walter Winchell, the Sun-Telegraph's Broadway columnist.

To aid the association in selecting the orchid awards, readers of this paper are asked to write the Winchell Orchid Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, making their suggestions, with detailed explanations of their nominations.

The unusual services eligible for orchid awards may be community-wide or confined to neighborhoods and organizations. The first two awards will be announced Tuesday.

BENEFIT DANCE FOR HOSPITAL

Plans for a benefit dance and card party have brought new hope to crippled children, patients in the children's clinics of St. John's Hospital, North Side.

A committee of 49, doctors, internes, nurses and nurse alumnae of the hospital expect more than a thousand couples to attend the benefit in the William Penn Hotel, Friday night, April 27.

Proceeds will buy the crutches, braces, and medical supplies needed to straighten the twisted limbs of small children and to relieve their suffering.

St. John's Hospital treats more than 100 children's cases a month, including many children social workers bring for treatment from the Woods Run Settlement.

Miss Irene Castner, chairman of the Nurse's Alumnae Association, is chairman of the benefit committee.

Fall Down Stairs Fatal to Girl, 17

A fall down a stairway in her home several days ago proved fatal to Fannie Albert, 17, Gilmore street, in the City Hospital at Mayview yesterday, the Morgue reported. She died of internal injuries.

HAY URGES NEW TAG DAY LAW

A new tag day ordinance to better regulate such benefits and the repeal of two existing conflicting ordinances has been urged by Welfare Director Southard Hay and a group of leaders in social work.

The ordinance is being drawn in the law department and will be introduced in Council soon.

Tag days are now supposed to be governed by two ordinances, one of which prohibits them altogether and another which allows the Public Safety Director to grant permits for such collections to charitable organizations not oftener than once a year.

Director Hay has suggested that charitable organizations should register complete information with him a week previous to the tag day, and make a report afterwards on the funds collected.

Fifteen tag days are scheduled at present in the Welfare Department.

A rescue party, including Premier John Bracken and Mayor Webb, ran to his aid and he resumed the journey.

A BEAUTY Secret...

THE modern woman thinks very little of spending three or four dollars a month for beauty aids . . . often she spends much more. Powder, rouge, lipstick, face-creams, shampoos and permanent waves . . . they're all part of the eternal search for beauty, which has become so much a part of her make-up. But who will blame her for trying to look her best? However, there is one beauty secret seldom revealed as such . . . it's Electricity. In a dozen ways everyday, Electricity is preserving the youth and beauty of thousands of women. Electric washers, ironers, sweepers and other labor-saving appliances not only help to keep them looking young, but protect their health, and allow them hours of freedom from arduous work. Sufficient electric light for reading or sewing, and other household tasks, prevents the appearance of those tell-tale little wrinkles around their eyes, which squinting in poor light often causes. Electricity . . . a vital beauty secret . . . and so inexpensive! The average family electric bill in Pittsburgh was only $2.82 per month in 1933, less than the price of a permanent wave, or a few jars of face cream—but much more important.

CONVICTS BRAVE SCIENTIFIC DEATH

DENVER, April 16.—(AP.)—A life term convict who doesn't "want to die" and another who has "nothing to lose and a lot to gain" were ready today to stake their lives in a scientific experiment which may mean their freedom—if it doesn't kill them

The two, Carl Erickson, 60, and Mike Schmidt, 56, were chosen from among 800 volunteers at the Colorado Penitentiary at Canon City to be subjected to inoculations of a serum which Denver scientists hope may prove a tuberculosis preventive.

Said Edickson, who was sentenced in 1915 on a charge of stabbing to death his wife, an alleged narcotic addict:

"If I can help the doctors do something with this serum test I will, but I am a little fearful of the result for me."

He added:

"I don't want to die. I volunteered to help so I could get out of here and work my mining property."

Schmidt, a native of Saratov, Russia, who was sentenced for a statutory offense, observed:

"I have spent 11 years here and I don't know whether it is worth trading to take a chance with death or not. My family is all grown and don't need me, so really I have nothing to lose and a lot to gain, but I don't exactly relish the idea of making an experiment out of myself.

"However, I volunteered, and I will go through with my word to the end. If I get out, I won't live with my family, but will seek a job in some other part of the country."

Gov. Ed C. Johnson promised that at the conclusion of the experiments the prisoners chosen would be recommended for executive clemency. Schmidt and Erickson have good prison records.

The serum was developed by Dr. H. J. Corper and his associate scientists at the National Jewish Hospital in Denver and has been reported effective in immunizing small animals. Dr. Corper will keep secret details of the tests until he can report definite reactions.

GARNER TO MISS KIN'S BURIAL

EL PASO, Tex., April 16.—(AP.)—The suicide of Jolly Garner, 48-year-old brother of John Nance Garner, was attributed today to a nervous illness which, friends said, was supplemented by the fear that he was not worthy of his relationship to the Vice President.

Jolly Garner, a United States customs patrolman on the Mexican border, shot himself to death Saturday night at his home here. Alvin C. Ash, his father-in-law, said the family had not realized the seriousness of his condition, and added:

"Jolly, during the time he was suffering from ill health, would spend hours talking about his brother John and expressing fear that he was not worthy of him. If a person ever was proud of another man, Jolly was proud of the Vice President."

Vice President Garner said in Washington he would be unable to attend funeral services for his brother.

MOTOR OFFICIAL TO TALK HERE

The automobile as a factor in the return of prosperity to the Pittsburgh district will be the topic of a talk by C. E. Wilson, former Pittsburgher and vice president of the General Motors Corporation, at a noon luncheon Thursday by the Chamber of Commerce.

Willibald Trinks, one of the founders of the Society of Automotive Engineers here, will act as toastmaster.

Wilson is a graduate of Bellevue High School and Carnegie Institute of Technology.

NEW METHODS TOLD DOCTORS

CHICAGO, April 16.—(AP.)—Saving people from threatened amputation of limbs by a "massage" treatment, and new progress in preventing insanity by mosquito bites were reported today to the opening session of the American College of Physicians.

"The massage" treatment, used to treat diseased blood vessels in arm and legs, has in some cases saved the limbs of people who otherwise would have to have them amputated, because it prevented their infection with gangrene, said Dr. Eugene M. Landis, of Philadelphia.

Preventing insanity with mosquito bites that serve as a method of infecting a patient with malaria has had "very satisfactory results," it was reported by Dr. Paul A. O'Leary, of Rochester, Minn.

The mosquito bite may be either a real one from a malaria-infected mosquito or an artificial "bite" given by injecting malaria germs in a serum made from saliva glands of mosquitoes that have been removed by one of the world's most delicate surgical operations.

PARIS WORKERS IN HOUR STRIKE

PARIS, April 16.—(AP.)—Public service employes of France folded their arms for an hour today in a defiant "national protest day" strike against pay cuts.

The halt was devoted to demonstrations the country over against Premier Gaston Doumergue's recent economy decress affecting government workmen and war veterans.

Premier Doumergue, who decreed 10 per cent salary cuts for public service employes and followed with an order for reductions in veterans' pensions, remained unmoved by the protest.

His firm hand was seen by some in the dismissing of 29 employes of the Central Telegraphic Bureau of Paris. Daily demonstrations there caused an uproar last week.

"Two things I wanted—

"I found out my trouble—

"... more strength and a clear skin."

It is well to remember that a probable reason why you do not have red lips, rosy cheeks, a clear skin, good health, energy and cheerfulness is that your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemo-glo-bin, the red-coloring of the blood, may also cause a weakened condition of the body ... loss of strength ... poor appetite.

Neglect of diet, worry, overwork, colds or sickness, frequently break down and retard the natural development of the red-blood-cells and their oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin.

Why not set in motion the rebuilding of these precious blood-cells instead of procrastinating and sacrificing your appearance and the feeling of being well and fit?

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. It is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite ... your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. Its value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

You will find S.S.S. at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger is more economical. © The S.S.S. Co.

"... and it was all so simple ... my physician said I had no organic disease, but I did have what is so commonly and truthfully called a low percentage of hemo-glo-bin in the blood. It didn't take S.S.S. very long to get my blood back up to normal ... and as my strength and energy returned my skin cleared up."

Perfect Man Is Symbolized By Cathedral Worker

Hercules, by heck!

I muttered that, standing there, looking up at the Cathedral of Learning, and yet not seeing the building at all.

It was the last wag of the working hour. The whistle would blow any minute. And every man, then, scurrying like rats to portholes on sinking ships, would be hurrying eastward, westward. They'd be climbing into old, tire-worn cars or dropping street car tokens into the open mouths of fare boxes. They'd be seeking shacks on the hill. Or small houses in the environs.

Hercules, by heck! That was what HE was. On a ladder, there in the great Gothic archway of the new base of the skyscraper of knowledge. He stood on that ladder, in overalls. The light shining ahead of him, like hope on a jag. And shadows in the background. He was the outline of the PERFECT MAN. Strong in sinew. Great in height. And static as a piece of sculpture made by Rodin.

Marion Brunot

What was his special work? Was he putting finishing touches to stone, like a woman sews lace to a petticoat. Or was he scrutinizing some unfinished labor that must be concluded on the morrow. Or perhaps he dreamed of empire.

WORK HIS BIRTHRIGHT

Great strong lines were in his making. Hard lines of working parents. Strenuous lines which had been given the birthright of pick and shovel.

Lines achieved by him by his own struggle, pitted early against the strength of other men. Lines wrought into him by lack of fear of labor. Not brought up had he been, on soft puddings and desserts.

Lines that made of him a thing of BEAUTY, there in the final stretch of the working day.

I stood and watched. Open mouthed. And eyes bulging.

He was beautiful.

"Would he move!"

The exclamation was a prayer. I longed for the power of hypnotism. He was something remote from all men, and I wanted him to remain just that.

Maybe he was even greater than his world. At least he seemed so at that moment. In him were the struggles of EVERY MAN. He was man in HIS ENTIRETY. The great man of all climes.

For it was art I was looking at. The sort of art Gutzon Borglum hopes to give us hewn in stone at Mt. Rushmore in the Black Hills. The sort of art that caused all that furore of dissension in New York City in Rockefeller Center. The sort of art the ancients left us as the insignia of what they knew of creation.

Not the graven images of false gods torn down by the prophets. Not the idols of gold cast to the earth in the fury of a Moses when he had returned from communion with the One God.

But art in the sense of progress. Art nosing about for a model of modern times.

Laboring with muscle. Toiling with hands. Passions smouldering. Emotions lost for the time in the carving of stone, and the laying of concrete.

The Cathedral of Learning, standing for advanced education. Primed for the lifting of the menial from the gutter. Lying in wait to give us the isms and the ithms of science.

The Cathedral of Learning, with its turrets and its towers, and its millions of dollars spent. And all sinking into nebulus over against the exquisite symmetry of ONE LABORER.

Hercules, by heck!

Where did this fellow live? Where would he go when the whistle shrieked? Would he seek the beer mug in the tavern? Would he seek the arms of the one woman? Was he already whining huskily for the thick slices of bread and the hunk of cheese? Did he know that "have went" was bad English? Or didn't he know English at all?

SYMBOL OF BEAUTY

What were the odds? He was BEAUTY. That was enough. There in the mellowed light. There in the sinking sun.

He was the NRA and every other group of letters. He was the President sitting down there in Washington, overworking himself. He was the high official in the executive office wondering how he can make ends meet. He was the labor union, strong and determined. He was the captain of the huge ocean liner plying the waves and nearing New York harbor.

He was the epitome of all that is gone. And all that is to come.

He was man. Static. He was man looking out, and wondering. He was man, the father of the future.

A Hercules, by heck!

And he could clean the stables. As well as lead men up to God.

A man in overalls. More beautiful than the thing he was creating.

Poverty. Love. Hate. Feast. Hunger. All his for the asking.

Man ever stronger than his labor.

Or why man at all!

Happy Marriages Far Outnumber Divorces, Comments Fay King

NOT ONE OF MY MARRIED FRIENDS ARE REALLY HAPPY
SHE JUST DOESN'T KNOW THE RIGHT PEOPLE
FAY KING
A HAPPY MARRIAGE BEGINS WITH YOUTHFUL ROMANCE AND GROWS WITH CONTENT AND PERFECT UNDERSTANDING
THERE ARE MILLIONS OF HAPPY MARRIAGES THAT HAVE LASTED

By FAY KING

Although sometimes the number of divorces these days seem appalling, they are in reality a small minority compared to the millions of marriages that are happy and do last.

The trouble with most of the marriages that end in divorce is that the couple should not have married to begin with, or that one of the parties was too easily influenced by outsiders.

But if marriage begins with a truly sincere youthful romance, and each is loyal and understanding, that marriage will grow in content and comradeship "until death do them part."

There are countless such you do not read of, or hear of, unless you know them. The wives are homemakers, and wonderful women, but have no ambitions to shine in worldly careers.

Rescue Party Finds Madge's Husband Injured

There was an inflection in Harry Underwood's voice as he asked Hugh Grantland where he passed Dicky, in the race of which Avis had spoken, that suddenly roused my fears, always too ready to be spurred.

Of what was he afraid—this big man whose personal bravery is a matter for pride to all his intimates? I caught my breath as I waited for Hugh's answer.

"You couldn't call it a race," Hugh said, ignoring, or probably not having heard the comment which Avis had made. "He started first, but I passed him, although he was going at a pretty good pace. But I was in a hurry to get back—for several reasons."

The last words came almost as an afterthought, and were spoken in much lower terms than the rest. They were not particularly flattering to Avis, but the conviction came to me that he was not thinking of her at all—that his anxiety to get back quickly was because he was eager for the conversation with my father, which both men now were carrying on in low tones, unintelligible to the rest of us.

MEN FEARFUL

"It doesn't matter whether it was a race or not," Harry Underwood began, but Hugh interrupted him sharply.

"You're right," he said. "He ought to be here long before now, for I passed him not three miles from here."

"We'll go have a look-see," Mr. Underwood said, and my father said something to Hugh which sent him forward to Harry's side.

"Better take my car. It's on the drive; just has to be turned around," he said. And the older man answered, "That's oke by me," as he propelled his powerful body toward the car at a pace much swifter than his usual lounging gait.

I did not speak, but Hugh must have sensed the sudden terror that was mine, for he paused as he passed me.

"They've probably run out of gas," he said, and I knew he meant the commonplace words as a distinct message of reassurance. "But I have plenty, and I always carry a device for transferring gas from one tank to another when emergency calls for such a procedure. So you'll see us back very shortly."

DIDN'T BELIEVE HUGH

"Thank you!" I said, and it was all I could do to get the words out. For I did not believe that Hugh really thought lack of gas to be the reason for this rescue party, with the haste accompanying its departure.

Dicky, careless to the extreme about most details of living, is meticulous in his attention to the needs of his car. He is a devotee, repeating the ritual, "Gas, oil, water, tires and battery" every time he takes his car out. I was very sure that, whatever the reason for the delay in my husband's homecoming, lack of gas was not to be considered.

I was sure of something else, also. If Harry Underwood and Hugh Grantland believed Dicky to be loitering along in the moonlight, perhaps parking the car for a chat with Edith, or a kiss or two, neither of them would have proposed going after the car. The instinct of all men to stand by each other in peccadilloes, as well as a desire to protect me from the possible discovery that Dicky had loitered purposely upon the way home, would have kept them from this proposed trip.

FEARS TREACHERY

There remained but one alternative, to my heated imagination, inflamed with the vague threats of Lee Chow and my father's odd behavior following my interview with the high born Chinese. I scouted the more probable theories of tire trouble or some other accident to the car, and made up my mind that Hugh, Harry and my father shared an apprehension of some threatened danger to my husband.

I clenched my hands into my palms as Harry and Hugh climbed into the car, and Hugh turned it and started down the driveway at a furious pace. But I made no outcry, and was even able to smile at Avis when she nodded her head with a satisfied little chuckle, and said:

"I don't believe Mr Graham and Miss Fairfax will thank those men for coming after them. Oh! Yes, Mummy!" as her mother gave a shocked little exclamation. "I know I ought not to have said that. Please forgive me, Mrs. Graham."

But although I gave her a laughing assurance of pardon, I gave no credence to her catty little speech. All my faculties were focused upon the road, along which presently dashed back Major Grantland's car. As it came to a stop almost in front of me, I saw that Dicky was slumped against Harry Underwood, with Edith bending anxiously over him.

Before using piping cord in the making of loose covers for chairs and settees, boil it thoroughly. This will shrink it, and when it is made up with the covers, and the whole washed together, the piped edges will remain flat and not pucker.

If when you are making fruit pies you put the sugar between two layers of the fruit instead of at the bottom of the dish, the juice will not boil over. Putting the sugar on top of the fruit is apt to make the pastry heavy.

When baking a large cake in a gas oven, stand the tin on a tray, or in a larger tin, containing salt to the depth of about half an inch. This will prevent the cake from burning at the bottom.

Clean patterned carpets with a scrubbing brush dipped in warm soapy water and ammonia. Always wipe carpets and rugs afterwards with a clean cloth wrung out in cold water and vinegar.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

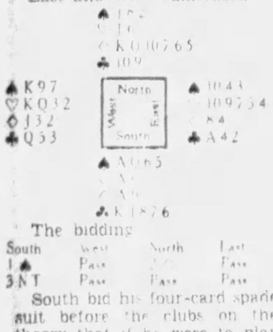
That Brilliant Lead

"That was a brilliant lead, partner. It was the only one to defeat the contract."

This was the remark of the East player on the hand below after she and her partner had played against South's contract of three notrump in a ten-table Duplicate game in New York City. It was the last hand of the game, and one of those interesting little traveling score-slips which tell you immediately what other players have done with the same cards was pulled out. South ruefully recorded the score—a minus 50—and observed that every other player with the exception of himself had made either four or five notrump. In fact, one player, in some mysterious fashion, had made six. Whether the lead was "brilliant" or "dumb" will remain in the mind of the South player forever an unanswered question. His opinion at the time was that the play was simply the "dumb" play of an inexperienced opponent, but in reviewing the situation later he came to the conclusion that the play really was brilliant and offered as much or more chance of success than any other play available to the West player.

The hand and bidding were:

South, Dealer
East and West vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

South bid his four-card spade suit before the clubs on the theory that if he were to play the hand in notrump he might never show the club suit at all and that possibly he might get a time-saving lead up to his club holding. When his partner responded with two diamonds he decided to temporize no further and contracted immediately for a game in notrump. Other systems of reaching this contract might have been better, but it was a case where "all roads led to Rome"—namely a final notrump contract—which played on a match point scoring basis, although at rubber play an alternative contract of five diamonds might merit consideration.

West's Opening lead, which later on won the enthusiastic praise of her partner, was the extremely unconventional lead of the heart King. South, when he saw the Dummy, decided that he had two chances of making his contract; one, that a finesse of spades would be successful, and the second—a very remote one—that West might have a long heart suit and be forced to discard down to the point where if she were thrown in she could make only three hearts and the Ace of clubs.

There being no advantage whatever in the holdup, South won the first trick with the heart Ace and immediately attacked the diamond suit. On three of the diamonds East discarded three spades, which effectually disposed of any probability of a successful finesse in that suit. West discarded one heart (the deuce), one club and a small spade. South still hoped that he might secure a spade lead up to his major tenace or a club lead up to his minor tenace for the ninth and game-going trick. It was the only chance South had, and while it appeared remote, he tried it and led the heart Knave from Dummy. West won with the Queen but South was disappointed to find that the next lead was the heart 3. Thereupon East took three more heart tricks, and the only remaining trick for South was the club King.

West's unconventional Opening lead had automatically made it certain that the contract would be defeated.

Signing the Letter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I recently attended a formal dinner party of a dear friend. She lives out of the state. I am going to write a bread-and-butter letter to my hostess. Should I sign my name as follows, "Eugene R. Smith" or "Your sincere friend, Gene?" READER.

Since your hostess is a "dear friend" of yours, signing your name Eugene R. Smith would be too formal. I like "Your sincere friend, Gene" better. Or "Faithfully" is a very good and appropriate complimentary closing for a man to use:

Faithfully,
Gene.
Very sincerely,
Gene.

Her Own Contribution

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a young man escorts a lady to Sunday Mass does the lady contribute to the collection, does the man contribute for himself and the lady too, or should the young man give the lady her contribution?

PERPLEXED GIRL.

We should give our own contribution to the church collection.

Pain the Abdomen a Warning

Abdominal pain is a symptom too frequently disregarded. Yet, this is a sign that doctors consider significant. They always inquire about it when examining a patient. Most of us are inclined to dismiss this symptom, regarding it merely as the result of gas or some trifling digestive disturbance.

Dr. Copeland

A perfectly healthy individual does not complain of abdominal pain. It should be regarded as a definite warning that something is wrong. It should never be disregarded. Negligence may lead to disaster.

Abdominal pain accompanies appendicitis, gall stone colic, kidney stone, and ulcer of the stomach, as well as inflammation of the gall bladder, liver, stomach or intestine. In most instances, the pain is of a chronic nature and appears at more or less regular intervals. At first, it may appear as something insignificant. But when it is neglected, its true meaning will be made clear, but often only after serious damage has been done.

I want to warn you against neglect of abdominal pain. Thousands of lives are lost every year because of carelessness in determining its real cause. Too often the sufferer resorts to home remedies, or is advised by a well meaning friend that what he needs is a good dose of castor oil or calomel.

In their place these may be excellent remedies. But they should never be used for the cure of abdominal pain unless prescribed by a physician. No doubt you will be surprised to learn that many fatalities result from the use of castor oil when taken for the relief of abdominal pain caused by acute appendicitis. It is positively dangerous to take a strong cathartic when the appendix or intestine is inflamed. This unwise procedure aggravates the trouble and may even lead to a rupture of the appendix.

In what I have said, I do not mean to imply, of course, that in every instance abdominal pain is a sign of some serious disturbance. But it is nature's way of warning you that something is wrong. Its presence should send you to your physician to determine the cause.

It may be due to nothing worse than a dietary indiscretion, or improper eating habits. Faulty bowel elimination or some other equally simple disorder may cause it, but in that case the trouble is quickly remedied.

Do not trust to luck or blindly resort to treatment. The cause can only be determined by a complete physical examination. It may be necessary to resort to special tests and the X-ray. You will be well repaid for this trouble and expense and be assured of the true state of your health. To neglect this precaution may be a grave oversight.

A LAURA WHEELER SMOCK PATTERN

There is something about smocking, with its touch of bright colors, that adds distinction to any frock. A simple form of needlework, it consists of a stitch like outline stitch, which gathers the material as it is done. The smocking border can be carried out in one or in a great variety of colors with the rambler rose or a group of French knots adding an additional bright touch in each square. This smocking border is attractive used to set off a yoke or on any garment requiring a gathered band. It is most effective at the waistline, the very newest use of smocking and is particularly effective on dress 676, which, aside from the smart gathered waistline, has a touch of smocking at sleeves and pockets.

Pattern 679 cotains a transfer pattern of two yards of a 3-inch smocking band, sufficient ⅜-inch banding for sleeves and a ½ yard strip for pockets; complete directions for smocking, including illustrated stitches and color suggestions.

Pattern 676 is available in a tissue pattern in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Yardage requirements and a step-by-step guide are given with the pattern.

Send 10 cents for Smocking Pattern 679. Send 15 cents for Dress Pattern 676 (25 cents for both patterns) to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

AGED EGGS FLY AT DOLLFUSS

GRAZ, Austria, April 16.—(AP.)—To the titles accorded Austria's diminutive chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss, was added by popular consent today that of champion egg-dodger.

Others at a mass meeting the Chancellor addressed yesterday were splattered by over-ripe eggs for which Dollfuss himself was the target. He escaped.

As he appeared to speak, a bomb of the harmless smoke and noise variety let go with a deafening roar about 300 feet from the Chancellor. He ignored it.

En route from the airport to the meeting, Dollfuss was whisked over a highway painted red all the way to the city limits by Socialists.

Added to all that, mysterious tamperers interfered with the broadcast. Only portions of his speech were heard by radio listeners.

Fifty candidates will be initiated into the order April 26.

Rachem ... Mana Zucca, arr. by Mrs. H. L. Solomon

The Y. M. & W. H. A. Choral Society under Harvey Gaul's direction gave its concert last night in the "Y" auditorium. The famous singer and danseuse, Isa Kremer, as soloist, which guaranteed a full house. This audience has been enthusiastic in its day, but never before so wholeheartedly.

Mr. Lissfelt

Isa Kremer has been singing the folk music of many lands for a long while and yet her art is ever youthful. A most colorful voice, graceful and eloquent gesture, a vital personality, superb diction in many tongues, are her characteristics. But in no music does she touch the heart strings as in her Jewish songs, whether she is mimicking the child, the mother, the rabbi, the merchant or a simple yokel.

Miss Kremer introduced some new music of the Soviet. The music itself says nothing new, but the text is obviously in praise of dignified labor. It is no easy matter to come from the spirit of such music to the simplicity of old English songs, yet in two instances, "No, Sir!" and "The Second Minuet," both given as encores, she made two charmingly true pictures. The audience departed almost under protest, and so the "Y" might take the hint to bring Isa Kremer soon again.

The chorus was quite incidental to the star, but did a few fine bits. Elgar's "Snow" is an excellent chorus and the singers responded sincerely to its good music. Gaul's "Palestinian Love Song" was repeated and is always a sure hit with its languorous tune "Frankie and Johnny" was bad. Let the audience roar with laughter, but the performers should always remain serious, especially in comedy, when the fun is only emphasized by the actors' solemn mien.

Bess Himelblau, Caroline Himelblau, Mrs. Oseroff and Edith Lazear contributed solo parts, and Mark Meyer played several violin obligati. Lucy Balter was the accompanist of the entire program.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES
Win Back Pep ... Vigor ... Vitality
Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.
If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.
If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS ... a doctor's prescription ... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.
But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS ... the old reliable relief that contains no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

Memos From a Columnist's Girl Friday

Dear W: Western Union phoned this telegram from the Townsend Ritchers (Constance Talmadge) from Santa Monica—"We cannot understand how anyone could have started such a silly rumor. Would greatly appreciate it if you would deny same thank you" . . . I replied that you said—"New York commentators" had reported it . . . Ruth Etting made a decent gesture. She hardly knows Helen Kane, who is in court combating "Betty Boop" (claiming her original style was pirated) and Ruth offered to testify in Helen's behalf . . . Joe Doakes and Joe Crudd, the stars of the Bla-Blah Club, have formed an "I Don't Want to Read Anymore About the Wife Trouble of Tommy Manville Club" . . . Fannie Brice says she knows why she holds her husband, Billy Rose. "I'm different," Fannie says, "I'm so unattractive."

Do you know Nona Moselle Ransome, of Texas and the night clubs here? Well she is supposed to have just married Phil Distillator at Harrisburg . . . If you can locate Mme. Santo, voice teacher, have her communicate with me . . . Lillian Vernon just got a $10,000 bracelet—and her friends are itching to know what's his name? . . . Dick LaMarr is plotting a suit for 5 per cent of "Sailor, Beware!"

The Yacht Club Boys are due this week. A German agent approached Jimmy Kelly, of the act (he's Jewish) and made a proposition that if Kelly got rid of the two Jewish lads in the troupe he could get him lucrative bookings in Berlin. Kelly broke his nose . . . I saw George Raft in "Bolero"—I think it's his best performance on the screen . . . I didn't think "Viva Villa" was too tough—but a pretty good picture. There was talk that women wouldn't like it. I think they will, really . . . Eddie Cantor's Central Park West home has a miniature theater . . . Charles Morrison is in France with Lee Shubert arranging some big deal . . . The downtown spots may be doing very fine, but the Cotton Club still is supreme uptown, where they still get a convert charge, besides enticing the crowd to make the trip—which shows you what a good show will do, no matter where it is located . . . The Saxon Sisters are preparing a new Siegal arrangement of "Song of the Islands"—which is my favorite pash melody. I can't wait.

Jimmy Lyons was in. Said you've heard of the Great American Play, novel, movie, etcetra, but he wonders if you are acquainted with The Great American Gesture? . . . If not, here it is. "It's the 'pulling down' business that women go through (after sitting awhile) to adjust the gadgets that give them that boyish form" . . . Len Golos says that when Joe Penner played at an out-of-town theater last week he found that the picture on the bill was "Wine, Woman and Song" . . . He refused to appear until they changed the flicker, saying that he attracts many children and he didn't want kids to see such a picture.

Tried to check on the rumor about the anonymous author of "The New Dealers" (Simon & Schuster) . . . I hear it's Raymond Clapper . . . Something should really be done about the relief workers in California, who investigate charity cases and get $3.20 per day, five days per week, for their labor . . . They must possess autos and carry liability and property damage insurance in order to get the job. And the insurance costs them $42 each—about three weeks' wages! . . . Patsy Flick phoned. Said he remembered you saying recently something about a young girl who had married a rich old man and that she said it was for love . . . He thought you'd like to know that Elbert Hubbard once observed: "When a rich young girl marries a poor old man, then I'll believe it!"

That man from San Quentin you mentioned sometime ago who could pick any lock called. Said any car of '34 issue can be opened in three seconds . . . Due to a fault in construction by the engineers. He will phone again explaining the secret . . . The "Voice of Experience" is M. Sayle Taylor, who once had a "Dr." before his name. You recall him. He's doing okay now on the air . . . Percy Hammond, the critic, now writes his reviews in the composing room to make the deadline—so he can hand his notice to the linotyper a paragraph at a time.

Frances Upton, who married Bert Bell months ago, is ill, again—and her condition is not too good . . . She was last at St. Luke's hosp in Chicago . . . Ben Gross started something new when he broadcast over WHN "Hits of the Week," and Columbia, I hear, has booked a brewer who will feature the same title and idea. If so—as Peter Arno once had a leading man say to the Minsky manager: "I'll have you understand that's not only unethical—but lousy!" . . .

That photo of Rudy Vallee, Adela Rogers St. John and yourself in his life story certainly is funny. What were you made up for, anyhow? At any rate, Rudy now has evened matters decisively . . . I thought this was amusing at the Paree the other night when Elsa Maxwell's social set threw the second of those charity affairs for Bellevue's welfare fnud . . . A reporter from one of the uppity papers asked the boss: "Name me one prominent society woman here" . . . "Well," he was told, "there, Mrs. George F. Baker, for instance. She's worth 400 million dollars" . . . "Hmm," said the scribe, "that's interesting" . . . "You said it," was the retort, "and so is the interest on it!"

Farce Dusted For Lukas Movie

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, April 16.—Carl Laemmle, Jr., youthful headman of Universal, got out his studio dust cloth and brushed the cobwebs from the ancient script of "The Command to Love," that naughty continental farce which delighted footlight audiences for several seasons with Basil Rathbone. The first moxie version, also by Universal, was a sad affair—but Junior figures James Whale has the proper directorial knack to maintain its original charm.

And to keep his promise of splendid roles to Paul Lukas, Junior has slated him for the stellar part.

Gracie Allen chased George Burns all over the Paramount lot to get this one out of her system.

Gracie—Oh, George! I just heard something Ducky!

Gracie—Quack! Quack!

Wandering around Hollywood . . . Betcha didn't know George Melford, the director, married his script girl TWO years ago! . . . Vince Barnett, the ribber, has a rival in Hollywood and he's a wow! I can't tell you his name . . . Lillian Harvey should get her champoos at a grocery store. She uses the white of an egg first, then a tea rinse! . . . Guy Kibbee gathered up NINE kiddies from his neighborhood and took 'em to the circus. They ate peanuts SO LOUD you could hardly hear the band . . . Ray Mayer, who pounded a piano in vaudeville (remember it?) for 17 years, lost a job in the movies because he DIDN'T look like a piano player! That's Hollywood . . .

Glen Boles, young juvenile in the flickers, recovered from a slight attack of the flu and told the doctor that he'd pay him in a couple of weeks, to which the medico snapped:

"What do you think I'm in business for—your health!"

Typical of Hollywood—Alvin Ascher, former studio office boy with a burning ambition to write "things," couldn't get anybody to listen to him. He quit his job, changed his name to Alden Nash, wrote a play, "Let He Who Will Be Clever"—and sold it to the RKO studio, the very spot that wouldn't give him a hearing.

Now, "Alden Nash" has been engaged at 10 times his original salary to write the screen dialogue on his own play!

Movietown Meanderings—Harry Green just purchased a box of pencils and a dictionary—His new Fox ticket calls for him to act and WRITE! . . . Josephine Hutchinson, who has been with Eva LeGallienne for about 7 years, has a deal with Warners which permits her to desert studio work for the stage when "she feels the call of the footlights" . . . Sidney Fox has announced HER OWN "Five-Year Plan"—She'll live on 10 per cent of her salary and bank the rest!

Because of the Hays ban, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will try James M. Cain's "The Postman Always Rings Twice" on the stage before the movie version.

Society Gal

Francis Dee plays a rich society girl in "Coming Out Party," also featuring Gene Raymond. It will be the next picture on the Fulton screen.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS :-: By William J. Lewis

The Tech drama department tonight will present the second part of "Henry IV," by Shakespeare, in the Theater of the College of Fine Arts. Staging of it will complete the sequence of both parts of the drama, this year's selection as the annual production in observance of the birthday anniversary of the author. To round it out perfectly both parts will be given later on successive days, Part One on Friday and Part Two on Saturday. There also will be matinees on these days. Next Monday, April 23, will be Shakespeare's birthday. At least that is the date accepted as the bard's natal day. He died the same date 1616, having been born in 1554.

Harriet Weiler and Harry Schofield, who have played with the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse, are now members of a stock company in the Sixty-ninth Street Playhouse, Philadelphia.

Richard Dix is reported ready to take a trip around the world on the completion of his present movie contract which expires with the finish of his current picture for RKO.

"Jew Suss," the most expensive picture ever made in England, has just been completed at a cost of more than $500,000. It has the most powerful cast ever assembled in England, including Conrad Veidt, Benita Hume, Sir Gerald du Maurier and many others of stellar rating on the other side.

An interesting co-starring combination includes Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers and Warner Baxter in a picture called "One More Spring." Shooting is expected to begin in July.

Charles Laughton is expected back from England late this month, en route to Hollywood to work in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "Marie Antoinette" for M-G-M.

Double Bill Policy For the Enright

Next Saturday a new policy change will go into effect in the Enright and Cameraphone Theaters, East Liberty.

Prices at the Enright are to be lowered. For matinees all seats will be 15 cents; nights, 25 cents, with 10 cents for children at all times. There will be a double feature programs, opening Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The Cameraphone will close Wednesday night and will reopen next Saturday morning, renovated and redecorated, with a new front and a new marquee. Its policy will be that now in force in the Enright.

Wit, Tunes In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Cat and the Fiddle," photoplay version of the successful operetta by Jerome Kern and Otto Harbach, is pleasant entertainment in the Fulton, where it opened Saturday. In its screen form it is more a comedy with music than an operetta, but since the melodies of the original are retained, and are sung with pleasing effect by Jeanette MacDonald and Ramon Novarro, there is nothing lost in that respect. The comedy and romance, too, are of the popular type, and the characterizations by Miss MacDonald and Mr. Novarro, plus even better work by Frank Morgan, are all that could be desired. Charles Butterworth is as muddled as usual as the featured comic.

Novarro plays a young composer, whose work is about to be given an audition by a prospective purchaser, but a chance meeting with Miss MacDonald throws his heart out of gear, and the first thing he knows he has surrendered his score to a taxi driver because he has insisted upon taking the girl to her lodgings, not only against her wishes but in opposition to her strong protests. He is extremely eccentric, but she accepts his attentions to get rid of him, but it only makes the situation worse and eventually they are sweeties.

She is a composer, too, and when a ballad she has written becomes successful, there is put before him the idea—Morgan does it—that he is standing in her way. So he leaves and their paths do not cross again until she comes to sing at his own production of his work when his leading woman gets likkered up on the opening night. Of course, she saves the day, and there is a reconciliation.

Novarro has a good flair for comedy, and his work pleases more in this picture than in any of his recent ventures. Jean Hersholt and Vivienne Segal have the more prominent minor roles and do well by them.

B'NAI ISRAEL MEN TO MEET

Dr. Max Schoen, head of the department of psychology at Tech, and Congressman H. C. Ellenbogen will speak in the auditorium of the B'Nai Israel Men's Club, Negley avenue, tonight.

One of the leading figures in the field of psychology, Dr. Schoen makes "Racialism and Judaism" the subject of his address. Ellenbogen will give a congressman's impression of the Capitol in his talk on "A Glimpse of Washington."

An orchestra conducted by Oscar Del Bianco will furnish the program of symphonic selections.

Palestine Photoplay Booked for Nixon

The first singing and talking picture made in the Holy Land, "The Dream of My People," featuring the late Cantor Joseph Rosenblatt, will be shown in the Nixon next week, opening Monday afternoon, April 23, for two shows daily. The speech is English except Cantor Rosenblatt's chants in Hebrew.

Diction Contest Listed For Wednesday

The second annual diction contest of the department of drama, Carnegie Institute of Technology, will be held in the college theater Wednesday, April 18, at 4:30 o'clock, the public being invited. One hundred dollars in prizes will be awarded for the best delivery of set passages from Shakespeare with regard to clearness of enunciation, beauty of speech and vocal color in interpretation. The judges who presided last year will serve again this year. They are Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie Institute; Mrs. Florence Fisher Parry and Carroll Fitzhugh.

Next Children's Play 'Rip Van Winkle'

Wendell Whitten will play the title role in "Rip Van Winkle," which the Children's Theater of New York will present in the Nixon next Saturday morning, April 21. He has toured in Walter Hampden's "Cyrano de Bergerac," Arnold Bennett's "The Great Adventure," with Charles Coburn in "Old Bill, M. P." and in "The Countess Maritza," in which he had a singing role.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

That Beatty Feller.

FOR SOME time now, I've been hearing about this Clyde Beatty chap who handles lions and tigers for a living. He's still under thirty — but what with his circus work, his books and his motion pictures, he is known to millions of citizens in America and to animal trainers throughout the world.

Until the other afternoon, I had neither met Mr. Beatty nor seen him perform. I don't get much kick out of circuses as a rule, and my greatest success as an animal trainer was achieved on the day that my English bulldog sat down after but six commands from me. So Clyde Beatty and I really have very little in common.

But right here and now, I want to thank Mr. Beatty for one thing: Watching him work for the first time from a box seat, I received one of the greatest thrills of my life. His performance is the greatest act I have ever witnessed—and that takes in the Volstead Act and Winchell's bravery when he played the Paramount.

You know, of course, what Beatty does. Armed with nothing but a kitchen chair, a whip and a revolver loaded with blank cartridges, this man walks alone into a large cage that contains some 40 lions and tigers.

As fast and agile as the cats themselves, Beatty whistles, cajoles and snaps the beasts into the formations he desires. He has taught lions to hurdle, and he is the only living trainer who has succeeded in teaching a tiger to roll over at his command. How long he will remain the only living trainer is extremely problematical.

Thus far, Clyde Beatty has been pretty lucky. He has been mighty close to death on numerous occasions and he is only a step or two in advance of the Grim Reaper every time he walks out for a performance.

His is, beyond a shadow of a doubt, the most hazardous occupation in the world. Compared to Beatty, the average steeple-jack is a first class sissy . . .

What kind of a guy can this fellow really be? I asked myself that question as I watched him work, and I determined to find out. After the show, I went back to see him. We spent two hours together. And I can't remember when I've enjoyed an interview quite so much.

I enjoyed it, that is, except for that portion of the time when Clyde escorted me to the rear of Madison Square Garden and gave me a close view of his—er—pets. Think you, brothers and sisters, that some of these beasts have had their teeth pulled and are ready to collapse of old age? Perish the thought.

Here are lions and tigers what are lions and tigers! Each one is a thoroughly healthy beast that must always be kept in that condition for show purposes. They are dangerous, unfriendly and treacherous. Although they were singly and completely caged when I walked among them, I admit a distinct feeling of nervousness.

What, then, can Beatty's feelings be as, twice a day, he faces 40 of them encaged at one time and strolls among them with no more defense than a fragile chair and a gun that holds blank cartridges?

What a night club owner he would make! . . .

In my eyes, Clyde Beatty is a sweet, unaffected, simple guy. He resembles Bert Wheeler, the screen comedian. He is nervous, quick and smiling at all times. His eyes are sharp and piercing. He is very polite and is a good listener—which means that he shouldn't meet too many columnists.

The man is a fatalist. In his business, he'd have to be. If it's gonna happen, it's gonna happen. But don't kid yourself. He's no fool. He doesn't give you a long spiel about loving his cats as though they were brothers and sisters. Better than anyone, he knows just how treacherous they can be. And he handles himself accordingly.

The worst accident in Clyde's career took place about two years ago. Nero, the best worker of the act, was about to leap over a hurdle when he swerved suddenly and pounced upon Beatty. The trainer miraculously escaped with his life, although he was on his back for some 10 weeks after.

They wanted to shoot Nero, but Clyde wouldn't hear of it. He went right back to work with Nero after his recovery and never had the slightest trouble with him. It is Beatty's theory that he was working too close to a lioness that Nero was sweet on at the moment, and the lion attacked his trainer because he was jealous. So you see it wasn't Nero's fault at all.

A nice life. Not only does this man have to defend himself from his wild charges, but he has to solve their love problems as well! . . . . .

As my space is limited, I offer you briefly a few more facts about this astounding man:

Lloyd's is the only company in the world that will give him life insurance, and the rate is so high it is out of the question . . . He is a licensed airplane pilot, but his contract forbids him to fly a plane because of the danger . . . His first entrance into the big cage is always the most dangerous . . . Only a few months ago, he had to have two drunks forcibly ejected from a Newport News arena because they wanted to go in and fight his lions for him . . .

The interview over, I arose reluctantly. The whole thing had been so novel that I hated to leave. I offered to buy Clyde a drink.

"No, thanks," he replied. "Got to get home to dinner. The wife's waiting for me."

Did I tell you Beatty is married? Well, he is. Took the big step last September, and he's very much in love. She's a Russian girl; first name Harriet. And they say she's a pip.

"Well, what's the difference?" I urged. "The wife will wait. Suppose you are half an hour late?"

His eyes popped.

"What's the difference?" repeated the greatest of all animal trainers. "Do you want to get me killed?" . . .

WIFE POISONING TRIAL SET

TOPEKA, Kan., April 16.—(AP.)—United States District Judge Richard J. Hopkins today set September 3 as the date for the second trial of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, retired Army surgeon charged with poisoning his second wife at Fort Riley, Kan., in June, 1929. The trial will be in Federal District Court here.

Maj. Shepard was convicted of first degree murder at his first trial before Judge Hopkins in Kansas City, Kan., in December, 1930, and sentenced to life imprisonment. The United States Supreme Court granted a new trial, holding there had been an error in admitting as evidence a conversation which a nurse had with Mrs. Shepard before the latter's death.

Maj. Shepard lives in Denver with his third wife whom he married last September.

CROSBY ASSAILS THREAT SILENCE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 16.—(A.P.)—Bing Crosby, who, with his wife and baby son, is under constant guard because of purported kidnap threats, believes the police and public should be told by all other Hollywood stars who receive similar threats. He said:

"A large percentage of Hollywood folks who have received kidnaping and extortion threats have adopted the attitude of silence.

"Ann Harding, Mae West, Marlene Dietrich and a number of other film stars have made known threats against their homes and lives, and I think they have been wise."

Crosby said:

"There would be fewer threats if the unvarnished truth were told about Hollywood incomes—if the correct figures, and not the phoney and highly colored ones, were actually stated, after deducting income taxes, commissions and living expenses necessary for the peculiar positions in which our work places us."

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

So that there will be no more arguments or bets due to disagreements concerning the measurements of the large advertising sign on the Mt. Washington hillside, here are the dimensions.

The display is 170 feet long and 55 feet high. It is one of the largest, if not the largest, painted bulletins in the country and contains the world's largest clock, according to a statement by the builders of the sign.

The face of the clock is 55 feet in diameter. The hands are 39 feet and 24 feet in length. Their combined weight is 5800 pounds. They are cast of aluminum.

The clock operates electrically and has an automatic device for resetting to the correct time in case of current interruption.

The capital letters of the advertised product are 34 feet high and the small letters are 17 feet high.

There are 1,800 feet of neon tubing and 1428 electric lamps. Sixty-three transformers are necessary to operate the sign. It takes a room 6½ by 7½ feet to house the electrical control.

The above I hope answers all the inquiries received by the Globe Trotter relative to the spectacular signboard.

I want to thank the manufacturers of the sign for the information which I know will relieve the B. and O. and P. and L. E. train conductors from answering a million more questions.

Mrs. S. D., McKeesport—I know of no place or institution exclusively devoted to the subject you mentioned. However, it is a phase of the work of practically all non-specializing clinics.

Rev. S. J. Rider, Bethany, West Virginia—You were right. The interview you mentioned was not prepared in advance. Interviews are more exciting to me when they are not cut and dried and I think for the same reason they are more exciting to the listener. Of course a lot depends on the subject discussed or the message you intend to put across whether it is more advisable to have a prepared interview.

But a prepared interview might just as well be an ordinary speech with the speaker himself telling you when he is about to take up another point in his address or argument.

Seems as if everybody is blossoming out in new clothes these days, fellows!

Of course, lots of people bought their new things in time for Easter, but many have bought them since. Many chose bright colors and new fashions and the people wearing the new clothes look brighter and happier.

Most fellows feel better when they are wearing new clothes. "Clothes make the man" they say, but, of course, that isn't true. But it is true that clothes help a fellow to be more confident. When you are wearing nice clothes you feel more at ease with other well-dressed, courteous people.

And it isn't always necessary to get new clothes to be well dressed. Many people have clothes that would be nice if they were cleaned and pressed up. And we are always surprised how much better a clean shirt, new tie, a haircut, and a shoe shine makes a boy look. It is the same with girls. Well brushed hair, stockings neat and straight, and a dress that is clean and neat always helps a girl to look her best.

But even while we like to see people in nice clothes, we have to remember that there are many people who are having very hard times. Many people have fairly good clothes that they are not wearing any more. Maybe they need a little patching. And yet they are still serviceable. The thing to do is to give these old clothes to the Volunteers of America, the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, the Salvation Army or any of the other organizations that are trying so hard to help the needy.

Every sign seems to show that times are getting better, fellows. People are buying more things in stores, and more people are riding on trains, and driving automobiles. Let's all keep up the good work. Junior Partol members in school should keep trying to learn why things happen the way they do, and figure out how they would make things better. When they grow up, they will have to be the men and women in charge.

Most stores have stock in the warehouse to back up most of their floor samples. But in going over our floor we find we have too many single suites taking up valuable floor space. So we have decided to clear away 50 floor samples of Bedroom, Dining Room and Living Room Suites, only one of a kind and reduced as much as one-half off in some cases. It's a wonderful opportunity to get a suite you need for it consists of all styles and woods. This will probably be the last clearance of this kind for some time, with furniture prices still going up. No hold orders after May 1st and no exchanges or credits on anything bought. Come early!

M'NAIR WANTS POLL ON SUNDAY MOVIES

POLITICS

Democrats Are Muddled Over Chairmanship

By MARK SHIELDS

With tomorrow the last day for the withdrawal of candidates for party office, Democratic elements opposed to the county organization headed by Chairman David L. Lawrence, are continuing efforts for an agreement which would permit them to center their force behind a single man.

Mr. Shields

Lawrence himself is a candidate. There are seven opponents, but four receiving chief attention are Francis X. McCulloch, Van A. Barrickman, C. G. Llewellyn and John Sweeney, the latter from McKeesport. A conference yesterday to influence withdrawals got nowhere, and was to be resumed late today, with the probability that nothing definite would be accomplished before tomorrow, if at all.

Barrickman is manager in this section for the gubernatorial candidacy of Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia. Llewellyn and Sweeney are sympathetic to the gubernatorial candidacy of Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County. Lawrence, of course, is for George H. Earle, of Philadelphia. McCullough has the support of Mayor William N. McNair, himself a gubernatorial candidate, though there has been nothing publicly indicating reciprocity.

Some Shy at McCulloch Because of McGinnis

McCulloch is a law-associate of B. B. McGinnis who is closely attached politically to Mr. Lawrence, but who has no love for Mr. McNair. Some Democrats shy at the friendliness of McCulloch and McGinnis and assert the McCulloch candidacy would not be unsatisfactory to Chairman Lawrence. The flaw in that argument is that the Mayor is for Mr. McCulloch.

As are most political propositions these days, this one affecting the Democratic county chairmanship is twisted and involved—perhaps to remain so.

John A. McSparran, of Lancaster, a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in both primaries, and of whom little has been made so far in this section, will be in Pittsburgh Friday to address the national conference of the W. C. T. U.

In the central part of the state, and in some of the interior counties, the McSparran candidacy is no idle gesture, as some other aspirants for nomination are discovering. Mr. McSparran will make his greatest appeal to the drys and believers of strict Sunday observance. While these are in a minority in the state, according to recent referendums, in a scattered battle such as that proceeding in the Republican party any substantial element of the reform group voting together becomes important.

An indication that the political forces which follow the banner of former Senator Joseph R. Grundy may eventually lean toward Attorney General William A. Schnader as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, is seen in a conditional indorsement given him at a conference of active Republican leaders from seven northwestern counties. There were representatives from Venango, Clarion, Elk, Erie, Crawford, Warren and Jefferson counties.

The name of John Flynn, of Elk, Grundy leader, did not appear among those in attendance, but the session was held in Ridgway, Mr. Flynn's home town. It was an aftermath of a previous meeting, reputedly under Flynn auspices, at which no progress was made. The county representatives said they were after a "candidate who can win," and suggested Schnader as typifying that probability.

Kaufman Seeks Aid of Pittsburgh G. O. P. Chiefs

David E. Kaufman, Towanda, former minister to Siam, is airing his boom for lieutenant governor among Pittsburgh Republican politicians. Friends of Kaufman have been angling for support in Philadelphia, and claim to have made substantial progress, though this is challenged by Edwin R. Cox, president of the Philadelphia City Council, and himself a candidate for lieutenant governor.

Cox spent a couple of days here last week, and Kaufman moved in as he moved out. The Towanda man will remain through Tuesday. A lawyer's committee has been formed to help him here, with former Judge Stephen Stone and former Judge James R. Macfarlane as vice chairman.

Among other lawyers on the committee are:

Edward O. Tabor, who made a fight for Council last year; Charles B. Prichard; Arthur M. Scully, former president of the Bar Association; Harold R. Stadtfeld, son of Judge Stadtfeld; former Congressman Harry A. Estep; Robert H. Braun, Jr., son of former Sheriff Braun; Assistant District Attorney A. M. Oliver; Representative William A. Walker; Roy G. Bostwick, law associate of Earl F. Reed; Louis Caplan, T. F. Ryan, Robert T. Houlden, E. B. Strassburger, Kenneth Buffington, Ralph C. Davis, John Duggan, Jr., F. R. S. Kaplan, Walter L. Dipple, A. E. Kountz, B. Vincent Imbrie, J. F. Calhoun, T. F. Soles, B. H. Pettis, George D. Wick, George Y. Meyer, E. W. Langfitt, Howard Zacharias and Robbin B. Wolf.

Automobile accidents over the week-end took a toll of two dead and eight injured.

In one of the fatalities, Mrs. Sarah Sprigle, 70, of Akron, O., mother of Ray Sprigle, Allegheny County purchasing agent, met death, as she was struck down by an automobile while crossing an Akron street, according to information received in Pittsburgh today by Sprigle.

Edward McEntee, 44, recently dismissed city detective, was in Presbyterian Hospital today with a probable pelvic fracture, received when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Irwin avenue, near Pennsylvania avenue, early yesterday.

Joseph Kenny, Jr., 25, of 42 Watson boulevard, alleged driver of the car, was charged with reckless driving, police said.

DRIVER SOUGHT

The alleged hit-and-run driver whose automobile fatally injured Vinton Zerwiky, 25, of Renton, in the New Texas road, near the New Kensington road, Saturday, is being sought by police today. Zerwiky died of a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Paul Abt, 3, was injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile near his home. The automobile, according to police, was driven by Charles Heilman, of Highman street.

Walter W. Meyer, 33, of 45 Solar street, and his companion, Helen Kelley, 32, of 104 Jacksonia street, were treated in the Allegheny General Hospital for cuts and bruises, following an automobile accident in which their machine crashed into a light pole in East street yesterday, a police report said.

Two men narrowly escaped death when their machine turned over twice and burst into flames in Rochester road, West View, yesterday.

The car was nearing Perry highway, rounding a curve when it left the road. West View firemen rushed to the scene, but before they arrived the car was destroyed.

Walter Bocuk, of 1144 Lapish road, North Side, driver of the machine, was uninjured. It was said that the man who was riding with Bocuk suffered slight injuries. Police did not get his name.

23,000 RWD JOB ORDERS IN MAIL

Requisitions for 23,000 jobs, Allegheny County's quota in the Relief Works Division program, had been placed in the mails today, officials reported. As soon as the men report for duty they will be assigned to RWD projects.

A delay of more than two weeks resulted from the order from Washington that none but those on relief are eligible for jobs under the new program. Each applicant must be investigated to determine his eligibility. The only exceptions to this, James Lysle Stuart, county administrator, said, were the administrative staff numbering about 300, and a small group of field supervisors.

At least 10,000 men already have been placed on jobs in the county, Stuart said.

Parents Injured, Infant Safe in Crash

A 5-month-old baby escaped unhurt early today when the automobile in which its parents were riding collided with a parked automobile in Robinson street.

The parents, David Shutteworth, 26, and his wife, Gertrude, 19, of 442 Saline street, were taken to Montefiore Hospital.

Brain Trust Ideas Wear Thin, Like Much Used Dime

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

The brain trusters will now sing, "The apple doesn't fall far from the tree, but the sauce keeps rolling along."

We know the stuff they are handing out is fresh because it is dated.

Like an old dime in circulation, their ideas are getting brighter and thinner.

That one about chopping Niagara Falls up into shower baths was a pip.

We ain't rapping their intellectual gear boxes. They are very smart boys for lads who are skipping a year at college.

With all their powerful thinking and concentrated cranial power they were still outthought by Greta Garbo when she thought she would go home.

DR. MACARTNEY FOE OF MERGER

Declaring that the cause of religion would be better served by the continuance of the two churches working independently, the Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, yesterday said he was opposed to the proposed union of the Presbyterian and United Presbyterian churches.

The former moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church said the money being used in seeking to effect the union should be used in other church work and added:

"There has been no general desire in either church for such a union. The agitation for it has been stirred up by a few ecclesiastics who spend the widow's mite in prolonged and costly commissions and conferences."

Merger proposals will be submitted to the general assemblies this year and, if adopted, will go to the presbyteries for ratification.

2 FACE TORTURE HOLDUP QUIZ

Held for court on charges of robbing a chain grocery in Wilkinsburg, Lloyd Smith, 23, and John Ebdy, 24, were to be questioned today as suspects in the torture holdup of George Stratigos, Oakland bowling alley proprietor, blinded by bandits last week.

Smith and Ebdy were arrested Saturday night by a radio police squad shortly after a $53 holdup of a P. H. Butler store on Rebecca avenue in Wilkinsburg.

In Center avenue police court today, Smith was ordered held on a charge of violating the firearms act and robbery, and Ebdy on one of robbery.

TROUT SEEKERS FIND STREAMS TORRENTS

Rain Delays Fishermen At Rolling Rock as Season Opens

Lowering skies and swollen streams greeted an army of fishermen today as they invaded haunts of trout in Western Pennsylvania.

Opening of the season saw devotees of the sport afield early, but conditions unfavorable. Recent rains had converted many streams into torrents.

At Rolling Rock Country Club, near Ligonier, rural retreat of the Mellons, fishermen held off until this afternoon because of rain. Ligonier Creek was reported high and muddy.

With return of streams to normal levels, however, a banner season was predicted. The state had stocked streams copiously with brown and brook trout of legal size. The season ends July 31.

HARRISBURG, April 16—(AP.)—Fishermen estimated at more than 200,000, flocked to Pennsylvania's streams today for the opening of the trout season.

A new ruling reduces the daily creel limit from 25 to 20—each not less than six inches long.

"I had only been operating three days. It wasn't very profitable."

Twenty-five visitors arrested at the same time were fined $15 each with their choice of 30 days in jail.

JOE ROBICH, 7, VISITING A HOSPITAL PAL, JOHN FELITSKY, 4, TO SYMPATHIZE

Master John, 5144 Berlin way, in St. Margaret's Hospital with one leg pointed straight at the ceiling—and he has to remain that way six weeks because he was struck by a truck. But he's very happy, glad that he wasn't killed. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

LEGS IN HOISTS AMUSE INVALID

A shy little fellow in St. Margaret's Hospital can see something to smile about in having his leg hoisted straight up for six weeks.

Four-year-old John Felitsky, of 5144 Berlin way, has been lying for weeks in a charity ward, with his broken leg supported in the air so that his "toes can look right down on me."

He was run over by a truck while playing in a Lawrenceville street last month. But his play didn't stop. He now amuses himself with figuring out the complicated system of weights and pulleys that are helping to mend his leg.

His father, Steve Felitsky, a relief works division employe, helps to amuse his son on his time off.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., April 16.
To the Editor, the Sun-Telegraph:

On this Sabbath day with a newspaper hid behind my song book, I saw where the Republic of Ireland was about to do away with their Senate. Now ordinarily that looks like a popular move in any country.

Will Rogers

But this being Sunday, and having a generous feeling toward all mankind (no matter how unfortunate his position), lets ask our Redeemer to not let us act too hastily in following Ireland's example.

Thou Almighty, who seeist all things, must know that as deciples there is not a Saint Peter in the Senate, and as for prophets, there is not a Moses in a carload. They seeist not, but neither do the ones who sent 'em there see, so let's be charitable.

But, oh gracious One, if Ireland should be right, help us to see the light immediately.

Amen. WILL.

The two will be given employment if they ask it, jail attendants said. Otherwise they will eat, sleep and read.

The third member of the trio, Tom Coyne, is fighting for a new trial.

All were found guilty of conducting a gambling house and being common gamblers as a result of the raid by state police on the swanky Oakland club.

BALLOT URGED IN M'CLOSKEY DEBATE

Mayor 'Loves to Count Those Cards,' Says Johnstown's Eddie

His Honor the Mayor invites you to another postcard poll—a poll on Sunday movies.

With the thousands of cards voted in the daylight saving poll barely counted, Mayor McNair today had moved right onto another. And if this keeps up the postoffice deficit will be eliminated.

His Honor suggested this new poll during a debate with red-haired Eddie McCloskey, the former prize fighter, who is now Mayor of Johnstown.

They debated Sunday movies, McNair against, McCloskey for.

The debate was slightly different from the usual debate, to put it mildly.

FOR 'DAY OF REST'

In the first place, McNair had to leave for Erie (to make another speech) after a short argument, in which he came out for a day of rest, but said he'd read any postcards sent him on the subject. However, he produced his substitue, Secretary Theodore Moritz.

Then Mayor McCloskey took the stage. Eddie had his two little daughter, 6 and 8, with him. They danced and gave imitations of Mae West and Joe Penner and Chevalier. Then they spelled words frontwards and backwards. One would spell Wilkes-Barre, then the other would throw the letters right back in reverse.

The small crowd of perhaps 200 was stirred by one of McCloskey's first revelations. Eddie said:

"There are six brothers and sisters in my family and we haven't touched liquor since we were 10 years old."

Eddie placed the stamp of approval on McNair. And added:

"But he sure loves to count those postcards."

CROWD FOR MOVIES

Moritz took over the McNair argument for rebuttal. He explained:

"I like the quiet on Sunday. With Sunday movies you'd see people in here sitting down when they should be out in the sunshine.

"And what would they see? I think the movies have been terrible. And do they need it?"

To this las the crowd replied with an emphatic "yes."

But Moritz carried on:

"If you have Sunday movies I'll bet you wouldn't be interested. It's because you don't have it that you want it. Besides, we need a day for quiet."

SPECTATOR JOINS

The crowd was warming up as McCloskey took the floor and said:

"I am against a commercialized Sunday but have you ever been in a church that didn't take up a collection?"

A spectator declared:

"That collection is for the work of God."

A second spectator:

"Aw, sit down."

McCloskey:

"Moses wrote the 10 commandments and didn't make any money for it and if we live by it we wouldn't need any high-salaried ministers."

The first spectator:

McCloskey

"The ministers can't legislate us into Heaven."

COL. FOXIE LEAVES

Moritz returned to the fray:

"These people won't give you a Sunday movie. They want your nickel. Eddie McCloskey talks through his hat now and then."

At this point a gentleman stood up and told of having once been arrested for practicing medicine without a license. He was finally interrupted by the chairman, Roy Rowe, who complimented:

"I think you've made your point clear. Now . . ."

Somebody mentioned George Washington's name. And Mayor Eddie made a speech praising Washington. And with that Col. Harry M. (Puncher Proof Foxie) Fox, the celebrated beer baron who never misses a debate, rose, jammed on his hat and moved up the aisle, announcing:

"If George Washington wanted Sunday movies, I do, too."

NEW CAP, GOWN PLAY RECALLS 'WUPLAND'

Pitt's Modern Revue Opens Thursday At Nixon

Dr. John S. Ashbrook, founder of the University of Pittsburgh Cap and Gown Club, today contrasted this year's show, "Hello Again," with his memories of the first show, "In Wupland," in 1908, and gave them both his nod and approval.

Twenty-seven years have seen fashions in Cap and Gown shows change as often as Paris styles, he pointed out.

"Hello Again," which opens at the Nixon Thursday night, is a modern revue, complete with fast stepping, torch singing, and witty dialogue.

A pre-view will be given for Shriners in Syria Mosque tonight.

"In Wupland" was known as a "real college play," with the boys burlesquing feminine roles just as they do today.

Dr. Ashbrook, however, remembers that they had their troubles finding enough stiff corsets, ostrich-plumed hats, and tailored suits to outfit the cast.

He recalls that the boys persuaded sweethearts, mothers, sisters and maiden aunts to give up their finery for a day, and that many of the boys wriggled into women's costumes provided by Julia Sanderson, then star of "Dairymaids," a 1908 stage hit, and now a famous radio star.

Like almost all college plays since, Dr. Ashbrook said today, "In Wupland" centered around a football game. Telling about it today, he related:

"It was a real football game, right on the stage. The W. U. 'varsity played Pitt and the second team played Cornell. We had 300 rooters in the 'grandstand' and every other student in the university stood up in the second balcony and cheered too.

"The boys went at it in real earnest, and the Nixon stage shook every time the lines smacked together. Pretty soon the whole audience was just as excited as I have ever seen the crowd in the stadium. Pitt was supposed to win the game with a forward pass to the hero at the last minute, but the players got so excited that they forgot to throw the pass. Finally, we had to send in a referee to tell them what to do."

WHAT'S NEW in NEW YORK?

Don't ask anybody! Come and see! Get your new Spring ideas first hand and have a lot of fun doing it! There's never been such a year! The impossible happening every day! Most of it splendid . . . all of it thrilling! Your headquarters at the TOWER places you right in the midst of things while. And you'll like the new features we've added to our famous hospitality since your last New York trip.

Through the Spyglass

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

A scandal in the neighborhood! One of the stores is openly going 'round smirking over their new "scandals" . . . NOT "sandals." These enjoy the distinction of being just a wee bit new and naughty with their braided straps in two-tone colorings . . . their toeless toes with your little pig-lets peeking through. And they're only $2.45. The ideal thing for Summer wear (and hard to find later might we add!) Cuban heels . . . three straps at the toe . . . an ankle strap . . . and there you are. Pink and blue . . . red and white . . . black and white . . . brown and white . . . green and white. Oho, we yodel . . . lead us to them!

And now instead of doing your ironing with what is generally known as a-slap-and-a-bang . . . you can do it with a little comfort instead. This thing of skipping rope back and forth across the cord as you iron, is done for . . . gone. Because . . .

There is a brand new cord idea unearthed by some thoughtful person that not only saves the cord lots of wear and tear . . . but your disposition as well. The whole thing comes complete . . . the cord with a sort of coil spring fitted over the end that plugs into the iron . . . and another contraption that clamps onto the side of the ironing board holding a little metal bar aloft. The top of this fits over the spring on the cord. THEN . . . your iron . . . and each time you make a stroke the cord lengthens . . . then retracts. So that it never lies across the board in your way. Such a simple idea . . . so sensible . . . and it's taken us ALL THESE YEARS to produce a mind great enough to plan this out! For $1.25.

Gone to the bow-wows! We have . . . and you will when "Your Dog and Mine" get you under their paws, as it were. This is that $5 book with the 115 pen drawings of dogs and the 18 etched portraits . . . selling now for 97c and not a penny more! Simply too amusing for words . . . with beautiful art work . . . and the cleverest little word-sketches of bow-wows that you ever read. All dog lovers will appreciate it . . . and at this price especially. By Diana Thorne.

This is by no means the last roundup . . . but it's a roundup just the same. For we just took our little lariat and cast it about this whole bundle of new bags that have sprouted out at one of the stores and now . . . behold them all tied up to price tags waiting for you to choose—$1.45.

Fabric bags . . . leather bags . . . big ones and little ones . . . and wearing all sorts of trimming. Such as shell . . . metal, crystal. Patent galore in colors to dazzle the eyes of any bagger who's out to get the goods on them (and a bag on herself!) Zippers zipping merrily to the right of you . . . silk linings and neat fittings to the left of you . . . and lots of frantic females grabbing madly right in front of you! Better ride right into their midst and be sure you get yours while the getting is good!

Up 'til now we have thought of cork as something that went in the top of a bottle . . . but here it is being used as a non-skid underpinning for scatter rugs! A new cork, this! Rolled out as thin as paper, and perfectly swellish to keep your rugs from flying out from under and depositing you plop! on your shoulder blades. Now that you're sprucing up for spring, try this under your newly-cleaned rugs. 24 . . . 36 . . . and 48-inch widths—priced 60c . . . 80c . . . and $1.20 the yard, respectively.

Rainproof windbreakers as thin as silk! Wear them to golf . . . to school . . . to drive in . . . for 'most anything that calls for such! Lasting Fame Awaits Winner of Rushmore Text Contest

Simple Words Held Chief Need

Undying fame awaits the writer of the 600-word text that will become the basis of the final inscription on the Mount Rushmore Memorial in South Dakota.

It may be any one of the millions of Americans—thousands of these men, women and children being in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia—who will submit THAT text.

The entrant need not be an author, poet, statesman or educator to put down in simple words the progress of the nation based on the nine specific historical episodes. It's the text without flowery, meaningless phrases and words not in common usage that has the best chance.

Let the entrant remember not to exceed 600 words; include the nine episodes, each covered in about 64 words; and bear in mind that the text will be judged on the basis that it is an American epic, written for the ages. Its elements must blend to make it appropriate to be read through a million years.

The importance of reading the rules and following the developments of the competition being conducted by the Hearst newspapers and the Sun-Telegraph cannot be stressed too strongly. The rules and awards are repeatedly printed. If you have started your text but mislaid your rules, or your interest has just been aroused in writing a text, a special folder will be given free for the asking at the Sun-Telegraph downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street. It will be mailed if your request is accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope addressed to the Pittsburgh Rushmore Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh.

Don't hurry your entry. Read it carefully and rewrite it if it can be improved.

FIRST PRIZE FOR LAMB RECIPE

Swissvale Woman's Stuffed Roll Gets $5 Award

Once they were thought "Scotch" but now they're admired, those housewives who see that pennies as well as dollars get their full return in food value. Though most of us don't realize it, money can be thrown away on food just as well as on other things.

Don't misunderstand Prudence Penny. She wouldn't have you starving yourself and failing to get the proper nutrition. Her idea is to suit your meals to your purse, at the same time getting all the food values that are necessary to keep you healthy and smiling. One way of doing this is by wisely choosing your recipes. Then, too, certain foods that are comparatively cheap supply many times the nutritive value of more expensive foods.

Take eggs, for instance, they don't cost so very much and yet their food worth is recognized everywhere. Combine them with tomatoes as Mrs. Mickey Sulitz suggests today and the result will be a cheap, nourishing dish, different from the usual tomato-egg combinations.

Won't you send in your money-saving recipes to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph? She is anxious to get all your best recipes, so that her readers may benefit by them. All those which she includes in her daily prize winners are awarded either a $5 or a $1 prize. No recipes are returned.

Two or three pounds of breast of lamb.
Three tablespoons butter or fat.
One small onion.
Two tablespoons parsley, chopped.
One cup chopped celery.
Two cups bread crumbs.
Salt and pepper.

Have the bones removed from the breast of lamb so that the meat can be spread out flat. Cook the chopped onion in the butter and lightly browned. Add the parsley, celery and bread crumbs, and season with salt and pepper. Spread the stuffing on the meat, roll and tie securely. Place the roll on a rack in a baking pan, dredge with flour and sprinkle with salt and pepper. CHEESE DREAMS

Cut thin slices of bread and trim off crusts. Sprinkle thin slices of American cheese with salt, paprika and cayenne and put between two slices of bread. Cut in halves and dip in a mixture of one beaten egg, one-half cup milk and one-quarter teaspoon salt. Fry in hot butter (shallow), brown on both sides. Drain on unglazed paper and serve hot.

WALTER J. LUTZ,

CHICKEN RING

Two cups of diced chicken.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon onion juice.
One-half teaspoon paprika.
One-half cup milk.
One-half cup chicken broth or gravy.
Four eggs—yolks and whites beaten separately.

Measure chicken after dicing and then put through small chopper. Place broth and milk in double boiler to heat. Melt butter, add flour and seasoning. Mix until smooth, add a little of the hot milk and broth. This will prevent lumps. Then add all of this to the remaining hot milk and broth, stirring constantly. When cooked, add chicken and mix well. Pour into bowl and add well-beaten yolks, mix thoroughly. Then fold in the whites, which have been beaten very stiff. Bake in a ring mold, which has been well greased, setting the mold in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven. When done, turn out and fill the center with buttered peas or mushroom sauce. This is a good way to use left-over chicken and gravy.

EGGS BAKED IN TOMATOES

Cut out the stem mark of large ripe tomatoes and carefully scoop out most of the pulp, enough to allow an egg to be put in. Sprinkle inside the tomatoes with salt and pepper. Celery or onions may be added. Break an egg into each tomato, put chopped pulp over it. Place tomatos in pan and put in another pan half filled with water. On top of each tomato put a piece of brown paper spread thick with butter. Bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes. For better flavor remove papers 10 minutes before taking out. Small strips of bacon may be used on top of tomatoes and put in broiler to brown.

SPECIALTY SHOES FOLLOW THE STYLE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

SHOES THAT are frankly intended for feet which need special coddling are no longer models that stand out like ham sandwiches at a sartorial feast. Nowadays they are just as well styled as any sort of costume a woman may choose to wear with them, and their practical comfort has been disguised in the current fashions without altering their helpfulness. From the satin slipper, dyed to match one's best evening frock, to the colored kids to complement a tailleur and the sports shoes for active competition, they all look smart and neat.

THE NEWS this year in shoes of all sorts is punching wherever it can be introduced into a design, a tendency toward lower heels and a great feeling for colors other than brown and black. Afternoon kid-skin models as well as brogues and walking oxfords are liberally punched, and your best dancing slipper may have a heel very little higher than Mary Jane's pump.

With all this array of tweeds offered us as the next fashion for the streets, following sleety weather, the colored shoes of walking courage become important. Take a suit of navy blue, topped by a blouse and a checked tweed coat in two shades of powder blue, and anything but a blue shoe would ruin the ensemble. And our old friends, gray and brown in their sister act, are at it again, which brings in gray shoes as a smart accessory.

LIZARD TRIMMINGS are again giving distinction to street shoes and to afternoon slippers. Patent leather is revived, too, in colors as well as the usual black. Some of the afternoon models in brown patent are as pretty and feminine as the bronze kid slippers that used to be the last word in fragile footwear. All these devices can be had in strictly practical shoes, even sandal cut-outs and open pumps being made now in special models.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

The suede jacket, far left, is unusually short, with a back strap and buckles to insure a snug waistline. The other model has back tucks for the fit, and easy saddle shoulders.

PIRATES ON EDGE FOR OPENING OF PENNANT RACE

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Spring Trips Misleading.
Tigers Famous Example.
Mirrors Remedy Defects.
Bucs Choice of Hartley.
Strange Derby Favorite.
To Shift Amateur Bouts.

If they were to base their calculations solely on the exhibition trip completed yesterday, Pirate followers might with equal reason look for either a good or a bad start by their favorites in the pennant race in which Capt. Pie Traynor and his mates will hop off tomorrow at St. Louis. For, though they wound up with four straight wins, the Bucs were unsteady and inconsistent in their earlier practice games, particularly in the pitching department. There were times when they were so good you found it difficult to figure out how they ever lost a game, and there were other times when they made you wonder how they ever won. You wouldn't know what to expect of a club in a pennant start after such an erratic showing.

Pie Traynor

But the best thing to do with spring practice games in such cases is to disregard them entirely. They mean nothing as an indication of form in the early stages of the real flag race to follow. A club that has looked great on the training trip may make a dismal start, while another that has made a sorry showing in the exhibition contests may be the sensation of its league. A striking example of this was the Detroit club of 1911. The Tigers that year had one of the poorest training trips ever known. They ran into a rainy spell and there were many days when they did not leave their hotel. When they did play, they usually took a lacing. It looked as though they would be put out of the race quickly at the start. But when the season opened, the club that had virtually no preparation, and that had shown so poorly in its few practice games, won 21 of its first 23 games. So don't use the training trips as a basis in trying to estimate what any team will or will not do in the races starting tomorrow.

SLAB FAULTS CORRECTED WITH MIRRORS

Casey Stengel's secret is out. He does it with mirrors. Charles Parker reveals it in reporting that the marked improvement in the work of some of Brooklyn's new pitchers was actually due to the use of looking glasses. Having found that the ineffectiveness of the young hurlers was due to the fact that they were broadly advertising by unconscious but tell-tale motions the type of ball they were going to throw, Stengel hit upon a novel way of correcting the fault.

Casey not only invited but ordered the erring flingers to gaze upon their reflections daily in the long mirrors in their hotel rooms while going through their pitching motions. He wished them to learn the truth of his observations first-hand from the glasses and to work out systems of concealing the ball which would fit into each man's particular style of delivery. The idea was a complete success. Forthwith Leslie Munns, Emil Leonard and Bob Edwards began to function.

HARTLEY PICKS PIRATES FOR PENNANT

Grover Hartley, former Pittsburgh coach and now Rogers Hornsby's first lieutenant in the handling of the St. Louis Browns, says he was sorry to leave George Gibson and the Pirates, and still holds them in such high esteem that he boldly predicts they will win the National League pennant this year. Hartley points out that the Buccaneers finished only five games behind the Giants last season, and expresses the opinion that if Pie Traynor and Lloyd Waner had been fit to play their level best from start to finish, Pittsburgh would have been Washington's opponent in the World Series.

Grover Hartley

Grover says that with Traynor and the younger Waner normal again, and the other Pittsburgh players escaping serious mishaps, he figures the Pirates sure pennant winners. He sees plenty of hitting power and a wealth of good pitchers here, and while admitting that second base may be a puzzle until Harry Lavagetto has been thoroughly tested, contends that Tommy Thevenow will play the sack to the satisfaction of everybody concerned if Lavagetto falls down in hitting.

MADE FAVORITE FOR SHOWING IN DEFEAT

How come a horse that never has won a race is made favorite in the Kentucky Derby? That question naturally presents itself to those who do not follow turf doings closely when they read that Sir Thomas, a maiden—meaning a horse that never won a race of any kind—has been established as first choice in the future books on the famous fixture to be run at Churchill Downs on May 5. It is one of the rare instances in sports in which a contender in any sort of contest has been picked for a victory on the basis of a past defeat.

The fact that Sir Thomas recently did the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter in 2:10 had something to do with the shortening of his price, of course, but most of the colt's supporters base their liking for him on the showing he made in his final race of 1933. It was the Belmont Futurity, and it was by mere inches that Sir Thomas was beaten in a thrilling duel by Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood. The latter was one of the outstanding horses of the year, but Sir Thomas gave him such a fight and was coming so fast at the finish that Alex Gordon's horse probably would have won if the race had been a few jumps longer. According to Jockey Anthony Pascuma, he would have won even as it was but for a stumble that cost him valuable ground early in the race. Recollections of that showing are behind the belief of many turf followers that Sir Thomas has the stuff to win the Derby.

NATIONAL TITLE BOUTS TO RETURN EAST

St. Louis having failed dismally in its chance to show what a western city could do with the national amateur boxing championships, it will not be surprising if President Avery Brundage and the other A. A. U. leaders lay plans to have the annual title tournament returned to the East next year, to either New York or Boston. The total attendance for three nights of boxing in St. Louis was only a few more than 12,000, and when expenses had been deducted only about $1,000 remained to be divided between the National A. A. U. and the Western Association. Each New York tournament drew more than $40,000.

Avery Brundage

The new national amateur boxing champions of 1934, crowned in St. Louis, represent a wide variety of occupational fields. Tommy Barry, 112 pounds, works night shift in a coal mine; Armanda Sicilia, 118 pounds, is a bell boy in a hotel; Edwin Whaling, 126 pounds, is learning to be a tool-maker; Norbert Meehan, 135 pounds, works in a brewery to pay for law studies; Danny Farrar, 147 pounds, is a college student, with an engineering scholarship at Duke; Fred Apostoli, 160 pounds, is a bell captain in a hotel; Joe Louis, 175 pounds, is a bridge worker, and Stanley Evans, heavyweight, is employed in the shipping department of an automobile factory.

Her team, representing the Homestead Library, won the team championship. This is an International News Photograph Service picture of her in action during the meet.

W. PA. PROS MAY SHIFT ANNUAL TOURNEY

By TOM BIRKS

The election of officers and the settling of dates for tournament play will dominate the annual meeting of the Tri-State Professional Golfers' Association at the William Penn Hotel this evening.

In keeping with other years and the usual trend of the pros' annual meetings, Fred Brand, professional at the Allegheny Country Club, is to be re-elected president for another year.

Brand has become quite a fixture, having been president since the inception of the association some years back. Jimmy Devlin, of Nemacolin, and Charley Manning, of the Shannopin Country Club, may be returned as vice-presidents for another term, and Dave McKay, likable professional at the Pittsburgh Field Club, will be secretary treasurer. Like Brand, Dave has held that office since the association was formed.

MAY CHANGE DATE

Little business out of the regular routine affairs is to be transacted. Vincent Eldred, professional at the Highland Country Club and chairman of the tournament committee, intends to ask the members to change the date of the association's championship from the usual date in October to early in June.

Eldred has many supporters in the move. Over a period of years the cold weather experienced in October has robbed the match play tourney of its due prominence, and little opposition is expected to be felt tonight.

The short appearance of Johnny Goodman, the national open golf champion, of Omaha, Neb., Saturday night, when he stopped for a short time at the Pennsylvania Station en route to New York, made quite a hit with local newspapermen.

On his way to join the Walker cup team, Goodman found himself routed out of a comfortable sleeper for an informal chat. Goodman wants to play both at Oakmont and at the Field Club, and wants to find time to do both when the National open is over at Merion, June 9. His nearest approach to playing the famous Hulton layout was in 1930. He stopped off here, but it poured rain all day and the trip to Oakmont was not made.

PRAISES OAKMONT

Players all over the country praise Oakmont, Goodman said, especially Gene Sarazen, who apparently has taken quite a liking to the Omaha boy.

Sarazen has stated that Oakmont is the greatest course in the world, according to Johnny, while he will have to hurry back to work upon his return from playing in the Walker Cup matches and the British amateur he would like to stop off here and play in the Pennsylvania State Open.

T. H. Grunnagle finished all even in the match play against par competition at Edgewood yesterday. George Hockensmith finished 3 down; G. P. Darlington was 4 down; E. A. Eisenbeis and R. A. Young were 5 down, and L. P. Barrett and J. P. Coleman and J. C. Smith wound up 6 down.

The tourney was played under full handicaps.

Promoter Says Ross, Herrera Bout 'On'

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 16—(AP)—Preparations were continued today for a fight here Friday between Barney Ross, lightweight champion, and Tony Herrera, of El Paso, although there seemed little chance the bout would go on.

Herrera took a light workout yesterday. Promoter Dick Griffin, who has appealed to the National Boxing Association to force Ross to fight, said the match was "still on."

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: THE BANQUET OF THE AGES—In 1900, the Imperial Academy of Sciences at St. Petersburg, Russia, brought home from Northeastern Siberia the perfectly preserved body of a prehistorical hairy mammoth. The dark red flesh of the monster looked perfectly fresh and appetizing. Three years later, Prof. Hertz, leader of the expedition into Siberia, served a wonderful banquet to a number of scientific friends of the academy at the Russian capital. The piece de resistance of this banquet was mammoth steak obtained from the carcass of the Berezowka animal. All learned guests found the meat agreeable and in no way inferior to well frozen beef, although the animal which supplied it had been dead for about 100,000 years.

WOMAN SETS SWIM MARKS

DETROIT, April 16.—(AP.)—Eleanor Holm Jarrett broke two of her own American back stroke records here yesterday, but the New York Women's Swimming Association team was defeated by the Detroit Yacht Club, 23 to 22, in a dual meet in the Detroit club pool.

Mrs. Jarrett set both new records in one race against time. She was clocked for the 200-meter and 220-yard back stroke events. In the 220-yard she was timed in 2:51.9. This is five and seven-tenths of a second faster than the old American mark which Mrs. Jarrett set in Buffalo in 1932.

The second record was the 2:51 flat time for the 200-meters. This also betters the old mark of 2:57.2 which she set in 1932.

Rajah May Start At Third Base For Browns

ST. LOUIS, April 16.—(AP.)—Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Browns, who has been grooming young Harland Clift for third base duty, said today he intended to play the position in the opening game of the American League season at Cleveland tomorrow.

The veteran slugger, whose only appearance in the pre-season exhibition games was at first base and as a pinch hitter, did not elaborate upon his statement that he was taking over the third base job.

Clift, making his first trip to the majors, has done well in exhibition games. Hornsby's decision to participate actively in the baseball wars was believed prompted by the weak hitting of the Browns.

COURT RULES ARE ALTERED

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP.)—The National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada adjourned its annual meeting last night after making only minor alterations in the rules for the 1934-35 season.

Of 10 changes which will be written into the code, only three were of general interest and all were minor. One imposes a penalty for teams not ready to start either half, a technical foul for each minute of delay; another makes it mandatory for officials awarding the ball out of bounds to a team in its forecourt to hand the ball to the proper player instead of merely touching him or tossing it to him; and the third provides that after successful free throws, time will be taken out until the ball is put in play at center. Time, now out when fouls are called, will not resume until the free thrower actually misses his shot instead of when the ball leaves his hands.

Such drastic changes as the elimination of the center jump and a graduated system of penalties for personal fouls depending upon their gravity were left over for study by the committee on research and visual investigation.

MEINE LIKELY TO HURL IN OPENER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, April 16.—The Pirates resembled a platoon of well-conditioned doughboys today as they stayed close to their dugouts and waited the National League pennant race zero hour. George Gibson's 1934 team will jump off tomorrow afternoon in hand-to-hand conflict with Frank Frisch's powerful Cardinals and in view of the fact that the opposing forces are both reckoned as pennant contenders in the National League, the curtain-raiser and entire opening series here are sure to be fraught with intensive action.

The mood of the Pittsburgh fighters as they reached the battle scene today indicated that each and every member of the club realizes that the fights marking the beginning of hostilities are of the kind to be expected when flag contenders meet in August. Gibson and Frisch are directing two of the best teams in baseball and no quarter will be asked in the three clashes scheduled here.

MEINE MAY HURL

As he prepared to take his players to Sportsmen's Park for their last training workout, Manager Gibson intimated that Heinie Meine was his first choice for mound duty with Red Lucas and Larry French as alternates. Gibby said he wished to see how Meine felt in today's drill.

French, aggressive lefthander, is almost begging to start against the classy Cardinals, despite his failures in his previous inaugurals. Just before the Buccos tangled with the Louisville club at Louisville yesterday, Larry approached Gibson and asked Gibby when the manager would pitch him. Gibby gave French the same information he had just given the correspondents. French then went to the mound in the batting drill of his team, and he fired the ball with so much steam the batters had a hard time solving him. Gibby, meantime, made a strong mental note of the stunt. Apparently Larry tried to show his boss he is the right slab selection for tomorrow's game.

Meine has been in St. Louis for several days, but he has been working out. Mrs. Meine has been ill and the veteran was allowed to go home. During the Los Angeles games, Heinie injured his right side and Gibson wants to know whether the right hander is free of pain. Lucas also joined his teammates here after having paid a visit to his Nashville home.

LAVAGETTO PRIMED

Gibson also withheld a definite announcement regarding second base, although every member of the Pirate party regarded it as a foregone conclusion that Harry Lavagetto, 19-year-old Italian boy, would make his major league debut as the Pirate second sacker in the big opening game.

The Coast League boy, a distinctive sensation of the spring, batted safely in the last 18 games played by the Pirates. The youngster's fielding also has been of a sparkling nature; in fact Cookie's entire behavior has been of such a nature that Gibby is loath to lift him even with such a star as Thevenow available for the keystone job.

Jerome (Dizzy) Dean has been announced as the Cardinals' pitching selection. This means that Earl Grace will be the catcher of the day for the Pirates. Art Veltman will be used in the receiving role if, as, and when the southpaw faces the Bucs.

Lloyd Waner, Pirates' classy leadoff hitter will swing into action under the handicap of a stone bruise near the thumb of his right hand. Little Lloyd seems to have recovered the punch that made him a standout in baseball, and while his present injury is annoying it will not keep him from his notch in the battle front. The other regulars are in fine fettle, save for the slight hurts held by Meine and Lucas and Pie Traynor's lame

NATS-RED SOX LID-LIFTER POSTPONED BECAUSE OF RAIN

ROOSEVELT ARM TO BE KEPT IN READINESS

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP.)—Rain forced the postponement today of the opening game of the major league baseball season between the Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox.

The game and all its festivities, including the throwing out of the first ball by President Roosevelt, were abandoned shortly after noon after a steady downfall through the morning had soaked the American League ball park.

The Senators and Red Sox immediately packed up to leave for Boston, where another opener is scheduled for tomorrow, along with the start of the remainder of the teams in the National and American Leagues. No other games were scheduled for today.

President Roosevelt, who received his annual league pass this morning and observing that his throwing arm was in perfect condition, said he would keep in trim to be ready to hurl the first ball when the Senators return here April 24.

The convenience of the President was considered by Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, in postponing the game after the showers predicted by the Weather Bureau turned to steady rain and failed to let up.

PIRATES SET FOR OPENER

arm which is not new in Pirate affairs.

The Pirates wound up their pretentious barnstorming tour yesterday in Louisville by trimming the Colonels in a 10-inning spectacle attended by almost 4,000 fans. The score was 11 to 9.

Honus Wagner, who began his major league career in Louisville, was given a big ovation by Louisville fans when he appeared on the coaching lines.

Cy Blanton and Lloyd Johnson, two of the Pirate rookie pitchers, divided the long contest. The Colonels used several hurlers against their big league opponents.

CHILLYSAUCE

Picking the order in which baseball clubs will finish in October is, to say the least, a questionable procedure in April, but the practice is as well established as the cross-word puzzle and Carl Hubbel's screw ball, so the excuse may justify the habit.

So far as the impending National League race is concerned, this writer will stick to his story regarding the flag contenders, and I still like the Cubs as pennant winners, while hoping the Pirates will cop the honor. The Cubs, the Pirates, the Giants and the Cardinals, in the order named, would be my selection at this time. Rabbit Maranville's bad injury, I feel, has tossed the Braves out of the realm of pennant consideration.

The Pirates have just finished one of the most exacting springtime schedules one can bring to light. The twenty-eighth contest was staged at Louisville yesterday. The scorebooks show the Pittsburghers to have copped no less than 18 of the 28 battles, 22 of which were fought with major league clubs, the White Sox and Cubs.

Training games often are held up as of little account so far as the decisions are concerned, but don't let anybody tell you that there was any horse-play in the harnstorming fights just closed by the Pittsburgh club. I know for a fact that Lou Fonseca wanted to win as often as possible while his American League entry faced the Pirate guns, and there is little love lost when the Pirates and Cubs get together, whether the locale be National League territory or the Far West.

The Pirates, unfortunately, do not figure to play before a vast audience when they open the season here tomorrow. The baseball lovers of this city have been surfeited with major league baseball, so much so that many supporters of the game would applaud a move that would transfer one of the franchises to another city. The Browns, American League entry here, have been in the red for some time. The city series, a perennial event of the spring in St. Louis, also takes an edge off the opening games.

George Gibson and Frank Frisch, opposing managers of the clubs which toe the tape here tomorrow, will speak over the radio tonight on a national hookup. The Pirates plan to tune in on Dr. Jorgensen's radio.

World's Oldest Golf Pro Dies

ST. ANDREW'S, Scotland, April 16.—(INS.)—Andrew Kirkaldy, oldest professional golfer in the world, died today of a heart attack.

Kirkaldy was born at Denhead, Scotland, March 18, 1860. He joined the famous Black Watch regiment and fought in the Egyptian war. He made a name for himself at the battles of Tel-El-Kelri and Ondurmon.

He won the Irish championship in 1894 and played for Scotland several times between 1904 and 1910. He tied for the British open in 1899, but lost the playoff. He was second in the British open in 1979 and again in 1891. He finished third in the same tournament in '95 and '99, fourth in '93 and sixth in 1904.

Speed King May Race at Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY, April 16.—(AP.)—W. F. (Bill) Sturm, American representative of Sir Malcolm Campbell, English automobile speed king, and a party of Salt Lake City businessmen are inspecting salt beds of the Great Salt Lake to determine the feasibility of laying out a straightaway course there for the famous pilot.

Sir Malcolm has had the natural speedway under consideration some weeks in his plans for attempting to set a new world record this summer.

Former President Of Phils Dead

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—(AP.)—Colonel James Potter, a steamship company executive and former president of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club, died yesterday of pneumonia in his seventy-first year.

DERBY ENTRIES SHOW SPEED

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 16.—(AP.)—The arrival of Mata Hari, C. T. Fisher's Derby candidate, from Lexington held the center of the pre-Derby stage here yesterday, but the scanty workouts produced two excellent performances.

Dan Sabath, owned by Al Sabath, of Chicago, worked with Norman D., his stable's secondary Derby candidate, over a mile course. Norman D. started four lengths in front of Dan Sabath, but at the six furlong mark Dan was leading by two lengths. Dan Sabath did the quarter in :24, half in :48, three-quarters in 1:13 3-5, and then galloped out the mile in 1:42 1-5. Norman D. did the three-quarters in 1:14 3-5, and finished out the mile in 1:44 1-5. Al Sabath was here to witness the trials.

Joseph E. Widener's Peace Chance, working with the older horse, Golden Way, also turned in what rail birds considered an excellent workout. The pair went as a team, doing the quarter in :25 2-5, half in :50 4-5, three-quarters in 1:16 and the mile in 1:42 2-5, under double wraps.

Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Singing Wood, 1933 futurity winner, last week received the bulk of the play in Tom Kearney's line on the Kentucky Derby.

Singing Wood now is second choice with Mata Hari and Riskulus at 8 to 1 to win, 4 to 1 to place and 2 to 1 to show. Sir Thomas, the favorite, is quoted at 66, 3 and 3-2.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The annual baseball panic is on tomorrow, and President Heydler, of the National League, says every club in his league has an outside chance . . . Meaning what? . . . That none of them has an inside chance? . . . Or that all of them have excellent prospects of snooping around in the cellar?

Why is it that so many ring stars wind up broke, as Jimmy Clabby did a little while back and the famous Dixie Kid did just the other day? . . . Here was a fellow, the Dixie, a Negro, who won over Joe Walcott and knocked out Georges Carpentier and was the toast of Europe. . . . It's tough to be up there when you're a kid and wind up with this old world giving you the go-by.

Imagine the surprise of the natives of Homestead when their Lenore Kight was beaten in one of the three championship events in which she raced at Chicago this past week. . . . Babe Ruth told the boys something when he came out with the forecast that the Giants will finish no better than fourth this year, while the Yankees will win the pennant in their league. . . . Swift or French or Meine or Smith or Blanton or somebody else will pitch the opener for the Pirates in St. Louis tomorrow.

It will be just one day less than one year after his one-round knockout victory over Young Corbett, which gave him the world welterweight title that Jimmy McLarnin will box Barney Ross in New York on May 28 . . . Fred Winsor, one of the veteran managers of boxing on the Coast, says he sees nothing remarkable about the fact that Primo Carnera failed to knock out Paulino Uzcudun and Tommy Loughran in 35 rounds of fighting . . . Max Baer lost decisions to both of these men and failed to knock down either in 30 rounds . . . In more than 100 rounds of fighting against Paulino, King Levinsky, Arthur DeKuh, Johnny Risko, Tom Heeney and Ernie Schaaf, Baer, reputed to be a terrific puncher, failed to score a knockout, so what?

Winsor goes on to say that, in his opinion, Sam Langford, a short, squat Negro, could have named the round in which he would have knocked out any of the opponents Baer has met and that Baer has proved temperamental and a slow thinker in the ring and a vicious fighter only when he has had his opponents going . . . Sort of gives you an idea that Winsor leans toward Primo in the forthcoming heavyweight title bout.

Joey Ponce, the fellow Eddie Zivic knocked out in seven rounds in his first main bout in California the other night, had Georgie Hansford on the floor three times, and Hansford has fought most of the stars out there.

The best break the local promoters can give Anson Green, the Negro middleweight puncher, of Homestead, is to give him a couple of trial main bouts in which he can make himself some money before they try to match him with Ted Yarosz . . . He could get himself a good-sized chunk of dough fighting, say, Ben Jeby and Jimmy Smith or Young Terry, and, if he whipped these fellows, would be a sure-fire attraction against Yarosz in an outdoor feature . . . Rushing him into a bout with Yarosz for his first windup try would mean that he would be fighting virtually for expenses while Yarosz took all of the money, and, if he lost, he would be right back where he started.

It is necessary for the good of the boxing game here to have Green engaged in a couple of real testing bouts before turning him loose against the young man who is generally rated the uncrowned king of the middleweights.—HARRY KECK.

LOCAL DOG WINS AT COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., April 16.—(AP.)—The pointers scooped up the honors at the first field trial event of the Central Ohio Field Trial Club yesterday in which some of the best field trial dogs in America were entered.

Surbanette, a pointer owned by R. M. Sutton, of Pittsburgh, handled by T. W. Jones, of Toledo, won the open all-age event. Seaview Rex's Dixie, a pointer owned by Dr. Thomas G. Jones, of Chicago, handled by F. E. Downs, of Morocco, Ind., was second.

Central Loop Sets Opening Day May 17

CHICAGO, April 16.—(AP.)—The Central League, a six-club, class B organization including Michigan, Illinois and Indiana cities, will open a 126-game schedule May 17, Ed W. Dickerson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., president of the new organization, has announced.

The membership will comprise Fort Wayne, Ind., Springfield and Peoria, in Illinois, Muskegon, Grand Rapids, and either Battle Creek or Flint, as its Michigan representatives. The schedule committee will meet next Sunday when a choice between Battle Creek and Flint will be made.

Buckeyes, Hoosiers Enter Penn Relays

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—(AP.)—Ohio State and Indiana, two Western Conference universities which have figured prominently in past University of Pennsylvania Relay carnivals, have entered the fortieth renewal of the classic on Franklin Field April 27 and 28.

CARDS TO TRY LOCAL LADS

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 16.—(AP.)—With "diplomas" tucked in their hip pockets, 53 ambitious youths, products of the second annual Ray Doan baseball school here, will seek their fortunes on the diamond this summer and a chance to apply baseball strategy taught them by some of the game's foremost performers.

The "diplomas" awarded the 53 aspirants at the conclusion of the school were trails in organized baseball, a reward for the ability shown at the school during the past two months.

The St. Louis Cardinals selected eight youths for tryouts with their various farm teams. Included among the eight were Al Warneke, of Mount Ida, Ark., brother of Lon Warneke, the Chicago Cub's ace hurler, also a pitcher; Pitchers Jack Williams, of Oshkosh, Wis., and Norman Small, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Infielders Frank Yaksick, Clairton, Pa., and Sam Harron, Middlesex, N. C., and Outfielders Forrest Allbright, Vern Rust and John Surgalski, all of Herrin, Ill.

More than 200 youths attended the school here and studied the art of playing baseball under such "professors" as George Sisler, Rogers Hornsby, Lon Warneke, Shanty Hogan, Dizzy Dean and Leslie Mann.

McCook Reed Winner In Squash Tourney

McCook Reed eliminated C. J. Caspar, Jr., in the first match of the class A squash racquets tournament in the Keystone Athletic Club yesterday, 15-7, 12-15, 15-12, 15-10.

In class C, R. Carson and J. G. Fulton are finalists. They will meet for the title later this week.

Trick Bowler to Roll Here

ANDY VARIPAPPA, OF NEW YORK . . . HE'S PIN ARTIST

Varipappa will give exhibitions of trick and fancy bowling at the Keystone A. C. and the Roxian Alleys, McKees Rocks, next Friday evening, appearing at the club at 8 o'clock and in the Rocks later. Fred Schmied, Ralph Dillinger, James Shimer and Val Meyer are among the bowlers who will roll against him in special matches.

LOCAL NETTERS TO PERFORM AT SPRINGS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Pittsburgh racqueters grab their initial taste of outdoor competition of the season as the annual Mason and Dixon tournament at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., gets under way this afternoon. Two leading local netmen, Charley Lockhart, of the Pittsburgh Golf Club, and George Henderson, of Stanton Heights, are in the Mountaineer resort for the event and undoubtedly will be called upon to battle some of the best talent in the United States, Canada, or both, prior to the end of the week.

Lockhart, former Princeton ace and star of the Edgewood squad here, took in the White Sulphur and Virginia Hot Springs conclaves a year ago and compiled a most enviable record ere succumbing, if we recall correctly, to Berkley Bell in one affair, and to Lester Stoefen in the other. An operation for appendicitis prior to the holidays has kept Lockhart out of most of the active tussling of the indoor campaign just concluded, but he has been practicing considerably of late with Warren Kruger, able Golf Club professional, and should be in trim to offer excellent account of himself in the impending get-together.

HENDERSON TO PLAY

Henderson will be a neophyte at the Springs, but he rates high in the Pittsburgh ranking and boasts a severe baseline game that is seldom far off color. Given a reasonably fair break in the draw, he should progress nicely, for he is accustomed to cool weather cavorting after several summers of play in the British Isles.

Meanwhile at home, it is hoped that the college and prep school squads, held back by the snow, rain, and chill of the past five or six days, will at length get down to the serious business of preparing for their inaugural frays. The Dukes, who open next Monday with Waynesburg invading the Bluff, have had three or four brief workouts on asphalt, but are far from being in proper trim for real hostilities. At the current writing, the Red and Blue line-up is entirely problematical with only Capt. Bill Purcell and Roy Getty reasonably sure of posts on the starting crew.

Pitt and Carnegie Tech and most of the district college outside of Pittsburgh, and just about all of the members of the Interscholastic Tennis Conference have yet to get out-of-doors. Inasmuch as the Panthers are slated to lift the curtain at Grove City next Saturday and the school stars are booked to begin a week from today, considerable intensive training will be in order for all contenders within the next few days.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

President Bob Schmertz, of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, may be expected to call his executive committee for the purpose of completing details of the P. T. A. Inter-Club League season in the immediate future.

With final word on the make-up of the circuit still in abeyance pending the decision on the entrance of several teams, it is not yet expedient to name a starting date. If, as it seems currently probable, there will be no section with more than six squads, activity hardly will be listed before Saturday, May 26.

Strangler Thrown By Jim Browning

MEXICO CITY, April 16.—(INS.)—A new and lucrative field was opened today to the American groan and grunt artists of the wrestling fraternity.

Twenty thousand fans packed the bull ring yesterday to see Jim Browning, lanky Missourian, and Ed (Strangler) Lewis, portly Californian, get thrown instead of the usual bulls. Lewis pinned Browning once but the latter threw the Strangler twice and thereby retained his claim to the championship.

Browning won the deciding fall with a "drop kick" to the stomach.

Ruth Gets $39,000 For Radio Series

NEW YORK, April 16.—(INS.)—Life, for Babe Ruth at least, indeed begins at 40. For today, at 40, the Babe launches himself on a new career. He's going to make radio broadcasting his life's work.

Tonight the Babe opens a triweekly series of broadcasts on a national hookup which will run 13 weeks and for which he will receive $39,000, or $1,000 for each appearance before the "mike." As this is $4,000 more than he'll get for a whole season of ball playing, it's not hard to understand his interest in radio.

Williamsport Loses First Sunday Tilt

WILLIAMSPORT, April 16.—(AP.)—Williamsport's first legal Sunday baseball game brought out about 2,500 fans to see Mike McNally's Grays, of the New York-Pennsylvania League, put up a hard battle before yielding to the Montreal Royals, 6 to 5, in an exhibition game.

U. S. Army Poloists Win Over Mexicans

MEXICO, D. F., April 16.—(AP.)—Jamming through the winning goal after four minutes of exciting overtime play, the American all-Army polo four defeated Mexico, 9 to 8, for their second successive victory in the three-game series yesterday.

RUNYAN MAKES GREAT MARK

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP.)—Paul Runyan, little shot-maker from White Plains, N. Y., hung up a scoring record during the winter golfing wars that perhaps never has been equaled.

Biggest money winner of the season, Runyan smacked par around so lustily that his average per 18-hole round was only a fraction over 71 strokes, an astounding feat in view of the fact that the White Plains star was one of the busiest of all the pros during the season that took the mashie-wielders through California, Texas, Florida, Georgia, the Carolinas, and Virginia as well as to Agua Caliente, in Mexico. The list of averages, showing 13 professionals with average scores of 73 or better, follows:

Player	Rounds	Strokes	Ave
P. Runyan, White Plains	61	4,356	71 25-61

British Launch Cup Challenger

PORTSMOUTH, England, April 16.—(AP.)—T. O. M. Sopwith's blue, all-steel yacht Endeavour slipped down into the water this morning carrying the hopes of Britons by the thousands who have followed with interest the vain efforts of her predecessors, especially the late Sir Thomas Lipton's line of Shamrocks, to lift the America's cup.

There was much to interest the spectators, aside from the launching itself, including the arrival of the big wigs of the yachting world. They participated in an informal party after the launching. The party was held aboard Sopwith's yacht, Vita.

NEW ORLEANS, April 16.—The Pittsburgh Crawfords, of the National Negro Baseball League, defeated the Crescent Stars in both ends of a double bill here yesterday. The Pittsburghers won the first game, 17 to 1, and took the second, 8 to 1.

SECOND GAME TONIGHT

Charleroi and the McCann South Siders meet in the second game of their Allegheny County League basketball playoff series at The South Side Market House tonight. Charleroi won the first game.

HEIDELBERG AND HOUSTON TEAMS WIN

Displaying the usual punch when goals were needed, the Heidelberg Soccer Club won the first of a three-game series for the West Penn senior championship, defeating Gallatin, 3 goals to 1, at Greenlee Field yesterday.

Preceding the senior contest was the West Penn junior final, featuring Houston and Avella. Avella was a top-heavy favorite to win, but young Johnny McFalls, son of the famous Jimmy McFalls, who had such a brilliant career with Sturgeon many years ago, dominated the game, scoring two goals and made the third possible for his mates to record, as Houston won, 3 to 0.

The usual snap was missing in the Heidelberg-Gallatin game, although the Green and Gold scored when goals were needed. Johnny McCosky twisted up the Sickles defense, with Duke Stenzel assisting, to give Heidelberg the lead at the interval, 1-0.

In the second half Stenzel scored with a long shot, and then Steve Kuten smashed the ball into the net from a free kick just outside the penalty area. Penick, who played a brilliant game for Gallatin, failed to get to the ball.

Sickles played a great game for Gallatin. Heidelberg, scheduled to meet the Swedish-Americans in Philadelphia next Saturday, did not extend itself. The lineups:

CLEVELAND, April 16.—(AP.)—A perfect score was chalked up by Jess Pritchett, of Indianapolis, as a salute to the finals of the national Elks bowling tournament when, in the doubles, he blasted a 300 game.

His other games of 207 and 213 gave him a 720 series. Coupled with a 606 series by his partner, J. Fehr, it made an aggregate of 1,326, good enough for second place.

T. David, of Massillon, O., slid into first place in the singles of the tournament, which had been in progress since March 24, with 705 points. C. Lausche and R. Rice, of Cleveland, led in the doubles with 1,331; Waldorf Golden Bocks, Cleveland, took the team event with 3,209, and Lausche took the all-events with 2,044.

O. Nolte and V. Meyers, of Pittsburgh, finished among the first 10 with a score of 1,226 and H. J. Lawlor, of Homestead, took seventh place in the singles with a tally of 668. The Pittsburgh scores:

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY OF GREATER PITTSBURGH

PETROVITS SEES FINE ART AID TO INDUSTRY

Outlines Work

Scores of twentieth century developments which make for added comfort, convenience and beauty in our lives are directly traceable to art and the artist, according to Milan Petrovits, instructor at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, Stanwix street.

In connection with such development, the close relationship of fine art and commercial art is recognized by only a few of the millions of people who enjoy commercial beauty, he declared.

Mr. Petrovits said:

"The present-day designs for automobiles, refrigerators, furniture—in fact, everything manufactured—have to come up to the highest artistic standard of design and good taste, for execution of which a capable artist's services are utilized.

"Many of the great artists were instrumental in executing a strictly commercial demand. Rembrandt, Whistler, Winslow Homer, Rockwell Kent and hosts of others left behind them evidences of such work in form of newspaper illustrations, menu cards, designs for pottery or rooms, and so forth."

Because demands for his services are widely different, the commercial artist must be extremely versatile and must have an extensive background of training, he said.

A student of the late Arthur Sparks at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Petrovits came to Pittsburgh as a youth with a dollar in his pocket and a consuming artistic passion. He has exhibited at the Carnegie Galleries and in New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Washington, Chicago, New Haven and other large cities.

PARK TO PLANT SHRUBBERY

An additional part of the $1,500,000 improvement program of Allegheny County Memorial Park will be completed this May, according to W. H. Sloan, sales manager.

Work contemplated for this spring included the transplanting of 4,000 shrubs, and 100 small trees. The shrubs, from two to six feet high, will form part of the 10-foot planted border to encircle the park.

Mr. Sloan, sales manager and assistant secretary of the park corporation, said:

"Moving and transplanting the shrubs and trees will require a tremendous amount of careful work. However, we expect to have a part of the front and all of the west border completed by the latter part of May. This means about three-quarters of a mile of planting."

Completion of park improvements will necessitate an additional expenditure of $800,000 Sloan said.

ITALY'S IMPORT BALANCE UP

MILAN, April 16.—Imports into Italy during the first quarter of 1934 were valued at 2,009,000,000 lire, compared with 1,926,000,000 lire in the corresponding 1933 period. Exports during the first three months were 1,276,000,000 lire, against 1,491,000,000 lire a year ago. Import balance increased to 733,000,000 lire from 435,000,000 lire in the same period last year.

LONDON, April 16.—The British board of trade reports imports into the United Kingdom during March were valued at £61,969,000, against £57,353,000 in February, and £56,346,000 in March, 1933. Exports were £35,068,000, against £30,060,000 in February, and £32,551,000 a year ago. Re-exports in March were £4,631,000, against £5,209,000 in February, and £3,983,000 a year ago.

'34 CONTINUES TO DISPLAY IMPROVEMENT

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, April 16.—While the debate continues concerning social aspects of business practices, trade continues to show moderate seasonal improvement.

Mr. Rukeyser

Compared with the distinctly subnormal first quarter of 1933 which was marred by universal bank closings, the first three months of 1934 have made a distinctly favorable showing. But from now on comparison must be made with a period of rapid recovery in 1933 culminating in the July peak.

The automobile industry, with its remarkable emphasis on style and technological improvement, has been a pace setter in the recovery movement. It has imparted its good influence to the myriad of raw material trades which contribute parts and accessories. The steel industry, feeling the stimulus, has started out in the second quarter under reasonably favorable conditions.

Industry generally is trying to absorb the recent wage increases. The big hope for keeping in the black, despite the increased payroll, lies in heightening the gross volume of business. Nowadays much labor entails mere watching of machinery, and there are big economies in unit costs when the volume of output is stepped up nearer capacity. Rising volume also tends to slash the unit charge for overhead. The great need then is to build volume, and to absorb higher labor wage rates also in increased efficiency of operations.

IMPROVE BUYING POWER

It seems to me that the growing recognition on the part of important industrial executives of the significance of heightening volume has immense human significance. Big volume, which is necessary to sustain profits under the "New Deal" can be accomplished only through widening the consumer market. To the extent that this is accomplished, general living standards are raised, and better sociological conditions are assured. Thus it becomes a necessity for the hard-boiled business men to take steps which will improve the buying power of the larger public.

Henry Ford in 1914 first taught industry this lesson when he instituted the $5 a day minimum wage.

When labor is fully employed, industry can afford a high wage rate, absorbing the cost in efficiency and in volume production.

Much less than the politician, the analytical industrialist is inclined to think in terms of goods and services, rather than price.

The pickup in payrolls and in farm income bespeak a rising national purchasing power. Perhaps a further distinct relative increase in farm prices is necessary to achieve a new equilibrium on a high level. March payrolls in New York reached the highest peak since 1931.

CONSTRUCTION BETTER

The construction industry proceeded in the first quarter at only one-third the pace to which it was accustomed prior to 1930. In this period public works and public utility construction constituted 55 per cent of all construction awards, compared with 40 per cent for the first quarter of 1933. In March, there was a substantial improvement over February when construction was at a standstill.

The revival of private construction depends on two important factors. First, a relative reduction of costs so that the real estate dollar placed in new construction will be in balance with a dollar invested in automobiles or in old real estate. Perhaps the solution lies in applying the principles of mass production to housing. This is a job for the great steel companies to work out in their laboratories and proving grounds. The second factor depends on a revival of the bond market, which is in part contingent on monetary stability and on liberalization of the federal securities act.

Of course, the process of recovery itself will help to create a demand for new housing. During the depression, there was an apparent surplus, resulting from the tendencies of groups of families to economize by huddling in a single dwelling place. When they spread out again, as they will when their incomes reach normal, demand for housing will inevitably pick up. The other theme which will create housing demand is a tendency in improving times to seek modern quarters instead of obsolete dwelling places. There is also a vast market for modernization of old buildings and for replacement of old furnishings with new.

Ayres Finds Business Recovery General

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

BUSINESS HAS made good progress during the first quarter of this year, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, declares in his monthly bulletin, released today.

While he finds that the general developments have been highly encouraging, he also draws attention to a few difficulties still to be overcome. Among these is the problem of establishing desired price equalities between agricultural products and industrial goods. Another is the problem of getting the unemployed back to work, which, up to the present, has not reflected the full extent of the business recovery.

Security Prices Show Increases

IN SUMMARIZING the recent favorable developments, Col. Ayres declares:

"Industrial production has steadily expanded, employment has increased, and payrolls have grown larger even more rapidly than the number of workers has moved up. There have been steady advances in the security markets. Bond prices have risen almost continuously. Early in April the index of all bonds had reached a new high for the year. High grade bonds have been especially strong, and by the end of the first week in April the Dow Jones price index of 10 highest grade rail bonds reached the highest figures ever recorded since the index was started in 1915. Many of the limited indexes of stock prices have seemed to reflect indecisive movements, but an index of this bank which includes all stocks traded rose early in April to a new high for this year. In securities a general and sustained creeping advance has been under way."

The bulletin points out that a considerable number of threatening labor disputes has been settled and it now seems likely that we shall escape a period of numerous and serious strikes. While this is encouraging, Col. Ayres points out that some of the accompanying developments of recent labor compromises raise problems that may prove difficult. He says:

"Important wage increases have been generally granted in the three great industries of iron and steel, coal, and automobile manufacturing. In each case the settlements were shortly followed by sweeping advances in the prices of the products. Similar developments have taken place in many smaller industries, and it seems probable that important price advances for many commodities will shortly be announced. These may operate to check demand and production, and they will complicate the difficulties of establishing desired price parities between agricultural products and industrial goods."

Jobs Remain Major Problem

THE MOST difficult problem, according to Col. Ayres, remains that of getting back to work the great numbers of men and women who are unemployed. He points out that it is always true in periods of recovery following depression that industry expands its output far more rapidly than it increases the number of its workers. In the recovery from 1921 to 1923 factory production increased by over 80 per cent while employment was rising 32 per cent.

In summarizing industrial conditions the bulletin says:

"Business has been improving steadily and rapidly during the past five months. The decline which began last July continued to November. Then the present new advance began and carried the volume of industrial production up from nearly 34 per cent below normal in November to less than 24 per cent below in March, and the gains are continuing in April."

LEADERS NOTE BUSINESS GAINS

NEW YORK, April 16.—(INS.)—With almost unbroken unanimity, from leaders in business, industry and banking reports came today that first quarter business this year has shown a great upswing and a general prediction that the improvement will continue.

GEORGE E. ROBERTS, vice president and economist of the National City Bank, reported—"Business in general has made progress during March, with indices such as car loadings and electric power consumption showing the full seasonal rise or more.

QUINCY ADAMS, of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.—"The nation's bank clearings, showing the actual money value of business transacted during the week ending Wednesday, were larger than any week in the past 27 months."

MYRON C. TAYLOR, chairman of United States Steel—"Last year we thought we had turned the corner and could see ahead immediate signs of revival. Today we know we have."

GEN. W. W. ATTERBURY, president of the country's largest railway system, the Pennsylvania—"This thing is going to keep going at least for the second quarter."

EUGENE G. GRACE, president of Bethlehem Steel — "I cannot constitute myself as a prophet. At the moment the trend of business is encouraging."

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, Jr. (before sailing last week on the Rex—"I am optimistic. What else can one be?"

ALFRED PRITCHARD SLOAN, Jr., president of General Motors—"Improvement will continue. An industrial recovery, like an industrial depression, is in a practical sense of the word, an irresistible force."

F. W. DODGE CORPORATION, statisticians of the building industry—"The upward swing of building and engineering was resumed in March, although the public works program continues to be the largest factor. The revival of private construction, which started in June, 1933, continues with added strength."

Rubber Consumption Gains 17% in March

NEW YORK, April 16.—Consumption of crude rubber by manufacturers in the United States was 47,614 tons in March, an increase of 17.2 per cent over February and 163.8 per cent over March, 1933, according to the Rubber Manufacturers' Association. March imports were 44,605 tons, or 43.7 per cent above February and 60 per cent over a year ago. Stocks at the end of March, 351,094 tons, were slightly under those of February 28 and 10.1 per cent under the March 21, 1933, figure.

HIGHER PRICES MAY BE SEEN IN FEW MONTHS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Stock prices, on average, moved about sideways last week, closing only fractionally higher. Bonds continued to creep up.

The most active issues were found among the copper, meat packing, movie and liquor groups, and these mostly made gains. The motor stocks, however, underwent a little relapse, while remaining among the more active issues.

But on the whole the volume of trading was small, the total for the week being below that of the preceding period.

And, on the whole, one can say that, as in other recent weeks, the activity declined on weakness. While buying is not aggressive, little stock seems to be for sale on declines, and in most cases that is well taken.

The action on Wednesday suggested a reaction. Moreover, the averages were then halted just at a significant level. This is where the January rise was first halted, and where the attempt to rally the market early in March was checked. It is also the level at which the August and September rallies were stopped last year. But in view of these facts, the market has been well sustained. Its action suggests no more than a "dip."

Very broadly speaking, the chief factors tending to depress stocks seem to be: (1) Uncertainties as to New Deal policies, and (2) NRA restrictions as affecting costs.

The chief factors tending to put stocks up are: (1) The huge supply of credit potentially available in the banks, (2) the devaluation of the dollar, which has been only partially effective in prices.

MAY SEE HIGHER PRICES

If this broad analysis be correct, it is difficult to escape the conclusion that higher prices will be seen before many months have passed.

To put it one way, if the President finally decides to soft pedal New Deal radical reforms, the damned-up supply of credit will be released. If he swings back to the left and goes in for "teeth," he will probably be driven to heavier government spending and to "currency inflation."

(All through history I find that idealistic radicalism goes hand in hand with "soft money" schemes.)

Or, to put the matter another way, we can say that the alternatives are as follows:

1—Some people profess to see forces of business recovery working underneath which will win out despite radical policies and which will arouse discontent with the obstacles to recovery presented by the New Deal, causing its abandonment.

2—If not, an inflationary stimulus would come in either one of two ways: (a) Either the New Dealers will moderate their policies sufficiently to allow credit expansion to get a start, or (b) they will hold to the left, business will lag, and then the printing presses will be started—in one way or another.

WON'T SIT IDLY BY

One sure thing is that the New Dealers are not going to sit by and watch business and employment go backward. If business doesn't expand, they will certainly resort to spending and inflation.

Therefore, it seems to me that, whether business goes up on its own or on inflation, money is not the thing to be holding. In one way or another, it seems bound to decline in purchasing power before the year is over.

Just now prices of stocks and commodities are hesitating. Business is hesitating. The President has been hesitating. The much talked of critical period between the priming of the pump and the result may be at hand. But in any case, something like 50 per cent of one's funds should be going into the soundest sort of carefully selected dividend paying stocks.

A.T.T. EARNINGS UP SLIGHTLY

NEW YORK, April 16.—The report of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for the quarter ended March 31, 1934, shows net income of $33,032,108 after charges and federal taxes, which compares with net income of $32,383,187 in the first quarter 1933.

Walter S. Gifford, president, stated that during the first quarter of the current year there was net gain of 108,000 in the number of Bell System telephones. This compares with net gain of 32,000 telephones in the preceding quarter and net loss of 340,000 in the first quarter 1933. Each month since August of last year has shown a net gain in telephones.

Treating the system as a whole, and including Western Electric Company, earnings on American Telephone and Telegraph Company stock were about $1.53 per share for the first quarter, or at the annual rate of $6.12 per share, compared with $5.36 per share for the year 1933.

Earnings of American Telephone Company by itself amounting to $1.77 per share in the first quarter of 1934 include dividends not fully earned during the quarter by the associated companies as a whole by about $700,000 and do not reflect the current deficit of the Western Electric Company, which is still operating at less than 20 per cent of capacity.

Color Is the Gay Note on Many Spring Frocks

Pattern 1825
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

This spring is a season of color! Accordingly fashion has launched her new collections in a rainbow of color and striking color effects. Here's one of our favorite models—and a stunning example of this trend. It was fashioned of skipper blue silk splashed with white flowers of conventional motif, and white was used for the smart yoke. Simplicity of line prevails—most essential when relying on color for effect. When making your frock, choose your most becoming tones, and you'll be delighted with the picture you'll make. Cottons, of course, would be equally delightful.

Pattern 1825 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 yards 36-inch fabric and ⅞ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE LATEST EDITION OF THE PATTERN BOOK features all the best seasonal styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic. PRICE OF BOOK, 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

SENIOR STOCKS CONTINUE TO PUSH UP

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP.)—Stocks, with scattered exceptions, were droopy today and other financial markets were not in too joyful a mood.

Liquidation of the May positions in corn and oats unsettled grains. May corn dropped to 45⅝ cents a bushel, a new low since last October, while May oats de to 28½ cents, also a new post-October low. Bar silver, silver futures and some of the silver shares were heavy, reflecting administrative disapproval of pending legislation which would aid the metal. Cotton and rubber were barely steady. Bonds were rather mixed. Internal dollar rates were virtually unchanged.

Shares of Union Pacific advanced more than 2 points. Some of the preferred isues continued in demand with gains of 1 to around 2. The utilities and oils were narrow.

Some market commentators expressed the opinion that stocks have been selling "ex-inflation," emphasizing a revival of the investment impulse rather than currency expansion potentialities. It was recalled that preferred stocks and prime investment bonds have been exceptionally active recently while, at the same time, commodities have displayed a downward drift.

The hopes of the inflationists were at a rather low ebb in view of the apparent opposition of the President to the Dies-Thomas bill, which would nationalize and monetize silver; to the McLeod bill for payment of depositors of closed banks by the government, and to the various measures now pending in Congress which would set up a central authority to handle all monetary matters.

The statements of Speaker Rainey and Chairman Rayburn of the House Interstate and foreign commerce committee that Mr. Roosevelt wanted the control bill to contain definite marginal requirements was in line with expectations. Brokerage circles were inclined to cheer up a little, however, when Rayburn said that the President had made no specific suggestions for changes in the bill.

The possibility of strikes in the oil fields did not seem to be an exceptional market depressant. Under certain circumstances, it was felt in some quarters, this development might be bullish because a general shut-down would help to solve the serious overproduction problem in the industry.

Market sentiment was not quite as bright as it has been, although few of the commission houses were flying storm signals. The feeling in most boardrooms was that stocks could not be expected to go very far in any direction until Congressional skies become clearer.

WHEAT PRICES TAKE SPURT

CHICAGO, April 16. — Grain prices developed firmness today after a hesitant start. Decided strength shown by wheat quotations at Liverpool had a bullish influence, and was associated with advices from the international wheat conference at Rome.

Opening ¼ off to ¼ up, May 84½-¾, the Chicago wheat market later rose all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ higher, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Chickie's Daughter

CHAPTER XLV.

When Pippin could master her smothered sensation, she asked: "Do you mean Kevin is to marry Jane Carew?"

"If you can read the handwriting on the wall! He's been rushing her or she's rushing him—anyway she's had his spare time for the last three weeks. Fortunately he's pretty busy."

"Why do you think Jane would be so disastrous for him?"

Kathleen shot a glance of withering contempt at Pippin.

"Friday night he was all done up in his dinner togs—taking her to a party. I was sitting on his bed, having as usual fixed the buttons in his shirt, found his necktie and fished out and dusted his shoes. The phone rings and he's called on Emergency. So he has to break his date. He was sweet and full of apology until she begins to argue. I don't know what she said but she wanted him to keep the date even if the whole world broke its bones. So he got mad and let her have it. He shouted: "I'm SORRY! The dinner will have to do without me. The man is DYING. GOODBYE!" and bangs up the phone. I thought that was the end.

Tactics Changed

"This morning she calls him—all honey even to me when I happened to answer the phone. He comes away whistling like a day in June.

"Can you see the finish—or what?"

The words were just free of Kathleen's lips when Kevin walked into the room. He hadn't heard, however.

He said: "What are you getting so excited about, Kathy? You handed a mean line to Ed. When a man announces he's going to be married and brings the girl around, he doesn't expect you to give her a kick in the face. It's not your funeral."

The tears rushed to Kathleen's eyes. "I suppose I should be a hypocrite and tell him she's lovely. He can't possibly be in love with her. It's sheer cruelty if we all sit by and don't try to save him."

"Edward is 30 years old. He probably knows what he's doing."

"She lured him into it!" Kathleen fired. "And now Edward, the chivalrous, thinks he has to marry the bottle washer in the factory! She's older than he is. Look at her face—millions of tiny little lines around her eyes. And that name—Sonia!"

Kathleen couldn't endure it that the girl should be named Sonia. She kept repeating: "Such a name! Everything about her is cheap!"

Kevin to Rescue

Said Kevin, his mouth grim: "There are just as fine girls washing bottles in factories as there are wasting four years in college, Kathleen. Don't you forget it!"

Kathleen gave Kevin a long, searching glance. "I have friends at college who are washing dishes and slinging hash. They mean more to me than fellows who run around in cars their fathers buy. It's not what Sonia does—it's what she IS that makes her impossible. If Edward marries her his life is wrecked."

Kevin was also depressed with Sonia and the dinner: "You may think about marriage for years and decide to pick out the right type—just the girl who will make things hunky-dory for you—ten to one it will be a flop anyway. No matter whom you marry it's bound to be a mistake."

"Just you get thinking that way, Mr. Kevin, and it's the beginning of the end for you! Perhaps you're trying to rationalize that spoiled darling of yours who would rather that you let a child die than disappoint her. If you think she'll be as good a wife as another, hop to it."

"You're vicious. I'm not thinking of marriage."

"You bet I'm vicious. When I see Edward throwing his life away and YOU—because of a few spoiled, selfish dolls—declaring all marriages a mistake' David Ramm is a bigger man than you are. He was smart enough to pick a woman who didn't interfere."

Praises Chickie

"How many Chickies do you think there are in the world, Kathleen? I've been working for David Ramm three weeks. He's been home to dinner about five times. For the rest—he suddenly remembers there's a [illegible] the world and along [illegible] one o'clock telephones he be home for a seven-tinner. Does Chickie get sore and begin to nag? She does NOT. But they don't make them like that any more."

Pippin was so used to her father's utter lawlessness as to time, but she was shocked to have Kevin put it in words.

She said it with considerable warmth: "David has never neglected my mother. She's the most richly happy person I know."

Kevin reached over and pulled Pippin to him, letting his arm rest carelessly about her shoulders. He said, giving her a sweet look: "But he's rather absent-minded about meals and such?"

"Naturally, his work comes 'st. My mother would have no use for him if he allowed small things to interfere."

"Do you classify a home, wife, children, as small things?"

"I think they're valuable but they should fulfill their purpose."

Kevin grinned: "What may that be?"

"They should add to the beauty and worth of life, of course. They are worthless when they become a plague and a hindrance."

Not Marrying

"But father isn't interested in the usual social functions so there aren't any such obligations."

"Yeah—just like that! But suppose your mother wanted them?"

She gave a high, mocking laugh: "As though she would be such a sap!"

With the arm he had about her, Kevin swung Pippin face to face, holding her close. "And do you think, Pippin, as Kathleen does, that I'm to marry a sap?"

She could see his black, sharp brows, the strong bones of his cheek and jaw; his mouth that was straight and full; she could feel his breath.

She thought: "Don't do this to me, Kevin. Please don't! Don't look in my eyes. You'll see; you know!"

She closed them sharply and gave a little nervous sigh: "I thought you were not to marry at all!"

"That's right—never at all."

She studied hard for her finals. She didn't come home over the week-end. Saturday when she was exhausted with the printed page, she went with Gregg to a movie.

During the love scene in the play, Gregg reached for Pippin's hand. He kept it clasped in his.

Afterwards when they were parked on a hill and the white, flat moon grew immense and cold, Gregg put his arm about her.

Gregg Pleads Cause

"I wish you could love me, Pippin." His cheek touched hers: "I want terribly—" He closed his lips on her mouth and didn't finish the sentence.

Then he said, winking: "I better get you home."

At the door he shook her hand and looked at it. "Don't study too hard, Pippin. You go to extremes, always. I've a new idea for the last scene of the play. We'll work it over when you've finished your finals."

He didn't kiss Pippin good-night. He looked pale and unhappy.

She wanted to reach up and touch Gregg's face—say some kind, breezy thing.

She sat on her bed, feeling a dark hand close on her heart. All the hunger in the world—all the terrible, unappeased longing—

On Thursday she finished her examinations. She was sure she flunked in bio-chemistry. She felt limp and discouraged.

She went to her father's office, hoping to talk over the questions with Kevin.

It was half past six. As she came to the turn in the corridor, she saw Kevin and Jane. He was escorting her to the elevator.

Jane wore a dark, wine-red suit. It brightened her whole personality, she was more piquant, more appealing, with almost a Carmen flair. Her dreamy hair showed under the tiny red hat.

Kevin held her hand and laughed happily into Jane's face.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Narrow shoes, especially those that are narrow at the toes, are the direct cause of ingrowing nails. The big toe takes an inward slant, the nail is pressed down into the flesh, a heavy callous forms at the side. A chiropodist will correct the condition for the time being, but if pressure continues, the thickened cuticle will form again until it hurts and twinges like an outraged corn. The solution? Properly fitted shoes.

It's a clever girl who can set her own finger wave, but there are tricky ones who are able to do it. The first step is to find out just where the hair wants to dip or creep upward. Use plenty of hot water, push the hair toward the parting, clamp down each undulation with a waving comb, or pinch the ridges between the fingers. Don't comb until thoroughly dry.

THE BRITISH RETREAT FROM CONCORD (APRIL, 1775)—THE WAR OF INDEPENDENCE

Breaking through the thin line of resisting Minute Men at Lexington, the British detachment sent from Boston, reached Concord, Mass., and true to the orders of Gov. Gage, started to destroy ammunition stores of the colonists. Forced to retreat, the British lost about 280 men before they could reach their lines at Charlestown. About half as many Americans sacrificed their lives in this engagement for the cause of liberty. (United States History)

SPOILS OF CONQUEST SPOIL ROMAN MORALS

While the Roman legions were busy making new slaves from the Iberians (Spain), enslaved freeman rose in Italy and Sicily. This Servile Rebellion was subdued in 132 B. C.

By this time Roman conquests, lasting about 100 years, ceased; the province Asia (former Kingdom Pergamum) was acquired by bequest (see map at left). Rome, conquering lands and people adopted also foreign ideas. The educated class of the conquered, especially Greeks, became teachers to Roman children, influencing religion, art, literature and manners. But the plundering, connected with the conquests, the wealth, piled up by the victors, changed their simplicity, honesty to luxury and corruption. Professed refinement could not cloak their barbarous spirit, expressed in entertainments, climaxing in the arena of the circus, where gladiators (mostly trained slaves) were forced to fight beasts or each other. Agonizing death amused the crowd. (World History)

SMOKE ELIMINATION BY ELECTRICITY

Smoke and dust are solids of colloidal size suspended in air. The particles are electrically charged. By passing them between plates connected to source of high voltage electricity, the particles are attracted to the plates of opposite polarity and precipitated (Cottrell process). Above left: Plates to be charged built into flue. Center: Operation with precipitating current shut off and current on (right) when no smoke issues. Air pollution by smoke is a menace to health; it should not be tolerated. (Chemistry)

AIR-INFLATED TIRES MADE SPEEDY AUTO POSSIBLE

The auto tire comprises a rubber tube with an air valve through which compressed air is introduced (20-70 lbs. pressure a sq. in.) and a casing from layers of gum-dipped cord and rubber to resist pressure and wear. The large size, low pressure or "balloon" tires absorb shock better, and allow higher speed, reduce jolting. Above left: Section of tire-equipped steel wheel. PASTEUR—FIRST TREATMENT OF HYDROPHOBIA

Louis Pasteur, the celebrated French scientist, who discovered the part played by microbes in fermentation and disease, developed the successful treatment of hydrophobia by inoculation. He saved many thousands, bitten by mad animals from horrible deaths. The first was little Josef Meister.

Feted on his 70th birthday Pasteur said: "Young men . . . live in the serene peace of laboratories and libraries. Say to yourself: 'What have I done for my instructors? . . What have I done for my country?" until the time comes, when you may have the happiness of thinking, that you have contributed in some way to the progress and welfare of humanity." TRYPANOSOME, CAUSE OF AFRICAN SLEEPING SICKNESS

Nearly half the animal kingdom is parasitic, living at the expense of a second body, the host. Much human disease is the result of such associations, so parasitology became a cornerstone of public health. Some dangerous parasites belonging to the first animal phylum, protozoa (one celled animals) are: Plasmodium vivax, causing the tertian malaria, inoculated into man by bite of an infected Anopheles mosquito; the Leptospira icteroides, cause of yellow fever, is transmitted by the Aedes mosquito and the Trypanosome, that produces African sleeping sickness, is passed chiefly by the Tsetse fly. The Colder the Dumber

Professor Rudy Pintner lecturizes that all winter babies are dumb. The professor was born in November. Which makes him two months dumber than the writer.

As an early January baby we are finally an authority on a subject.

We agree with everything the professor says about us. Old Cliff Sterrett is another winter prodigy. Cliff says he was in the first grade so long the other kids started to call him, "Uncle."

Twenty years ago we told you that they had to burn down the school house to get us out of the second grade. In rebuilding the structure they left us out of the blueprints.

Your January child is slow and thinks twice before he gets a thought.

You usually find him at the foot of the class trying to figure out why three is between two and four. His hair never falls out from pressure on the inside.

But, we have always claimed that you shouldn't judge a boy from what he does the first 70 or 80 years.

There has never been any proof that July and August kids are any smarter than December tads. Prof. Pintner said so. But it might have been on CWA time.

All the professors are trying to start arguments these days. In these times of specialists you've got your choice on the front page or the back door.

If the professor desires a public debate on the subject, we will choose, "Resolved, That Neither One of Us Knows Enough to Bounce a Foot if We Fell a Mile."

We will give the prof either the negative or the affirmative on the details. He can have the referendum or the recall.

But we will have to get some pretty dumb judges on the jury to be sure of getting a fair and square decision.

And a July younker will be just dumb enough to give it.

Personally, we think we are the dumbest. We never spoke until we were 6 years old.

Then we said, "Ah!" with that, some slick doctor sprayed powdered sulphur down our throat. And that one remark cost the old man $2.

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT

What Does He Mean?

"Oxcart Government" Cannot Be Justified Under the Plea of "Home Rule."

Judge Marion D. Patterson, of Blair County, opened his gubernatorial campaign with a declaration for "home rule" in government. It is to be hoped he will be explicit as the campaign proceeds in saying what he means by this; for "home rule" is the plea with which a horde of unnecessary public officials and political parasites are seeking to perpetuate "oxcart government."

Does Judge Patterson think that every neighborhood should have its own school board, with a solicitor, tax collector, auditor and secretary to add to the taxpayers' burden? We have more than a hundred such districts in Allegheny County and we could save money and have better schools if we would consolidate most of them.

What is true of school districts is also true of second class townships and many of the counties and other administrative units. They were formed in the days of the oxcart when every little community had to set up its own agencies of government because the means of travel and communication were too primitive to permit larger units.

Does Judge Patterson advocate the retention of this kind of "home rule?"

Those who are against the elimination of "oxcart government" would do well to heed the rising tide of indignation against unnecessarily high taxation.

In Schuylkill County last week a mob of thousands of taxpayers, to whose pleas for relief from high taxes some of the county officials were deaf, engaged in a serious riot. They forced County Commissioners to attend a meeting and listen to their protests, and to show their anger further smashed windows and furniture in the Courthouse.

When citizens of Pennsylvania conduct a demonstration like this it is time for the politicians to give some consideration to the question of reducing taxes.

Abolition of "oxcart government" and the unnecessary jobs that go with it offers a way. Not only can taxes be lowered; local government can be improved by consolidations of administrative units.

Specious pleas for "home rule" must not be allowed to block this desirable reform.

Sunday Baseball

Children's Games at Which No Admission Is Charged Should Not Be Taxed.

When the question of taxing Sunday baseball games first came up the Sun-Telegraph advised City Council not to exact a license fee for games at which no admission was charged, lest it make law-breakers of small boys unable to pay the fee.

Council saw fit to ignore the advice and passed an ordinance under which a dollar license fee is exacted even if there is no charge for admission. For commercial games the fees are justifiably higher, ranging up to a maximum of $50.

Mayor W. N. McNair, sharing the Sun-Telegraph's sympathy for children who may wish to play baseball on Sunday afternoon, has signed the ordinance, but at the same time has expressed the hope that it will not be enforced against youngsters.

The better plan would be to amend the ordinance.

A Building Boom Needed

There Is Much Work to Be Done in Repairing Old Houses, Too.

Two years ago the Pittsburgh editor of a periodical devoted to the iron and steel business declared that more iron and steel were being lost by rust than were being produced. It would be interesting to see a comparison between the deterioration of old buildings and new construction; the losses represented by the former during recent years must be greatly in excess of the gains represented by the latter—which suggests that the mere repair of houses in need of it might start something like a building boom.

Pittsburgh, with numerous craftsmen of the building trades and numerous manufacturing companies which produce building materials, is sorely in need of a building boom.

More than 50 slum dwellings are scheduled for demolition as unsafe and insanitary. Presumably they are beyond all hope of repair; but in New York City, where slum houses are also being demolished, the charge is made that buildings have been razed which could have been made decent and habitable.

Representative Henry Ellenbogen of this city has introduced in Congress a bill permitting the federal government to grant loans for the construction of new homes.

Let us hope that out of these things will come a revival of our somnolent building industry.

The Trout Season Opens

Wholesome Recreation Is Furnished Multitude By the State's Mountain Streams.

Tens of thousands of Pennsylvanians have been looking forward with joyful anticipation to this day. It is the opening day of the trout season, and multitudes of men and boys—yes, and women, too — are spending it on the state's numerous mountain streams, angling for the speckled beauties.

The Commonwealth fosters and promotes this wholesome recreation to a greater extent, perhaps, than any other state. The streams are stocked annually with legal-size trout from the state hatcheries, and many other things done to encourage fishing. The Board of Fish Commissioners even publishes an attractive magazine, the Pennsylvania Angler, to develop interest in the sport.

This is praiseworthy; for fishing—particularly trout fishing in the mountain streams—is excellent and healthful entertainment. It is especially refreshing for office workers.

The Federal Constitution provides that all tax measures must originate in the House of Representatives—and this week's proceedings in the United States Senate provide new evidence of the wisdom of the Fathers.

For the Senate, after once defeating the preposterous proposition, has reversed itself and voted to add a ten per cent supertax to the income tax.

This is much worse than a plain tax on incomes—it is actually a tax on the income tax itself!

The amount of the supertax is to be determined by the income tax a man must pay. A tax dodger still pays nothing. An honest taxpayer simply pays MORE.

Fortunately the mad Senate idea is only an amendment to the revenue bill passed by the House, and the House may reject the amendment.

Even so, it leaves the taxpayer only one thing to be thankful for—that the Constitution prevents the Senate from devising ALL our taxes.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 16.—Diary: Up and to the Waldorf, talking to Howard Chandler Christy and Mr. Winnergreen, the Swedish capitalist, and his Kansas City wife. Then walking across the south meadow of the park, where the old gentlemen with sun umbrellas have begun their croquet.

Typing until Gil Patten, the Frank Merriwell author, came, and with him on a hirple of the avenue. And later called at Dudley Field Malone's, a crowd there, including Evelyn Lave. On to Herschel Brickell's to meet the English writer, E. Arbot Robinson, and I sipped a meagre flaggonage called tea.

New York's saltiest and most aloof individualist is Albert Jay Nock, author, educator and superb hooter at things as they are. Deep in years, thin and almost white-haired, he is said, despite his brilliance of intellect, to have few intimates. He regards his name in a newspaper as an intrusion and has a low opinion of newspapers and newspapermen, although himself a writer. He lives quietly in the serene shadows of Gramercy, last of the patricians.

Mr. Nock is rooted in renegade rigamarole. He professes to place a damnable dubiety on all cherished theories. For instance, he does not believe critical blasts or praise have any effect on books or theater. Each gentleman to his own opinion, yet every first nighter will swear that one ambitiously opulent opus withered like a morning glory as the result of Dorothy Parker's—or wasn't it really Lois Long's?—critical one-line capsule!—"The House Beautiful' is the play lousy!"

Edwin C. Hill is now by a fat margin the biggest money maker of all newspaper writers of his era. For years he had, with Frank Ward O'Malley, been regarded as an outstanding reporter on Boss Lord's Sun—especially as an interviewer of the great. He took a flyer in the Hollywood studios but, loathing his chore, returned to a job of reporting. His overnight success as a straight-away radio news commentator opened an entirely new career with such golden by-products as the stage, full length books and lectures. Always a Park Row fashion plate, he was with Richard Harding Davis, Herbert Swope and Charlie Somerville among first of the reporters to carry a cane to the office. And he's twirling one still. His birthplace is Aurora, Ind., and he is in the early 50's.

Lou Holtz occupies a peculiar niche among the crags and crannies of Broadway. Doubtless he is the most popular of all performers when circulating between Columbus Circle and Forty-second street. One post-repeal cabaret owes its top-notch success largely to his shrewdly minted blurts. He packed 'em in at the Palace for 11 weeks during one of the hottest summers New York has ever known. In a musical play with Lyda Roberts his sheer personality kept it going on Broadway for several months—just adlibbing, which is his metier. Yet Holtz's sway does not go beyond Broadway as yet. He was cooled out in the Hollywood waiting rooms only recently. His radio appearances have not been auspicious and his material has little appeal in other cities. It might be imagined he is a rousing Broadway boy—as Belle Baker is a Broadway gal—but he was San Francisco born.

The Hardest Part About Making Good Is . . . . What?

He wants to be a columnist. He's sure he'd get a kick out of it. There must be Thrills! But perhaps it would help him to know some of the handicaps beforehand—so won't I please tell him what's the hardest part about doing a job like this?

Is it all studying? Or meeting so many people? Or the long hours? Or the Battle With One's Temperament? Or having to think up something new every day? Or the terrible stupidity of the Ignorant Masses?

No, brother, it's none of these. As a matter of fact, until you mentioned them I hadn't realized that such difficulties were supposed to form part of My Hard Lot.

That line about the "Terrible Stupidity of the Ignorant Masses," for example. Most of the masses I've met are so much smarter than I, that I have to have the answers written on my cuff to even keep up with them.

And as for thinking up Something New—according to all the Best Editorial Minds, there have been only about three new thoughts since the year 4,598 B. C. And I didn't think any of 'em.

So none of these trifles is a handicap to this particular work. The hardest part about a job like this is something you've never foreseen in any of your glamorous dreams—a fact which you'll reject with plenty of scorn when you do hear it. Nevertheless it's true.

The hardest part about a job like this is JUST STAYING PUT.

Squatting on a spot and sticking to your squat!

Yes, I realize that's a horrid way to put it, stranger. After all the lovely theories you've had of writing! And I can quite appreciate your indignation at my gross materialism. I felt that way, too, the first time a regular writer handed me the straight dope on la belle-lettres. For months I regarded the crude creature with profound contempt.

So that was all he got out of the Soul's Glorious Struggle for Expression, was it? And all the rest—The Flaming Visions; the Lonely Vigils; the Magnificent Triumphs—they were meaningless!

Squatting on a spot, and sticking to his squat!

That might do for him, the swine! But not for me! Art, for me, should be a passionate pageant! I would weep! I would writhe in the agony of travail! I would hang upon my spiritual cross! But never, NEVER, would I SQUAT!

Yes, that's how I felt, too—when I was young, and rarin' to go. But I lived and learned, Big Boy. And now I'm telling you. You won't believe it. You won't take it. You'll go busting forth, and lope yourself into a lather, in your determination to show the world how a red-hot human should act.

But in the end you'll be forced to realize, as we all have done, that it's the Parked Profile, not the Divine Spark, which is the secret of success.

Nor is that the secret only of successful writing. It is the secret of any good job. It is the secret of civilization.

We're apt to forget that last fact, or never realize it. History is written in flaming sentences. We think it was lived that way. It wasn't. It was lived in long loneliness—in miserable monotony—in tireless repetitions—in an endurance that spent itself on petty jobs; that was bounded by the drab milestones of cheerless dawns and hopeless nights.

Even the great adventure-epics are lived that way. Men flinging themselves against the uncharted wonder or terror of frozen poles, savage jungle, or the more awful wilderness of disease and crime. Soldiers, explorers, artists, scientists, never a one made good save through that cruel ordeal of STAYING PUT. Choosing a job. Sticking to it. Sticking to it when the vision has faded and the fire has cooled and you've forgotten every desire, every goal, save the one necessity of STICKING.

STICKING — STAYING PUT—there's the test of a man and his maturity. Fizzy temperament—hi-falutin' gestures—reckless rampaging around—these things are not a proof of ability. They are simply a proof of childishness.

Any monkey can jitter. Any grasshopper can leap. BUT IT TAKES A MAN to JUST SIT AND CARRY ON. And if you can't do that, Stranger, you may have tons of talent and technique, endless bright ideas and gobs of personality—BUT IN THE ANNALS OF HUMAN SOCIETY YOU'LL BE JUST ANOTHER UNNECESSARY NOISE.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

Follies of the Wise

The honeymoon is over when a man stops glowering at the other men who stare at his wife—and begins to wonder languidly why they do it.

The new styles are usually some eccentric mode thought out by the designers, not in order to make women look more beautiful—but in order to make all your last season's hats look funny and all your last year's gowns look absurd.

A man spends half his life struggling to acquire the wisdom of experience—and the other half trying to go juvenile and imitate the follies of youth.

Woman may be man's mental and economic equal, but it still takes three hours at the beauty parlor and half the contents of a drugstore counter to make a woman look as clean, innocent and almost seraphic as a man does when he emerges from a barber shop.

Love has reached the turning point, when a man stops saying, "How soon can I see you, again?"—and begins saying, "I'll be there as soon as I can."

The real worth of a woman's love might be estimated at about half-way between the high value her husband would set on it in a suit for alienation and the modest amount of alimony he'd consider it should rate.

Why does a man make a virtue of his love for a woman—when it is merely an accident? He may drink because he chooses to, smoke because he likes to and play golf because he wants to; but no man ever fell in love, as long as he could possibly struggle against it.

* * *

Many a girl has married because she couldn't endure being alone so many evenings—and then divorced for the same reason.

Sometimes, the most effective step to take in winning a man is a step backward.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

On Reading Emily Dickinson

If one could be as brave as she
Through lagging day on day.
No other heart need doubtful be
To put the past away.
For she has made her pathway plain
And pointed hour by hour
How poems can be penned from pain.
How grief can grow a flower.

If loss can so enrich the soul
And swing bright portals wide
Then with lament's ungrateful dole
None need be satisfied.
Since promise can sustain so long
A life in barren ways,
None dare deny his note of song,
His syllable of praise.

Renewed League Campaign To Entrap U. S. Seen

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Europe has a set of primary interests, which to us have none, or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our cerns.—From The Farewell Address.

ACCORDING to a Paris dispatch, recognition of Russia by the allies of France, who constitute "the little entente," is imminent. It is sexpected that resumption of diplomatic relations between Russia and France's allies will be followed by a renewed campaign, led by France, to get the United States into the League.

This news comes in the midst of a new drive on this side of the Atlantic to lure the United States into the League through the back-door entrance to that entangling political alliance — the League Court.

Every Senator coming up for re-election is under tremendous pressure by all sorts and conditions of internationalists to vote for the immediate ratification of the League Court protocols.

These protocols are now before the Committee on Foreign Relations. To report them out in the closing days of the present session might keep Congress in session all summer. Certainly the debate in the Senate over these protocols, if they are reported from committee and brought up for final disposition, will precipitate a prolonged discussion.

Will Wipe Out Party Lines

IF this debate ever starts in the Senate party lines will be obliterated, national recovery legislation will be sidetracked and public attention will be diverted from domestic recovery and focused upon "the evil thing with a holy name," which is the definition given by the late Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, to the League of Nations.

This seems a surprising time for the Senate to abandon "The New Deal" for "The Raw Deal" that the American people would inevitably suffer should their Senators in Congress drag the United States into the League of Nations either through the front door of the covenant, which is the organic law of the league, or through the back door of the court, which is the "judicial tribunal" of the League.

There are still ten million unemployed in this country. The savings of ten million Americans are still tied up in closed banks. Business is still far from normal. Many public schools are still closed on a part time schedule. Our Navy, instead of being equal to the strongest, has declined in strength to third place among the navies of the world. Our Army has sunk to seventeenth place among the armies of the world. There are many other domestic problems of the utmost urgency pending before the Congress.

Nevertheless, the Democratic leadership of the Senate seems to be flirting with the proposal to slam the Senate's door in the face of all Americans who are appealing for the solution of home problems, in order that the Senate may stage an indefinite debate upon the question whether the American people were right or wrong in repeatedly repudiating at the polls every proposal that they enter the League of Nations through the front door, the back door or some trapdoor yet to be disclosed.

Internationalists Plague Congress

THE organized minority which persists in plaguing the President and the Congress and the press with propaganda to put the United States into the League of Nations is made up, for the most part, of a coalition of internationalists who appear to be much more interested in the quarrels of the Old World than they are in the problems of their own country. The ultimate goal of these internationalists is to get the United States into the league.

Theodore Roosevelt, in his last book, "The Great Adventure," gave a description of the internationalist which his illustrious successor of the same name, who is now in the White House, would probably agree cannot be improved upon. Said the first President Roosevelt on this subject:

"The professed internationalist usually sneers at nationalism, at patriotism and at what we call Americanism. He bids us foreswear our love of country in the name of love of the world at large. We nationalists answer that he has begun at the wrong end; we say that, as the world now is, it is only the man who ardently loves his country first who in actual practice can help any other country at all."

Human Side of the News

An Army Aviator Tells the Difference Between Military And Commercial Flying Requirements

By Edwin C. Hill

THE eyes of the nation peer into the skies as the Army continues to fly the air mail in open cockpits through storm and fog. It has cost a dozen lives and valuable equipment to discover definitely that mail carrying is not an Army pilot's job. Back the task must go to the commercial companies with fliers specially trained and with proper equipment. In the meantime the Army carries on. Its pilots push their military planes through the sky lanes while the cabin transports of the commercial lines follow along the same routes with empty mail bins and depleted passenger lists.

Much has been the talk of the difference between commercial flying and military flying, and the Army, it seems to me, has gotten the worst of it in these discussions. It is enlightening to hear from an Army flier just why the military pilots have had so much tragedy and trouble.

This Army flier drew an analogy between a hockey player and a straightaway skater, saying that there was the same difference between military flying and commercial. He pointed out that skating was only incidental to playing a good game of hockey, and that likewise the job of piloting was only an accessory to military aviation. And he continued in these words:

Army Aviator Like Hockey Player

"A GOOD hockey player glides along on the ice automatically, as he watches the puck, and a military flier has his mind on half a dozen things—observation, gunnery, bombing or photography. An army pilot is busy all the time while flying in military formation. Your engine is throttled back and 'gunned' alternately, as you slip and slide into position. Sometimes you have to stall a second or so, to keep from overshooting your leader; sometimes you have to 'pour everything there is in the engine,' to keep up.

"And that's not all. You have to interpret the signals of the leader, and follow him through the various maneuvers, and at the same time you are ready for the action of your mission, whether it be photographic, bombing or gunnery.

"All a commercial flier has to do, is to fly his plane to its destination. His entire job is flying, and he knows every inch of the terrain. The transport pilot's whole job is the reading of his instruments and the handling of the controls, while the business of handling the stick is incidental to those of us trained for aerial combat. Put these commercial pilots in military planes and they couldn't fly in a close formation, and the same holds good with us. We're not trained for their work.

"Now, get this. None of us is complaining. We all like to fly, but we're trained in military work, and they've got us shoving the mail along lines the commercial fliers have been flying for days and weeks. This new work is giving us a lot of experience, but I think it is upsetting the military tactical training we have been put through. We are using observation, bombing and a few pursuit planes for the light loads. All of these planes have been stressed for military missions, and will stand greater strains than the commercial planes.

"A lot of people do not understand why we in the Army were without 'blind' flying instruments like those on the commercial planes. Now, airplanes are absolutely useless in blind flying weather against an enemy. Say, for instance, that Harrisburg, Pa., was enveloped in fog—how could you find it to drop a load of bombs?

"Time may change things, and we may maneuver in bad weather. The commercial fliers, because they are entrusted with the lives of passengers, must be qualified to fly blind. It is not hard to learn to fly with instruments, but it takes a little time, and when we received orders to start pushing this mail along the airways, we did not have a chance to do it. Another thing, the instruments, which were hurriedly placed in the Army planes, we have not had a chance to test thoroughly before starting out on the mail. But everything will come out all right."

Published Orders Disprove Story

ANOTHER impression which has gotten abroad is that the Army fliers were sacrificed in an effort to make good on time and service, and even to better the schedules of the commercial companies. This is absolutely disproved by the publication of the orders issued to his men by Maj. Gen. Benjamin O. Foulois, chief of the Army air service.

Now, there's nothing about flying that Col. "Benny" does not know. He came up from private—he enlisted in Connecticut in 1898—to a major generalship, largely through the air corps. He flew the first plane the United States government ever owned—an Orville Wright biplane in Texas in 1910—and he's such a good aviator that last year, at the age of 55, he won the Mackay trophy for skill at maneuvering. He's the last one to sacrifice a flier, and his orders definitely told all zone commanders to keep pilots on the ground, even if the mail was delayed for several days, when weather conditions made it necessary.

No doubt something is to be said on both sides. But my opinion is that the people don't want a casualty list of Army fliers and they do not want the public treasury looted by unscrupulous promoters. We have had enough of both already. Let's have a sensible solution and let us have it soon.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

In reminiscent mood you often wonder about some of the young people you knew when you were young.

Indirectly, you have heard about some of them and probably you have managed to see some of those who prospered.

How about the ones who have not met with much success?

Probably they are the ones who would most appreciate a visit from you.

They realize that they have not outwardly gained the position you have attained.

They think you have forgotten them, in fact, they feel you would rather forget them.

This thought is not the least of the troublesome ones they have.

To make a difference in the life and joy of your friends, just because you have gained prominence and have picked up other friends is really too bad.

The friends you have known the longest are the ones you should try hardest to keep.

Be a better sport in the future and look up the old friends.

Give the most attention to those who have the least.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR SHOW OPENS

Double Production This Year Is Forecast

LEADERS HERE SEE '34 BUSINESS INCREASE

Prices Still at Lowest Figures in History Despite Cost Rise

In line with the constant upward rise of the thermometer on these increasingly warm spring days is the better business trend in electric refrigeration, with a new high in sales expected by the end of the year, according to I. W. Danforth and A. L. Hattenbach, officials in the Electric League of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Hattenbach, chairman of the Refrigeration Bureau of the Electric League, predicts this year will be the best the industry has ever had. Sales for the first quarter, he says, have already shown an increase of several hundred per cent over last year and the outlook for the balance of the year is equally encouraging.

An innovation which he believes will become a real factor is air-conditioning, for a great many such installations, both in homes and offices, have been made, recently.

In summing up his outlook on the situation, Mr. Hattenbach observes:

"Public acceptance is greater than ever, and the credit situation has improved considerably. Values are, by far, the greatest in history."

Mr. Danforth, president of the Electric League, is likewise enthusiastic over the prospects for 1934. He goes on to add, though, that while prices are still at the lowest figures in their history, no one knows how long they will stay at these low levels since both material and labor costs are advancing.

In explaining the advance in sales, Mr. Danforth names the NRA as an important impetus. He says:

"During the entire depression, the refrigeration industry has held up remarkably well. Even though many purses did not permit the purchase, nevertheless, the desire to own an electric refrigerator was in most everyone's mind. Consequently, with the development of NRA operations and a better feeling of security on the part of the average family, purse strings were loosened and electric refrigeration benefited in a very big way."

As a result he places the number of electric refrigeerators that will be produced this year at double the number produced in 1933. Added conveniences, smarter appearances, and invaluable preservative qualities he lists as the inducements which will make life easier for thousands of housewives in 1934 by the addition of an electric refrigerator to the household necessities.

NEWEST DESIGNS ON DISPLAY AT EXHIBIT

Entertainment to Feature Daily Programs at Pittsburgh Show

Pittsburghers have the opportunity of seeing a novel type of style exhibits at the Annual Electric Refrigerator Show which opened at noon today in the Chatterbox of the William Penn Hotel under the auspices of the Electric League of Pittsburgh. For five days from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. they will be able to inspect the latest in electric refrigeration.

The distributors are displaying 125 models, possessing the last word in convenience and utility. The models are in all sizes to suit the space and needs, as well as the pocketbook, of every possible purchaser.

Another feature is the display of air-conditioning units for industrial plants, all kinds of commercial institutions, offices, and homes as well. With these units, individuals can keep as cool and germ-free in summer as their foods fortified in the electrical refrigerator.

When Alexander the Great wanted to cool his wines, he dug deep trenches for storing snow and placed the beverage in them. Yet today even a poor man may have ice practically at will by means of one of the electric refrigerators. And after its installation, he need not so much as press a button to get ice cubes and assure the preservation of his food.

Entertainment for the guests will be provided at the show, which will also be broadcast by radio direct from the Chatterbox. At 2 p. m. Honeyboy and Sassafras will appear, while at 8:30 p. m. Tommy Riggs and Sammy Fuller will entertain.

In charge of arrangements for the exhibit is A. L. Hattenbach, chairman of the Refrigeration Bureau of the Electric League of Pittsburgh, assisted by Ludwig Hommel, vice chairman; I. W. Danforth, president of the league, and Gerard H. Nickerson, manager.

WIFE SLAVERY ENDED

Money saved through electric refrigeration is of prime importance in these not too prosperous days, but it is not the only worthwhile advantage offered by this comparatively new home service. With the electric refrigerator for a kitchen aid the housewife is no longer a slave to the kitchen during the heat of the summer.

Refrigerators Give Years of Service

Without bothering anyone, depending solely on its own efficient mechanism, the modern electric refrigerator gives years of uninterrupted service to its owner. It does not depend for its operation upon daily inspection and cleaning, and the housewife need not fear that foods will possibly spoil during the most prolonged of her absences.

Sales of Electric Refrigerators Up This Year

NEW YORK, April 16.—Sales of household electric refrigerators in the United States during the first two months of 1934 were 117,651 units, compared to 54,149 in the similar period last year.

HOW TO REDUCE FOOD BILLS

In these days of "controlled inflation," with its rising commodity prices and resultant rising cost of living, the problem of household economy daily becomes more complex. A compensating buying power must be developed, and there is increasing confidence from day to day that it will be.

The best vegetables, and often the best fruits, are available in most markets Fridays and Saturdays, and usually at the lowest prices. This is the time for the thrifty homemaker to lay in a supply for several days ahead.

Household economists have estimated that with quantity purchasing of meats and vegetables, along with that of cream and butter and other perishable staples, and by consistently taking advantage of specials when the markets afford them and by thoughtfully planning for the use of left-overs, a real saving in the family food bills can be effected. Electric refrigeration makes such buying possible.

KEEPING FOOD PROBLEM

Modern civilization is faced with two problems — production and preservation of food. From the standpoint of production, our nation presents a vast enterprise. Thousands of acres are devoted to farms, orchards, vineyards, truck-gardening, and pasture lands for flocks and herds. The packing and canning industry runs into millions of invested dollars. Besides all these, there are the grain and dry storage facilities and the cold storage warehouses which total an immense enterprise. Our nation's food bill reaches the annual sum of 22 billion 387 million dollars. Today 70 per cent of this total is represented in perishable food. Adequate refrigeration is a necessity to good health.

Food spoils more rapidly in warm weather than in cold—milk, for example, left outdoors on a

Electric Refrigerator No Longer Luxury

"An apple a day" used to be the standard of "keeping the doctor away," but now the electric refrigerator has supplanted it in keeping us healthy and happy. Not so long ago the electric refrigerator was considered a luxury; today it is as necessary to most households as running water. Convenience coupled with economy are the qualities which have made it a happiness-carrier to more than 5,000,000 homes.

Refrigeration Growth Changes Buying Habits

Modern standards of living have unquestionably changed the public's buying habits in the purchase of necessities of life. These changes are bringing about new and almost revolutionary methods of food merchandising. One of the foremost and most recent of these is the growing trend toward packaged foods.

A simple, quick-freezing process at temperatures considerably below zero preserves the foods and prevents the breaking down of the cell structure. Even fresh fruits and vegetables are now marketed in the quick-frozen form with full assurance of perfect preservation in terms of natural color, flavor, quality, and nutritive value.

Underlying this new service to the public are the rapid developments in the electric refrigeration industry, which will make it economically profitable for the merchant on a nation-wide scale.

Industry's Stride Rapid In Past Few Years

Although mechanical ice-making has been going on since 1775, it was not until about 15 years ago that the small mechanical refrigerator started its real commercial developments. The first machines were crude and very expensive, and it has been only during the last six or eight years that dependable machines have been placed on the market at reasonable prices.

Estimates of small ice machine production as given by authorities in the industry indicate that previous to 1923 only 20,000 such machines had been sold, whereas now there are over 5,000,000 of them in use.

CHANGES IN INTERIOR INCREASE CAPACITY

DEPENDABILITY PURCHASERS' DEMAND

Changes in appearance and interior design to make additional room for beer bottles and other cooling drinks are the chief improvements in new model electric refrigerators this spring, F. H. Stiening, consultant for numerous companies, declared today.

Teacher of domestic refrigeration at the University of Pittsburgh, Stiening points out that the cooling mechanism in the new models, will be little changed this year because of the high degree of efficiency already manifest in the pumps and motors. He said:

DEPENDABILITY IMPORTANT

"The public today expects an electric refrigerator to be almost noiseless and vibrationless. Anyone buying a refrigerator takes the mechanism for granted. Dependability is the main thing.

"Of course, we keep on experimenting and improving. But even when we think we have a good thing we aren't in a hurry to put it on a new model. We always remember that people want dependability in a refrigerator first, last, and always. We test it until we know there isn't a mistake before we put on anything new nowadays."

In the domestic refrigeration laboratory at Pitt, Stiening and his students continually test new models, often at the request of their builders, to discover how efficient they are.

STUDENTS MAKE CHECK

The students keep a careful check on each box, plotting curves of temperature rise and fall with a calorimeter, a sensitive instrument for measuring heat. Eventually, they discover how many British thermal units are extracted per watt of electricity consumed. Efficiency is declared to vary in direct ratio with operating cost. The best refrigeration extracts more heat at less cost.

At present the youthful experimenters are busy putting some of their refrigerators, under Stiening's direction, into individual "rooms," built much like small dog houses. In these rooms, they can raise or lower the air temperature, producing conditions exactly the same as a refrigerator meets in service in thousands of homes. More tests will determine the most efficient models.

Although this refrigeration course was primarily conceived to supplement other mechanical engineering training, several of Stiening's pupils have become refrigeration engineers, and are now employed by several large companies.

IMPROVE BOX DESIGNS

It is box design that shows the most improvement, Stiening observes, a problem in which he has been personally interested. Prophesying that electric refrigerators will be sold this spring principally on a style appeal, he says:

"Hinges and latches on doors are disappearing. Now the hinges instead of being the 'barndoor' type are 'piano' style, hidden away. Doors open this spring when you press a button, a trigger, or a pedal. And there are changes in the boxes themselves. Some people might call them 'streamline models.' There is subtle styling in many ways—legs, corners, edge trim. Of course, except in rare cases, white remains the standard color."

Inside the box designers have concentrated most of their efforts Stiening emphasizes. And he adds:

"There are more gadgets—egg racks, vegetable fresheners, a light in the ceiling, new kinds of improved ice cube trays. And notice this piece of cleverness—the freezing unit is neither on one side or in the middle. It is just enough to one side so although there are five inches left in which to slide milk bottles, there is more room on the other side.

"The freezing unit used to be close against one side, wasting space. And look at the shelves! Most of them slide or fold up so you can put all kinds of things in the box, such as beer bottles or a watermelon. In every way, the designers have tried to make it easier for the American housewife or hungry husband to find things in the family larder."

ADVICE TO BUYERS

For those contemplating the purchase of an electric refrigerator, Stiening gives some general advice:

"Buy from a dependable company, although most boxes now on the market are reliable. And if anything goes wrong with your refrigerator's mechanism, don't tinker with it yourself or let any 'home-made' mechanic take it apart either.

"Keep your cooling unit defrosted. Frost is almost as good an insulator as asbestos. Keeping the unit free of ice is good economy. And don't forget that refrigeration machinery runs 80 per cent of the time because heat leaks in through the insulation. Make sure that the one you buy has good thick insulation."

J. W. DANFORTH

BUYING ADVICE TELLS WHAT SIZE TO GET

The soaring heat of summer, with its withering effect upon freshly picked vegetables, its spoiling of fruits, its tainting of meat and its souring of milk and cream, will find an even million American housewives better equipped to cope with these expensive annoyances than they were a year ago.

The reason? A million domestic electric refrigerators have been sold in the United States since a year ago at this time. And if the forecast of the Electric Refrigeration Bureau of the National Electric Light Association is correct, a million more will be installed in American homes by this time next year.

SIZE THE QUESTION

Accepting this figure, which may be considered accurate on account of its authoritative source, and considering that this is the season when the greatest number of people are "refrigeration-minded," it is fair to assume that hundreds of thousands of American housewives are now pondering, not the question:

"Shall I buy an electric refrigerator?"

But—

"How large an electric refrigerator shall I buy?"

In the first place it should be remembered that more storage space will be required than in the old refrigerator. With its more varied uses the electric refrigerator has rightly been termed the "electric pantry." It keeps food safely for longer periods, due to its unvarying, automatically maintained, low temperature. And more food is stored in it, because it can be guarded perfectly there, without attention, for days at a time.

HOW TO DETERMINE SIZE

Experts in household refrigeration have investigated many theories and have employed many methods of computation in finally arriving at a generally satisfactory size rule. It is simple and easily remembered. Provide two net cubic feet of storage space for each member of the household. If more than six people are to be provided for, seek the best expert advice obtainable as to whether an extra large refrigerator is preferable to two smaller ones. As a matter of fact, two electric refrigerators are to be found today in many homes.

Cooling Beverage Habit Increasing Rapidly

The distinctively American custom or habit of drinking iced beverages in the summer in order to "cool off" seems to be increasing rapidly. This is not surprising when it is considered that household electric refrigeration, with its facilities for making ice cubes in ample quantities, has been installed in more than three million American homes in the last four years.

And with all the new drinks and the new and convenient ways of preparing the old ones, made possible by the modern electric refrigerator, the habit becomes more irresistible from year to year.

Undoubtedly among the most popular of all home-made iced beverages are iced tea and iced coffee. Almost universally acceptable and satisfying, some complain that the strength of the tea or coffee is dissipated by the addition of ice. Yet this weakness can easily be obviated:

Make the tea or coffee as strong as you like it. Pour it into the ice trays and freeze it in cubes, just as you would make plain ice. Then when it is time to serve, place the frozen cubes in the glasses and pour your freshly made tea or coffee over them. The most fastidious tea or coffee addict will declare that here is a drink that is good to the last sip.

Many have already discovered this secret, but it has not occurred to all of them that the electric refrigerator provides numerous ways of enhancing the attractiveness of the beverage, especially of tea.

COOLNESS SOUGHT IN SUMMER FOODS

EASY TO MAKE DISHES ARE NEEDED

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Coolness, that's what we desire in all our summer foods. It must not only be in taste, but in appearance, absolutely, yes. Nor do we want to get hot and tired in preparing them. Why should we when there are salads, desserts, cookies, candies, most anything you can think of that can be easily and comfortably made with the aid of the electric refrigerator?

A grand feature of these dishes too, is that they can be prepared hours ahead of when we want them. Nor will they spoil in the intervening time. Rather, they are better because of their prolonged cooling—crisp and inviting.

Then, too, your vegetables and fruits can be made ready for serving within a few hours after buying and can be kept in the hydrator without fear of wilting.

You probably have a number of favorite refrigerator recipes, but you can always use good new ones. Here are a number of suggestions including a variety which will surely be broad enough for all your needs.

ICE-BOX COOKIES

3 eggs
1 teaspn soda
1 tspn. vanilla
1 cup butter
4 cups flour
1 tspn. cream of tartar
1 cup nut meats

Mix sugar and shortening well, add eggs, beat again, then slowly add flour, soda, cream of tartar, then nuts and vanilla. Knead, then shape in a loaf and let stand over night in ice box. Slice thin, place on cookie sheet and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) about 12 minutes.

BUTTERSCOTCH PARFAIT

1 cup light brown sugar
2/3 cup water
2 tspns vanilla
3 tblspns butter
1 cp heavy cream
4 egg yolks
Few grains salt

Melt sugar and butter in sauce pan; cook until thick and bubbly stirring constantly. Add water and cook until smooth syrup is formed. Beat egg yolks, add butterscotch syrup slowly and continue beating. Cook at low heat until light and fluffy. Chill, beat, cream until stiff, add salt and vanilla. Combine with chilled egg mixture. Turn into tray, place in chilling unit, freeze without stirring. Top with whipped cream and sprinkle with pecans.

FROZEN PUDDING

1 cup preserved pineapple or strawberries
1 tsp. cornstarch
1 cup milk
1 egg yolk
1-16 tsp. salt
1 cup seeded raisins
¼ cup walnuts
1 pt. heavy cream whipped
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix the sugar with the cornstarch; add the milk slowly and stir until blended; turn into double boiler; cook until smooth and thickened (10 minutes) stirring the while; pour a little over the egg yolk in a cup; turn into the hot mixture and cook until the sauce has thickened (5 minutes). Remove sauce from the heat; add seeded raisins, preserved fruit, salt, vanilla, walnuts; let get cold. Whip the cream and fold into the cold mixture. Turn into a mold or trays of the refrigerator; slip trays into freezing unit; freeze until firm. If desired decorate each serving with candied cherries. Serves eight.

NESSELRODE PUDDING

3 cups of cream
1 pint of chopped walnuts
2 cups of sugar
5 egg yolks
1 cup of candied fruits
1 pinch of salt
2 cups of milk
½ cup of raisins
½ cup of pineapple syrup

Make a custard of the milk, sugar, eggs and salt. Cook in double boiler. Add the pineapple syrup, cream and walnuts. Then freeze. Line a 2 quart mould with part of the mixture and to the remainder add the candied fruits, minced and the raisins. Place in frigidaire until ready to use.

ICE BOX CAKE

(Serves 16)

3 dozen Lady Fingers.
½ lb. butter (creamed).
¾ lb. powdered sugar.

Drop in four egg yolks, one at a time. Beat egg whites and add a pinch of salt and add to butter mixture.

1 small can crushed pineapple, well drained.
Small bottle cherries, cut in small pieces.
1 pint whipping cream with a little sugar and vanilla.

Line pan with Lady Fingers (round side out); put one-half of butter mixture over cake, one-half pineapple and one-half whipped cream; then add another layer of Lady Fingers and another layer of the mixture until all is used. Set in ice box for a few hours.

ICE BOX PUDDING

1 lb. graham crackers, rolled fine
1 lb. English walnuts, cut fine
1 lb. marshmallows, cut in quarters.
1 lb. dates, cut in half or smaller cream to moisten

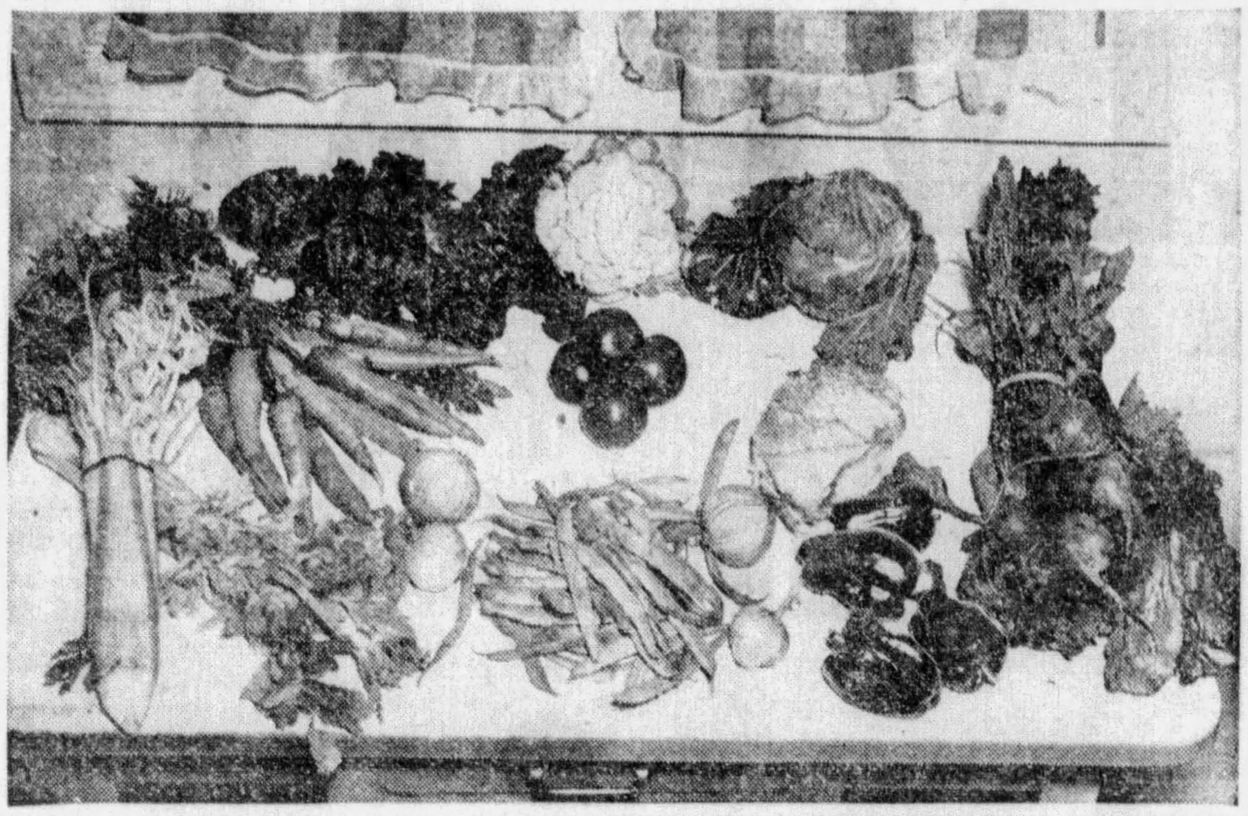
Mix all together, form in two rolls, wrap in waxed paper and store in refrigerator. To serve cut in slices and serve with or without whipped cream. A complete dessert.

CHILDREN'S ICE CREAM

2 tbsp. minute tapioca
2 tbsp. sugar
2 cups milk
2 egg whites
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup whipping cream
1-3 cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
2 tbsp. white [illegible] syrup
Dash of salt

Scald milk, put in the tapioca and cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Strain while hot, but do not rub tapioca through the strainer. Add 1-3 cup sugar, syrup, salt and stir until the sugar is dissolved, then chill. Sweeten the egg whites with 2 tablespoons sugar and beat until stiff. Whip the cream, fold it with egg whites and vanilla into the custard mixture. Freeze in a mechanical refrigerator without stirring for about 2 hours.

Vegetables Kept Fresh Are Vitalizing



WASH VEGETABLES . . . . . PUT IN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

There they'll keep as fresh as you could want them. Celery, carrots, beans, radishes and all the rest of them should be cleaned, placed in the hydrator, and when it's meal-time all you need do is arrange them on a vegetable dish or drop them into water for cooking.

Ice Cream Easily Made In Modern Refrigerator

Not so long ago a luxury of kings, princes and potentates, ice cream today tops the list of the universally popular desserts. And how easily it can be prepared in the modern electric refrigerator! No more cracking of ice, no more turning the crank, no more paddling, no more "packing." Just follow the recipe, make certain the temperature in the freezing compartment is right and make the proper time allowance as provided in your time-chart, and you have your ice cream.

Here are a few recipes well worth using:

VANILLA ICE CREAM

2 egg yolks
1½ tsp. vanilla
½ pt. thin cream
2 egg whites
½ pt. h'vy cream
Pinch of salt
½ cup confectioner's sugar

Beat egg yolks and add thin cream, beaten. To this add ½ cup of confectioner's sugar, vanilla and pinch of salt. Then add heavy cream whipped, and whites of 2 eggs beaten stiff. Place in refrigerator tray and stir after first 20 minutes about three times. Freezing time, three hours.

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM

1 small can chocolate syrup
½ pint heavy cream, whipped
Dash of cinnamon

Mix beaten egg and chocolate syrup, then add whipped cream and cinnamon. Place in tray and freeze. Freezing time, three hours.

MAPLE PARFAIT

1 pt. heavy cream, whipped
3 egg whites

Cook maple syrup until it spins a thread. Pour syrup over beaten egg whites and beat until thoroughly cool. Fold into the stiffly whipped cream. Place in freezing tray. When frozen, pile lightly in sherbet glasses and serve with sweetened whipped cream. Fills one tray. Freezes in three to four hours.

ORANGE FRAPPE

Place in saucepan the following:

1-3 cup sugar
corn syrup
1 cup water
Rind of 1 orange
3 tblspns white

Boil the above two minutes, cool and add

1 cup orange juice juice
Very small pinch of salt
2 tblspns lemon

Strain into refrigerator tray and freeze. Other fruit juices may be used instead of orange. Freezing time, three hours.

REFRIGERATOR DOUGHNUTS

3 tsp. baking powder
¼ cup sugar
1 cup milk
½ tsp. cinnamon
2 tbsp. melted shortening
¼ tsp. nutmeg
3 or 4 cups flour

Beat egg slightly, add milk, sugar and melted shortening. Sift dry ingredients together and then add to first mixture and be sure to mix well. Turn onto a well floured board and knead slightly. Place in refrigerator and chill. Roll ¼ inch thick. Cut with doughnut cutter and fry in hot fat for four to five minutes. Turn once during cooking. Drain on paper and roll in sugar.

CHOCOLATE ICE BOX CAKE

3 eggs
¼ cup melted bitter chocolate
½ cup butter
1½ cups powdered sugar
1 cup English walnuts (pieces)
2 doz. lady fingers

Cream butter and sugar together, then add eggs, which will have been well beaten to batter slowly. When this is thoroughly mixed add chocolate and nuts. Have pan lined with lady fingers, then pour in filling. Let set in cool place for 10 to 12 hours. Serve with whipped cream.

GRAPE SHERBET

MANY RECIPES FOR TORRID MONTHS

minutes. Meanwhile soak ½ tablespoon unflavored gelatin in 3 tablespoons cold water, then add this to hot syrup, set mixture in pan of ice and beat till stiff. Next add ¾ cup grape juice, 5 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup orange juice and ½ cup crushed canned pineapple. Let this mixture cool then turn into freezing tray or into can for crank freezing. When frozen to mush remove to bowl and beat with rotary beater. Then whip ½ cup cream and fold in.

MERINGUES

3 egg whites — ½ tsp. vanilla
1 cup gran. sugar — ½ tsp. vinegar

Beat egg whites until dry, add sugar a little at a time and continue beating until the mixture holds its shape. Add vanilla and vinegar. Place mixture in a pastry bag, using rose tube. NEED OF FOOD IMPETUS TO MAN

Food has always been a major problem of the human race. The need of food and the quest for it scattered the race over the face of the earth. The ever insistent demand for food has been the driving impetus of development. The quest for food has been the basis of adventure and discovery; the urge of exploration, experiment, research and improvement.

The crude tools of Primitive Man were the by-products of his attempt to solve the problem of food. Knives, bows, arrows, spears, baskets; pottery, kettles, etc., were all produced as aids in solving the problem of food. It is significant that the creation of these tools seems to have preceded all ideas of art or culture. The oldest civilizations of which we know left only crude relics of the attempt to solve the problem of food. The practical demand came first. Beauty, art and design came later.

MEAT EATEN AS KILLED

Primitive man had little or no need for refrigeration. His food, if fruit or vegetable, was picked and eaten on the spot. His meat was eaten as soon as killed and whatever remained was abandoned.

The pursuit of food was practically his sole occupation. But, as time went on, he discovered that he could accumulate enough food in one day to last for two days or more. Right then began the problem of food preservation.

Our primitive ancestors found that food could be dried, spiced, smoked and salted. They undoubtedly found that food would keep more nearly fresh in the shade than in the open sunlight. They found that it would keep still better if placed in the cold water of a mountain brook.

Some, who lived in northern climes, found that meat would keep when frozen. We adventure down through the centuries. Alexander the Great had slaves go to the mountain tops and carry down snow packed in covered baskets. The snow was placed in trenches and heaped about his wine casks and the trench was then covered with straw. At his sumptuous banquets, thoroughly chilled beverages were served. Nero and other Roman epicures followed the same practice.

The ancient Egyptians used ice for food preservation, but at such infinite labor that only royalty could afford it.

Along the Nile, nights are often chilly despite the heat of the day It was discovered that water placed in open porous trays and fanned during the coldest hours before the dawn would form a thin film of ice. These ice films were painstakingly produced and stored in caves. A hundred slaves laboring through the night were able, perhaps, to serve their master the equivalent of three or four ice cubes.

POLO ENJOYED SHERBETS

Marco Polo returned with reports of delicious sherbets served at the courts of the lords of Cathay.

Saladin, the great Moor who oposed Richard the Lion Hearted in the Crusades sent his knightly enemy gifts of cool sherbets. Similar dishes were served at the banquets of the Borgias.

With these early attempts at refrigeration and the use of chilled foods we come down to the time of Sir Francis Bacon who stopped his coach one bitter winter day and ventured out into a snowdrift to pack snow into a cleaned and dressed fowl.

To him should be awarded the honor of the first real attempt to preserve food by refrigeration. It is regretable that this brilliant idea cost Sir Francis his life for the exposure brought on an illness from which he died.

Just when ice was first cut and stored for use during the summer season is unknown. Probably it pre-dates the landing of the Pilgrim fathers.

Other means of refrigeration long in common use are the storage of food in spring houses, in cisterns or wells, in cellars and in boxes placed outside kitchen windows. In dry, hot climates the evaporation from porous jars or containers of water produces a temperature considerably below that of the surroundinng atmosphere and this means is employed to keep food cool.

It is interesting to know that the first companies for cutting and storing ice were established in this country about 1800 and that in 1805 Frederick Tudor, a Boston merchant sent a ship load of ice to Havana.

MAN'S BATTLE TO CREATE COLD

If there is anything as elementary in man's upward struggle through the various stages of civilization as his efforts to withstand the rigors of cold, it is his equally persistent battle to promote his physical comfort and well-being by creating cold when Nature seems to be bent upon his annihilation by heat.

In the oldest records of Egypt and Babylonia, down through the history of ancient Greece and Rome, medieval Europe and modern America, there are recurring evidences of a constant effort to search out and apply the principles of refrigeration.

It is therefore not surprising that the modern electric refrigerator, the embodiment of the last word in refrigeration research and invention, is now accepted, in progressive America at least, as one of the real blessings of civilization.

ICE-MAKING IN INDIA

This handy household device is so simple, and the production of its sparkling and refreshing ice cubes is so easy, that one is likely to accept it as an entirely modern innovation, hit upon by some sudden master-stroke of inventive genius, without giving a thought to the toil and ingenuity of the unsung thousands of workers and experimenters whose combined labors and research contributed to its development.

A study of the history of refrigeration reveals some highly interesting facts connected with the ice-making industry in this and other countries. For example, the English author and world-traveler, Parks, in his "Wanderings of a Pilgrim," wrote more than 75 years ago of his observations of natives in India who actually produced ice at a temperature of 43 degrees Fahrenheit, 11 degrees above the point of freezing. Describing this feat, which apparently contravened nature itself, he wrote:

"The ground belonging to the ice concern is divided into shallow beds about six feet square and a cubit (about 18 inches) in depth; between them are raised paths.

FREEZING AT 43 DEGREES

"When the weather in December is cold enough to induce us to suppose water will freeze at night with artificial aid, the business of ice-making commences. At the bottom of the shallow square beds, a black-looking straw is spread about a foot in depth, called 'pooal,' which is reckoned better for the purpose than wheat-straw.

"The highest temperature at which ice was made in 1846, at Cawnpore, was 43 degrees Fahrenheit, or 11 degrees above freezing point. At each of the four corners, on the pathway, is placed a thiliya (an earthen jar), which is filled with water. The pooal straw in the shallow beds must be kept perfectly dry, to produce evaporation and freezing of the water in the little pans placed upon it; should rain fall, the straw must be taken up and thoroughly dried before it can be used again.

"It is amusing to see the old abdar who has charge of the ice concern, walking up and down of an evening, watching the weather, and calculating if there be a chance of making ice."

CURRENT USE BUT SLIGHT

In its capacity as one of your electric servants, your refrigerator costs you but a few cents for hire per day, according to a study made by P. H. Powers, vice president of the West Penn Power Company. He estimated the refrigerator would supply you plentifully with ice, preserve your foods, and freeze your desserts all for $1.50 a month.

Manager

GERARD H. NICKERSON

Mr. Nickerson, manager of the Electric League of Pittsburgh, a member of the committee in charge of the annual electric refrigerator show at the William Penn.

winter day, provided it doesn't freeze, is much more likely to remain sweet than if left on the kitchen table or near the stove. The reason for that baffled the world's master minds for years. Not until Pasteur, the great French scientist, discovered bacteria did we begin to understand it. Now it is common knowledge.

Certain tiny forms of life known as bacteria and other forms known as molds and yeasts attack food—it is their natural sustenance just as leaves are the natural food of caterpillars.

MULTIPLY FAST

These tiny forms of life, or micro-organisms, are so small that a million or more of certain kinds could be placed on the head of a pin.

Under conditions favorable to their growth, they multiply with astounding speed. They are everywhere—in the air—on practically everything that is not surgically sterilized.

Considering milk, the dairyman is compelled by law to take every precaution against bacteria. It is impossible for him to deliver to you milk which contains no bacteria. He does bring you milk in which the bacteria count is very low.

If that milk is immediately placed in an electric refrigerator or any refrigerator which succeeds in keeping the temperature constantly below 50 degrees, the bacteria in the milk remains practically dormant. They grow and procreate, but very slowly, with the result that the milk remains fresh, wholesome and usable for a comparatively long time.

The United States Government says:

"At a temperature below 50 degrees Fahrenheit, bacteria multiply less rapidly; between 50 degrees and 100 degrees Fahrenheit, the increase is very fast; hence the necessity for thorough cooling and the maintenance of low temperature until used."

SAFEGUARD HEALTH

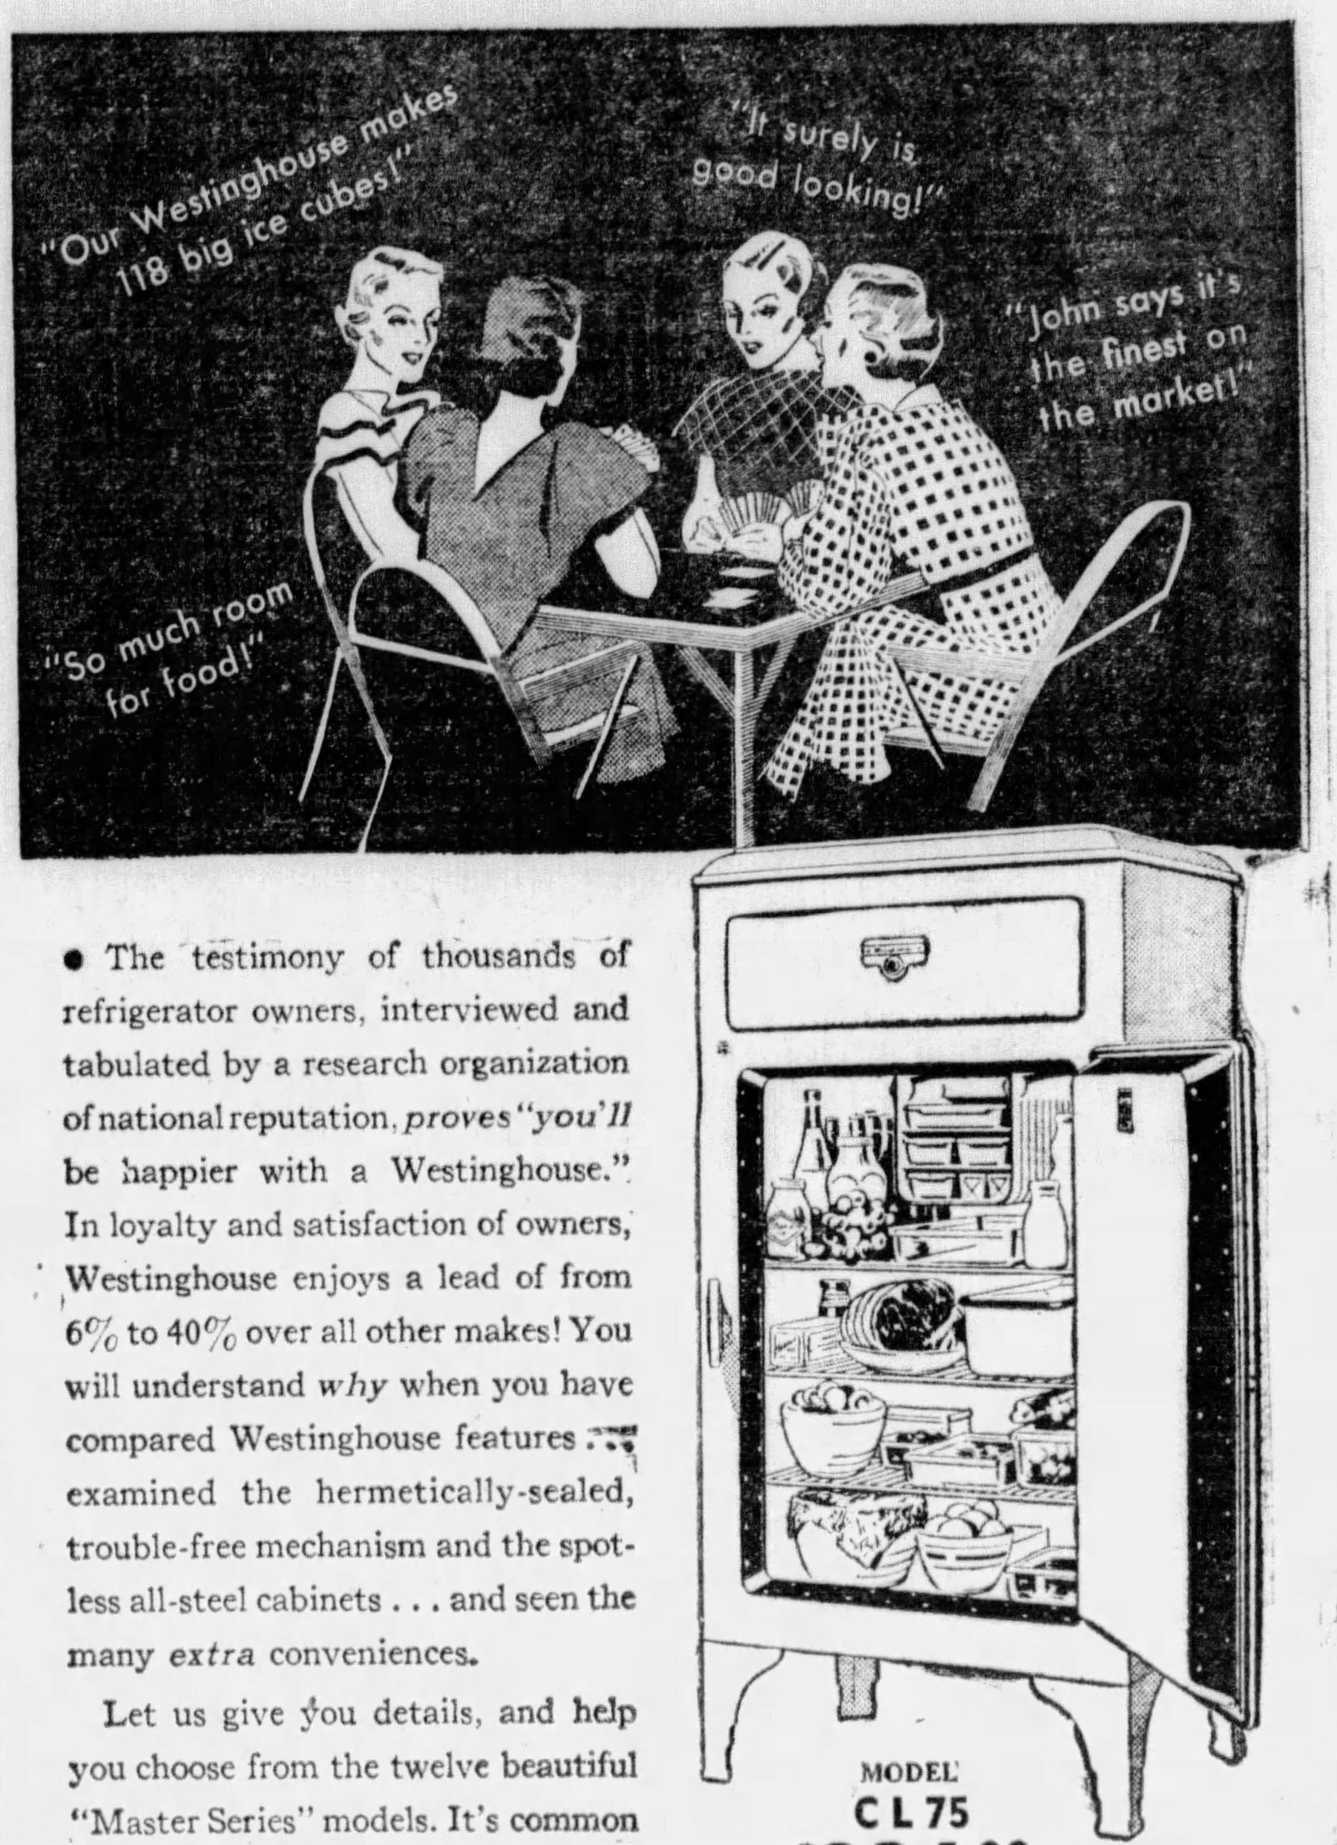
Proper preservation of food not only safeguards the family health—it is an economy. In the average family 38.2 per cent of the income goes for food. This represents a sizeable sum. All of us know there is a certain amount of waste—the little of this or that—the left-overs. Particularly is this true of the perishable foods. Waste is the big item in a nation's food bill.

Nature cannot be depended upon to give us adequate refrigeration. To provide ourselves with adequate refrigeration is to safeguard our family health and to practice economy. Electric refrigerators automatically maintain the temperature foods demand.

Proper preservation of food is a safeguard of the family health. There is only one way to be sure food is safe, and that is to keep your food at a temperature well under 50 degrees and above 32 degrees.

You'll be happier

WITH A WESTINGHOUSE



"Our Westinghouse makes 118 big ice cubes!"
"It surely is good looking!"
"John says it's the finest on the market!"
"So much room for food!"
